AMERICANS, FRENCH TAKE HUN TRENCHES

MRS. ORLEAN B. HOWE TELLS STORY OF HER LIFE

BARES SOUL TO JUSTIFY SLAYING OF W.H.BROOKS

Dramatic Climax of Visalia Trial Reached When Woman Slayer Takes Witness Chair to Tell Events of the Killing

CLOSES HER EYES TO SHUT OUT COURT SCENE

Between Sobs and Tears She Tells How Stories Persecuted Her to Far Corners of Earth: Went to Lunch With Brooks

BULLETIN.

VISALIA, March 11. — Mrs. Orlean B. Howe collapsed just before the noon recess and fell prone upon the floor in a dead faint.

A recess had just been ordered and the judge was instructing the jury not to talk about the case when the defendant collapsed. Her husband and her physician, Dr. W. S. Porter of Oakland, rushed to her side and carried her out.

VISALIA, March 11.—Mrs. Orlean B. Howe of Oakland, pale and trembling from the intense nervous strain under which she is laboring and on the verge of complete collapse, fought for her life here today to escape a charge of murder brought against her in connection with the killing of W. H. Brooks in a Porterville hotel last November. In faltering tones so low that she was asked frequently to repeat, Mrs. Howe told the story of her life from the time she married Howe in San Francisco in 1901, through the years of her acquaintance with Brooks to the fateful Monday on which she purchased a revolver in Porterville, with the avowed intention, the defense contends, of killing herself, met Brooks in the hotel lobby.

CLOSES EYES TO SHUT OUT SCENE

As if to shut from her mind the scene of opposing counsel and the courtroom, crowded with tense spectators who listened eagerly for each of the low, faltering words, Mrs. Howe's eyes were closed. At irregular intervals they opened to search for the gaze of her husband, who has been constantly at her side since the trial began, her hands were clasped in her lap, and the customary bunch of violets on her coat lapel rose and fell as she fought against the nervousness which assailed her.

Mrs. Howe took the stand dramatically. Following a brief opening address by H. B. McClure of her counsel, when the tension of the courtroom was relaxed momentarily, McClure stated simply:

"We will call our first witness, Mrs. Orlean Howe."

Several times during her testimony she broke down and gave way momentarily to tears.

In the opening statement McClure outlined the defense, that of emotional insanity induced by alleged persecution of Mrs. Howe by Brooks "to the far ends of the earth."

FALSE STORIES CIRCULATED

False stories concerning Mrs. Howe were circulated by Brooks, according to McClure, in Oakland, San Francisco, Dayton, Cincinnati, San Diego, Seattle, Buenos Ayres, Australia and New Zealand.

McClure also detailed an interview between Mrs. Howe and Brooks in a private dining-room in a San Francisco restaurant to which she had gone with her husband's consent. Brooks had promised to tell about past occurrences in her husband's life. Following this interview, the defense contends Brooks circulated the stories concerning Mrs. Howe wherever he went.

"For all these grievous wrongs, Mrs. Howe was in such a frame of mind she did not know right from wrong, when she stood in the lobby of the Porterville hotel and saw "the peculiar smile on his face and that she did not remember what took place after she took the pistol from her purse and until she was told that Brooks was dead and that she had unlucid intervals during the remainder of the day. We will prove that these remarks were made by Brooks to other persons, and that they came to Mrs. Howe, and we will ask that you return a verdict of not guilty," was the conclusion of McClure's statement.

Mrs. Howe was supported to the stand by her husband.

Her testimony followed the lines detailed by McClure in the opening statement. She told of the intimacy that formerly existed between her

Fishing Boat Lost With 50 Passengers

NEW YORK, March 11.—The fishing schooner N. J. R. III, with 50 passengers aboard, is believed to have foundered in Sunday's gale.

She left Sheepshead Bay Sunday morning for fishing banks off Long Beach. She was to have returned yesterday, but nothing has been heard from her. Harbor patrol boats and naval vessels are searching for the steamer.

GEORGE NOT TO GIVE UP PORTFOLIO

LONDON, March 11.—A provisional German-Rumanian peace has been signed, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs Balfour announced in the House of Commons today.

Balfour said he had no information regarding any Japanese troops landing in Siberia.

Rumors that Premier Lloyd George's resignation was impending were considered utterly without foundation today. He is expected to make a thorough reply to his critics in the House of Commons this afternoon, discussing the relations between the government and the press.

WILL PROSECUTE

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Criminal prosecutions have been instituted by the fuel administration in 83 cases out of a total of 424 complaints of violations of the administration's refutations, not including the general closing order of January 17. In 42 cases, persons engaged in the coal trade have been compelled to refund sums aggregating $34,000, improperly collected. Two hundred and eighty-one cases remain under investigation and eighteen have been dismissed.

A report of the legal department of the fuel administration made public today gave the result of efforts to enforce the administration's orders.

SUSTAIN VERDICT

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Conviction of Karl Bunz, managing director, and two other officials of the Hamburg-American line for violating the shipping laws by sending supplies to German cruisers from American ports were in effect sustained today by the Supreme Court, which refused to review the proceedings Bunz and George Kotter, superintending engineer, will be compelled to serve eighteen months and Walter Poppenhouse, a second officer, one year, in the Atlanta penitentiary.

MEN SENTENCED

CAMP DODGE, Ia., March 11.—Found guilty by a general court-martial for refusing to obey orders, eight national army men from St. Paul, Minn., all professed Socialists, have been sentenced to long terms of imprisonment in the Leavenworth penitentiary, it was announced today. One of the men, A. S. Brome, was given 20 years and the other seven were sentenced to 25 years' confinement, all at hard labor.

KILL 10 MEXICANS

LAREDO, Tex., March 11. — Between five and ten Mexican bandits are reported dead today by Sergeant Len Willis, who is back after leading a posse of rangers in pursuit of a gang which raided a ranch south of Hebronville, Thursday night. Willis says about eight escaped, following a running fight in the brush.

MURDER MYSTERY

LOS ANGELES, March 11.—Mystery surrounds the discovery of the body of an unidentified man on a bench in the plaza here early today.

The man had been shot through the head and the body then set upright in sitting posture.

GET SAFE PASSAGE

BUENOS AIRES, March 11.—The British government has granted a safe conduct to Holland for Count von Luxburg, former German ambassador to Argentine, but has refused to allow his German physician to accompany him. The date of his sailing has not been fixed.

U. S. TO BUY PIERS

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Without a dissenting vote the Senate this afternoon agreed to the amendment to the billion-dollar urgent deficiency bill giving the President power to purchase the German-owned piers at Hoboken.

WAR TASKS FACE BAKER IN FRANCE

Secretary of War in France to Visit the Trenches On His Journey of Inspection; Is Welcomed by High Officials

Objects of American's Visits Are Many; Will Arrange for Dockage Facilities; Crossed the Atlantic on Naval Vessel

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

WASHINGTON, March 11.—An extremely comprehensive program is mapped out for Secretary of War Baker, now that he has safely landed in France. Officials said today that among the things which he will do before he returns to the United States will be:

To arrange for adequate docking facilities for the enormous American army and supply trains which must go to the western front, even though to do so may make it necessary for the United States actually to take over and make American territory for the time being of additional French seaports.

To inspect the American battlefront and secure at first hand certain very important strategical information on which to base his course in handling the problems of his office here.

To decide with General Pershing on the proportion of regulars, Federalized National Guardsmen and National Army troops that are to be shifted to France.

TO DECIDE ON RAIL SUPPLIES

To decide what new railway supplies may be sent to the American section and to have explained at first hand to him the recommendation of General Pershing on this subject.

To sit with the Supreme war council at Versailles and "get its viewpoints on co-ordination of all forces on the western front.

To confer with Vice-Admiral Sims and the British and French naval authorities regarding the part the United States navy has played and is playing in the war.

To secure the views of Premier Clemenceau and Prime Minister Lloyd George on certain matters on which President Wilson desires to be informed.

Secretary Baker will remain abroad an indefinite time. While his mission is in no sense of the word diplomatic, having to deal almost entirely with military problems, he will be able to impress the views of President Wilson very fully on the various officials with whom he will come into contact. Before leaving here the secretary conferred for a long time with the President and was made fully acquainted with the views of the President on many very imperative preparations.

LENGTHY CABLE IS RECEIVED

On landing in France he received a lengthy cable despatch, which it is naturally assumed here dealt almost entirely with the Japanese-Russian problem. Inasmuch as Baker has strong views on the Russian question of his own, and is a firm believer that the new republic will yet find itself and will throw off German dictation, he will bring to Europe a new view which may have a very important bearing on the final decision to be reached there.

The secretary was accompanied on his trip by Major-General W. N. Black, Lieutenant-Colonel M. L. Brett and his private secretary, Ralph Hays.

PARIS, March 11. — Newton D. Baker, the American Secretary of War, arrived in Paris this morning. He was received by General Pershing, General Tasker H. Bliss, the American chief of staff; French officers representing Premier Clemenceau and Ambassador Sharp.

The Secretary's voyage was without incident.

As Baker stepped int the automobile of General Pershing to be carried from a railway station to his hotel he bumped into a French laborer. Both stepped back, surprised, and then each man lifted his hat.

Baker reached Paris at 6:30 a. m., his private car being attached to a regular train. A crowd of French reporters were present to greet him and insisted that he accede, American fashion, to an interview on the spot, but the visiting official declined. In the party which met him were representatives of Premier Clemenceau and President Poincare, officers from the American embassy and General Pershing and General Bliss.

Baker was driven to the Crillon Hotel, where he expected to see President Poincare this afternoon, going later on a tour of the fronts, especially American sectors and training camps of the Sammies.

THIRTEEN DROWN

NEW YORK, March 11.—Of seventeen passengers on board, thirteen, mostly negroes, were lost when the tugboat W. A. Bisso was sunk in the river here today when she rammed a Mexican oil tanker.

AIRMEN HIT AIRDROME AND DUMPS

Three Enemy Planes Brought Down in Battle With Royal Naval Fliers; British Return With Safety to Their Base

Rafts Are Sunk by the Italian Fire; Large German Ice-Breaker "Hindenburg" Hits Mine and Is Sunk in Baltic

ROME, March 11.—Naples was attacked by enemy aviators early this morning. Twenty bombs were dropped in a residential quarter. The victims included seven occupants of a hospital of the Little Sisters, near Arcomirelli.

Naples is more than 300 miles south of the battle line. The nearest enemy territory is the Albania coast, about 250 miles to the east. Italian aircraft, on raiding operations, dropped seven tons of bombs upon areas occupied by the enemy.

LONDON, March 11.—British aviators of the naval air service yesterday made a raid over Belgium, dropping bombs on the airdrome and ammunition dump at Engel; the admiralty announces. Two fires were started. In aerial combats three enemy airplanes were destroyed and four others driven down out of control. All the British planes returned safely.

British trops conducted a successful raid last night south of St. Quentin, Field Marshal Haig reported today. They killed several of the enemy and took two prisoners and some machine guns.

German and British artillery are engaging in a terrific duel all along the British lines, despatches received from the front today stated. In a number of sectors the Boche gunners are deluging the British trenches with a hail of shells from guns of all caliber.

GERMAN BOAT STRIKES MINE, SINKS.

COPENHAGEN, March 11.—The Hindenburg, a large German ice breaker, struck a mine south of the Aland Islands Saturday and sank, according to the Dagens Hypeder. Several members of the crew were drowned.

ROME, March 11.—Austrian troops which apparently were making an attempt to cross the River Piave were prevented from doing so by the Italian batteries, which sunk rafts and boats in the river opposite Fagare, the war office announced today.

FOUR AMERICAN AIRMEN VICTIMS.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Two American naval aviators have been killed in an airplane accident in France, the navy department announced today. They were Andrew D. Skaggs, landsman for quartermaster, and Leo S. Harvie, boatswain's mate, first class.

Skaggs' home is at Newbern, Tenn., and Harvie's sister lives in Cincinnati.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, March 11.—W. J. Winter of Chicago, serving in the French aviation corps, was killed in an air fight Friday night. He fell within the German lines.

Thomas Hitchcock of Westbury, L. I., a member of the La Fayette Escadrile, disappeared while pursuing an enemy plane toward the German rear lines. He is believed to have been captured.

PERSHING SENDS LIST OF CASUALTIES.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

WASHINGTON, March 11.—General Pershing's casualty report today shows four privates killed in action, four severely wounded, twenty-one slightly wounded, four died from wounds, eight from disease and two from other causes. Casualties:

Killed in action—Privates Frank J. Osgood, Cook L. Fillingem, Francisco Disabatine, Otis D. Green.

Wounded Severely—Privates Joe E. Bush, John E. Frayne, Hancel Van Hoose, Charles Goodisky.

Wounded—Privates Antonie Kulig, Charles B. Sandridge.

Wounded Slightly—Corporal Edward J. Smith, Privates Charles A. Roberts, Floyd R. Leseman, Emery Wolfe, Henry Stedman, Elmer Murley, Corporal Henry W. Sawson, Private Walter E. Moore, Corporal Herbert L. Livingstone, Private Joseph Marevan, Chief Mechanic Sidney G. Land, Private Ben A. Kosse, Sergeant George H. Bradley, Corporal Hi G. Khiting, Privates Harold J. Perkins, Carl R. Hanson, Paul Nelon, Verd F. Smith.

Bolsheviki Sign Treaty With Finn Red Guard; Government Is Moved

TOYKO, March 11.—The cabinet at Peking has decided to despatch 40,000 Chinese troops to Siberia. Expenses of the expedition to the amount of 10,000,000 yen were authorized through the floating of a foreign loan.

TOYKO, March 11.—The government today introduced a bill in the diet authorizing the mobilization and requisition for war purposes of all factories producing war supplies.

The bill would place under government control all arms and ammunition factories, the construction of warships and airplanes, all fuel stores, clothing factories, fodder necessary for the army and hospital supplies. Conscription of labor to man these factories is also provided in the measure.

PETROGRAD, March 11.—The government is moving to Moscow as a first step in organization of resistance on all fronts, according to an official press announcement today.

It is believed it may be necessary for the Bolshevik government to fight both Germany and Japan.

The Bolsheviki congress has discarded the name "Social Democratic" and adopted the title of the "communist party," as it does not wish to have any similarity to the German party of which Philip Scheidemann is the leader in the Reichstag.

A treaty of alliance with the Finnish Red Guard has been signed by the Bolshevik government, offsetting the German treaty with the White Guard in Finland.

Details of German treatment of the inhabitants of lands which they have overrun continue to come in. In Finland the German police and military system is invoked against the people. The newspapers have been suppressed. Workingmen's organizations have been dispersed and hundreds arrested.

Many are reported executed in Esthonia, where even the Bourgeoisie have been strongly curbed by the Germans.

GERMAN FORCES MOVING FROM HOMEL

Smolny Institute reported heavy German forces moving from Homel toward Novozibkoff, which city the Russians are preparing to defend. Germans concentrated on the Orsha front have retreated.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Publication of a press report saying that Ambassador Francis and his Japanese diplomatic associate, Ambassador Muchida, were being detained by the Bolsheviki caused concern here today. There was no official confirmation of the report and most officials believed it was a mistake. However, they made very plain that any such action at this time would cause complications, the result of which could not be foreseen.

The last word received from Francis was that he, together with other members of the Petrograd diplomatic corps, were occupying a clubhouse at Volodga, 350 miles east of Petrograd, but that they "were not comfortable and might soon move to another point."

Officials stated today that there was no change whatever in the Russian situation. Under direct orders from President Wilson himself, officials declined to discuss the progress of the informal diplomatic negotiations. It is known, however, that Japan has renewed her suggestion

Threatens To Blow Up Bank in S.F.

Lone Man Hands Note to Cashier, But Flees: Had Explosive Ready.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—The police are scouring the city for an unknown German who threatened to blow up the Canton Bank, at Clay and Kearny streets, shortly before noon today, unless he was given $5000.

Entering the bank, the man approached the paying teller, Clarence B. May, and handed him a note which bore the following in printed letters, similar to those used by the C. C. C. of C. and Employees' Liberty League, threatening postal cards and letters which were sent to San Francisco police quarters and prominent business men recently.

"In my hand I hold a bottle containing five ounces of nitro-glycerine, enough to blow this building and everybody in it to eternity. Give me five thousand dollars ($5000) in currency, or we will all be destroyed. Fifty one hundred dollar bills, no larger. Do not cause suspicion, do not leave your cage, do not ask or answer questions, do not make an outcery for ten minutes after I leave. I am in a desperate condition and mean to get this money or cause destruction to all within.

"Reach" Your time is limited to comply with my wishes, so move fast and cautious."

Holding the note which was printed on blue paper of a good quality, May backed toward the telephone in the rear of the cage and as he reached for it the would-be desperado backed out of the door and ran up the hill toward Grant avenue and disappeared.

JELLICOE'S VISIT

COMBINED FORCES IN ATTACKS ON TEUTONS

Americans With French in the Lorraine Sector Make a Very Destructive Raid to East of Reillon; Deadly Work Done

DUGOUTS BOMBED AND TRENCHES TAKEN

U. S. Artillery and Infantry Show Their Mettle in Demolishing Enemy Defenses: Penetrate Foe's Third Line

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, March 11.—Troops holding the American sector north of Toul made a successful raid against the Boches early this morning. This was the first exclusively American raid without French participation.

PARIS, March 11. — American troops have made a bold raid into the German lines in Lorraine, the war office announces.

By HENRY WOOD.
United Press Staff Correspondent.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, March 11.—Franco-American forces in the Lorraine region executed the first American destructive attack Saturday east of Reillon.

Fifty Ohio troops and sixty French sappers, after heavy artillery preparation, charged sixty yards through No Man's Land, capturing all objectives.

While the American raiders furnished protections, the French sappers blew up wire entanglements, observations posts, shelters and caves. The Germans had retired before the attackers reached the enemy trenches.

The Franco-Americans returned to their own trenches after ninety minutes, with casualties of only four wounded.

Meanwhile, east of Neuvilliers and before Badonvilliers, two detachments—each containing one company of Americans and two companies of French—penetrated the German lines and destroyed three trenches. They took two Uhlans prisoner.

The poilus say they were forced to restrain the Americans from charging beyond their objectives.

GERMAN TRENCHES ARE DEMOLISHED

By FRED S. FERGUSON.
United Press Staff Correspondent.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, March 11.—American and French soldiers operating together conducted successful raids on widely separated sectors, demolishing German trenches at three points to the width of 100 meters and depth of 300 meters.

American artillery aided in the raids, completely demolishing one section of enemy trenches. No live Germans were encountered there. Elsewhere Boches who had taken refuge in dugouts and pill boxes were bombed and grenaded. Seven German prisoners were brought back.

The bombardment in preparation for the raids started at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon. American and French guns were massed along this portion of the front.

After the tremendous burst of fire in the first salvo the guns continued to rain shells upon the Boche first, second and third lines of trenches and all rear organizations, including enemy batteries.

When the infantry went over the top in one sector they walked across No Man's Land without opposition. They penetrated the German first and second lines and found nothing but a mass of wire, leveled trenches, smashed dugouts and debris.

As their orders specified that they return within a certain time, they obeyed and went no further.

GO BEYOND THIRD LINE OF TEUTONS

The men in another sector penetrated 150 meters beyond the German third line. Their total penetration was 240 meters.

They encountered some dugouts that had not been smashed by the shell fire and ran into nearly a dozen pill boxes which also were intact.

They shouted for the Germans to come out. The latter replied by firing at the Americans. They were given short shrift. Grenades and incendiary bombs were hurled into the German dugouts, blowing the dugouts and pill boxes skyward.

Passing between the second and third lines, more dugouts and unex-

OAKLANDERS TESTIFY FOR MRS. HOWE

family and Brooks and his wife, of Brooks' invitation to lunches and his promise to tell her about her husband's past life.

"I was so anxious to know; you don't know what it is to love a man with all your heart and soul," was her explanation for accepting the invitation.

"I am 36," she began her story. "Mr. Howe and I were married in San Francisco by Percy V. Long, a justice of the peace, and were later married again by Father Foley.

"I first met Will Brooks in San Francisco when I was taking care of his grandmother as a nurse."

Mrs. Howe then told of the acquaintance of she and her husband with Mr. and Mrs. Brooks, after Howe went to work in Oakland for the cash register company by whom Brooks was employed.

"Mr. Brooks was extremely friendly to me," she said. "When he helped me upstairs he always squeezed my arm until he almost crushed it. I don't know why he did so, but he did. I tried so hard because of my husband and he being engaged by the same company to get along nicely with him, and I always tried to act with propriety. He often asked me to go to lunch with him. I said I didn't want to go with him.

CAME TO HOUSE AFTER S. F. FIRE

"After the fire in San Francisco, Brooks came to our house and accepted the courtesies of our home one night. The next day Mr. Brooks asked me to go to lunch with him. Wallie (Mr. Howe) was in another room. Brooks said he would take me to my painting lesson in his automobile.

"When Mr. Howe came out of the room, he told me I might go. I thought Brooks did have something on my husband and my faith in him was somewhat shaken for the first time.

"We went to a San Francisco cafe. There Brooks told me about many things my husband did before I married him. I wanted to know if Mr. Howe had been true to me after I married him. He told me of different 'conquests' by Mr. Howe of different girls, and I was becoming more disgusted every minute. He said two of these girls were in San Francisco.

"I said, 'Do you realize what you are saying; that Wallie Howe is your most intimate friend; that you grew up together; that you know each other since you were eight years old?'

"Then I asked him: 'Do you know anything about my husband?' He said, 'No.'

"I pulled away from him and tried to get to a door. It was locked. I pressed a bell button, but there was no response. Again he took hold of me. I was very strong in my arms, but then I thought his strength would overcome me. I pulled away from him and asked of him if he knew what it meant to break up two homes, and pleaded with him to desist.

"Afterward he cried and begged me not to tell his wife. I made no response. When I got out I went to a friend's house and told her what had happened. I was afraid to tell my husband at once. I was afraid he would go and shoot the man.

TOLD HUSBAND ALL ABOUT IT.

"I told Mr. Howe later all about it and urged him not to do anything that would only cause a scandal, because someone would think I was in some manner to blame."

One day, she said, she and her husband passed Brooks on the street, and she remarked, "I hate that man." Her husband, Mrs. Howe testified, said:

"Not according to his story. He says you are trying to make love to him."

Further along in her testimony Mrs. Howe said:

"I told a friend in San Diego and he said: 'I know Will Brooks. He said you asked him to lunch with you and tried to lead him astray. But I know better. I know what kind of a woman you are and you wouldn't try to do anything like that."

At another point she told of a conversation with Mrs. Brooks in which she swore that Brooks was "as true as any husband."

Mrs. Howe then told of the stories circulated to the effect that he had invited her to lunch and had made improper advances toward her. Everywhere, she said, she noticed the effect of these stories. Former friends turned from her—women acquaintances talking in a group excused themselves and left at her approach—and several people questioned her concerning the stories.

"Then I went to Los Angeles and went to register at a hotel there. Three feet away from me was Brooks. I left there and went to another hotel. He glowered and sneered and smiled sarcastically as if to say, 'Well, I have accomplished my purpose.'"

At this point Mrs. Howe asked that she be allowed to come down from the stand because of physical fatigue. "May I stop awhile?" she asked.

Defense counsel asked permission to put another witness on the stand while Mrs. Howe rested, which was refused by Judge J. A. Allen. For a space of five minutes Mrs. Howe remained silent while her nurse administered stimulants.

"I want to go on, but I can't; I don't feel equal to talking or collecting my thoughts. I'm so tired," she said.

"Mrs. Howe, you seem to have told the first part glibly and freely; can't you go on?" asked Judge Allen.

Witnesses in numbers — by the dozens—are in Visalia, presumably to testify to Mrs. Howe's character, to her acquaintance with Brooks and with regard to Brooks' alleged persecution of the defendant, which the defense claims unbalanced her mind and led to the shooting. These witnesses include employees of the National Cash Register Company from Eastern States, both Brooks and Howe having been in that company's employ. Mrs. O. D. M. Gaddis of Kingman, Ariz., is here presumably to tell something of Mrs. Howe's girlhood in Arizona. Oakland and many California towns are represented among the witnesses.

Mrs. Howe spent yesterday resting in the comfortable schoolroom which is serving as her temporary jail. The first week of the trial had tired her and as she relaxed yesterday she knew that this week the supreme test would come. It is possible that even before today is over she may be called to the witness stand.

MRS. HOWE WOULD LIKE TO BE NURSE

To callers Mrs. Howe would not speak of the trial. She preferred to discuss the war, in which she showed a lively interest, and more than once expressed the regret that she herself could not wear the uniform of a Red Cross nurse on French battle fields.

Her husband, too, is fagged and jaded. He spent several hours with his wife, however, and early in the morning brought her the customary bunch of violets which he has taken to her room each day.

His power of endurance is quite as remarkable as that of his wife, for he is suffering from organic heart trouble as well as from the strain of the trial.

Friends of the Howe family say that he struck Brooks in the face in a Los Angeles hotel several years ago for alleged defamation of Mrs. Howe, regardless of the fact that he is a man of slight build and delicate mould, and that Brooks was a man of splendid physique and athletic build.

FRIENDS READY TO GIVE TESTIMONY

About twenty or thirty men and women are here ready to testify as to her honesty and reverse ratio to Brooks' alleged reputation for chicanery in his business dealings as well as in his alleged love piracies.

That his defections from domestic integrity were numerous and well known, is to be a part of the defense's fabric of justification of Mrs. Howe's act.

It is said that Howe's fellow employees of the National Cash Register Company have subscribed to a fund of $5000 to defray the expenses of Mrs. Howe's defense.

Witnesses to be introduced by the defense are Mrs. Rose Kennell of San Mateo Mrs. J. D. Banford of Stockton, Mrs. I. Freeman and Dr. W. S. Porter of Oakland, Mrs. O. D. M. Gaddis of Kingsman, Mrs. M. B. Hassinger of San Francisco, Mrs. T. G. Curran and Mrs. H. Pillod of Fresno.

CASE WAS DISMISSED.

The information against Henry V. Lomba, charging him with a statutory offense, was dismissed today on motion of the district attorney when the case was called in Judge James G. Quinn department to be set for retrial. The jury in the department of Judge Joseph S. Koford disagreed after the trial of the case last week.

Socialist Scores Diver War
Scheidemann Demands Peace

The International News Service presents herewith the full text of the sensational speech recently made by Phillip Scheidemann, leader of the German Socialist majority, in the Reichstag, in which he urged a "peace of understanding" and attacked U-boat warfare because it caused America's entrance into the war:

By PHILIP SCHEIDEMANN,

In a Recent Speech in the Reichstag.

[There are two parties facing each other today. One is of the opinion that within a few months the war could be ended by a smashing success; the other does not believe this. One demands peace by understanding; the other wants peace by force.

"History would designate as the grave digger of German power the statesman who would come back from this war without Longwy and Briey, without having seen to it that Belgium remains in our hands and the coast of Flanders is taken out of the English sphere of power, and that the Meuse line is so adjusted as to fulfill the requirements of our interests."

BASIS FOR FIGURES.

The calculations of the sword conquerors are based:

1. Upon the submarine campaign.
2. Upon the offensive power of the army.

Of the submarine campaign it was said in the memorandum of 1916 that it would be fully and completely successful within six months. I do not want to be credited with such nonsense as the assertion that the U-boat warfare has been without effect. By no means. Undoubtedly it is inflicting colossal damage upon England. Every Englishman feels it at his dinner table.

However, the most clearly visible "success" of the U-boat campaign is the entrance of America into the war. Had not America come in the Russian revolution certainly would have brought us peace long since.

And now? Now we stand, exactly as a year ago, before a decision of tremendous consequences. It is to be hoped the powers that be will not again be influenced by false prophecies.

SECOND FACTOR.

I come to the second factor of sword conquerors—the offensive power of the army. Suppose we do take Calais and Paris; for that, it is said abroad, is to be the object of the coming battles—suppose such a break through had completely succeeded, would that mean peace? I say no!

That is the awfulness of this war, that it goes on and on, despite the fact that both sides have long since realized that this conflict cannot be ended upon the basis of a great military decision.

We have overrun whole countries, we have chased foreign governments out of the lands they governed and yet we have no peace.

And if at length the youth of Germany and France were bled to death, and England and France were utterly beaten—would we then have peace with America?

A new factor has been lost sight of in this war; the change in the psychology of peoples. The progress of democracy has heightened the defensive power of the soul in an unfathomable way, both in our country and in the others.

SEES NO RISK.

Not in the remotest distance do I see the day on which we would say, "We are vanquished; we accept your conditions." But just as little do I see the day on which the French, the British and the Americans will say: "We are defenseless against Germany, we shall accept her peace terms."

If this is so, we should not put all upon one card—the card of the great final victory in the west.

What brutality, by the way, is manifested by the Pan-German press?

Listen to what the Deutsche Zeitung, this model sheet of the fatherland party says:

"In the circles that are filled with the thoughts of Wilhelmstrasse it is pointed out that a decisive military action in the west is not possible without loss of lives."

Loss of lives! Humans are as cheap as blueberries for these gentlemen!

[NOTE—Herr Scheidemann then spoke of the negotiations with Russia and denounced the anti-Austrian agitation of some of the Pan-German newspapers. His remarks on these subjects were fully cabled at the time and are therefore omitted here.]

To the government I want to say this—and I emphasize that I am free from all animosity—rid yourselves of such influences; make yourselves absolutely free from them and if you cannot do that, then you had better go. If you cannot bring about peace with Russia, go before you are swept away. Make an end of the policy of duplicity and camouflage!

Once an unmistakable word has been spoken about Belgium, the war stirring in England will cease. Hear what Snowden, an influential English Socialist, answered Albert Thomas to the latter's demand regarding Alsace-Lorraine:

NOT FOR LORRAINE.

That he, Snowden, could assure him that the entire British Socialist movement and the great majority of the rest of England's population would not be willing to see the war prolonged a single day in order to enable France to regain Alsace-Lorraine.

"Not for the sake of Alsace-Lorraine," says Snowden, "did 5,000,000 of our countrymen voluntarily take up arms; not for that has this country accepted compulsory military service."

It cannot be disputed that in the latest utterances of Wilson and Lloyd George the willingness to discuss peace is recognizable, and we want a peace understanding.

The Reichstag demanded it on July 19—demanded it unconditionally. The government put itself on the basis of those demands. The necessary consequences of these are self-evident.

Both sides must renounce illusions, further adherence to which would cost streams of blood. Peace will have to be made upon the basis of facts, correctly seen. And these facts are that neither we nor the others can enforce any kind of violatory plans.

There is being staged at this time the peculiar Flemish interlude (the German government's effort to separate and estrange the Flemings from the Walloons, with the ultimate object of splitting up Belgium). That is a western counterpart of Courland.

Hands off!

The full, honest, restoration of Belgium, also of her national independence, is our duty of honor.

We stand by what Bethmann-Hollweg said about this on August 4, 1914. I ardently wished the imperial chancellor had said with regard to Belgium, quite frankly and openly: "We are ready to give it back, upon the condition, of course, that our enemies on their part renounce their plans of touching Germany's territorial integrity."

GETTING NOWHERE.

As it is we are not getting anywhere. I am sorry I must say of the chancellor's speech that out of it speaks a future diplomat rather than a great statesman who saw it himself the task of bringing to the bleeding world the ardently longed for peace.

We must do everything to save those who are marked for the spring battles.

We must do everything compatible with honor and with the future of the empire to spare mankind new wholesale sacrifices. Nor must you forget this: The mood of the masses is very grave. The food difficulties with us are certainly not smaller than those in England and France.

The doings of the reaction in the Prussian Diet seriously intensify the explosive atmosphere. We must have full clarity about this.

Suppose the negotiations in the east fail and the expectations in the west are shattered—what then?

I do not want to dwell further on this thought, and will only say this: We Socialists will do everything for our people and country. But we will not think for a moment of sacrificing our skins for a government of which we might become convinced that it does not do its duty toward the people!

BOLSHEVIKI PREPARE TO FIGHT JAPAN

that the United States approve the general principle of a Siberian military demonstration and that this request also has the sanction of the British, French and Italian governments.

All of Siberia is declared by advices reaching Japanese sources here to be seething with discontent. The German prisoners of war are enjoying their freedom and are declared to have been reorganized as a military force under captured officers. There has been a renewal of outlawry in Vladivostok, it is stated, and the city is declared to be dominated by bandits.

LONDON, March 11.— German prisoners of war are reported to be fighting with the Bolsheviki against the Cossacks in eastern Siberia.

Advices received here today indicate that the Cossacks, under General Semenoff, had been compelled to retire after a brush with the Bolsheviki forces along the trans-Siberian railway west of Harbin.

The Bolshevik troops were equipped with considerable artillery and were evidently under competent leadership.

The possibility of German prisoners of war being used in the Far East was one of the reasons for the anxiety of the Japanese government. Japan feared that the Germans would be enabled to secure control of Vladivostok, and might even plan the invasion of northern China. The number of German and Austro-Hungarian prisoners of war in Siberia has been estimated at from 45,000 to 80,000.

Leon Trotzky was dismissed as Bolsheviki foreign minister by Premier Lenine owing to a quarrel over the German peace terms, according to a despatch to the Morning Post dated Saturday in Petrograd. Trotzky held that the peace had been extorted by force and that no law recognized promises made under duress as obligatory. Therefore, he is reported to have said it was Russia's duty to fight, if only by guerrilla warfare, and that the German treaty should not be ratified.

Premier Lenine, on the other hand, held that the treaty must be ratified and carried out on the theory that disastrous treaties do not necessarily annihilate nations, as Prussia had proved several times.

HARBIN HEADQUARTERS OF NEW GOVERNMENT

TOKYO March 11.—After a conference of prominent Russians at Peking, it was reported today that Harbin had been made temporary headquarters of the provisional Siberian government and that Prince Lvoff was mentioned for premier.

The first meeting of the foreign advisory council of Japan since the Russian situation became acute was awaited with intense interest. Some definite announcement of Japan's policy is hoped for. At present the air is full of talk of mobilization, but the censorship is most strict and officials are silent.

Intervention in Siberia is approved here, but America is hesitating, not wishing to run the risk of incurring united Russian hostility, according to belief in Tokyo.

The allies are negotiating now to reach an understanding as to whether the Russian situation compels an exhibition into Siberia and whether Japan should act alone or jointly with military forces of other allied countries.

Harbin, reported as temporary headquarters of the provisional Siberian government, is a Manchurian town at a junction of the Siberian railway, where one branch runs to Port Arthur and China and the other to Vladivostok. It has a population of perhaps 30,000, mostly Chinese.

PEKING JOINS IN WAR PREPAREDNESS

War measures were taken today, both here and at Peking. A bill providing for the mobilization and requisition of war industries and the conscription of labor was introduced in the Japanese Diet.

Meanwhile word was received from Peking that the Chinese cabinet has voted $5,000,000 to defray the expenses of an expeditionary force of 40,000 soldiers in Siberia.

The foregoing cablegram indicates that intervention in Siberia, in protection of allied interests, is close at hand and that Japan and China probably will cooperate. Japan is apparently taking measures on a large scale to meet any contingency.

PEKING, March 11.—China, in response to an inquiry from Tokyo, has signified her intention to cooperate with Japan in the protection of allied interests in the Far East. The Chinese war bureau has requested to arrange for the sending of two divisions to northern Manchuria. Japan will bear the expense pending the completion of a proposed American loan to China.

AWAITING WORD

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11. — No further action will be taken by the government following the order served late Saturday night upon twenty saloons in the vicinity of the Presidio by Assistant United States Attorney James E. Colston, it was announced today.

The order calls for the closing of all saloons and package liquore stores within a half mile of the Presidio. It was then found if the Presidential order was carried out in its absolute meaning that all of the saloons and retail liquor stores and hotel bars within a radius of one half mile from the Santa Fe building at Second and Market street would be included.

Instructions were then asked for in a joint telegram signed by Lieutenant A. T. French of the Military Welfare Commission and Colston sent Attorney General Gregory today. Nothing further will be done until a decision is received, and it is probable that the order will be withdrawn. It also will include the half-mile zone of Forts Mason, Funston and Miley by the present interpretation.

CHANGES CHARGE

The divorce case of H. D. Williams against Florence E. Williams, heard recently by Judge Quinn, will be up again on an amended complaint, permission having been today given the plaintiff to amend and charge cruelty, whereas infidelity was the main allegation in the complaint that was heard.

Mrs. Williams was a three-time loser in divorce suits brought against her husband, the case having run through all the local courts and to the supreme court. It is said to have been heard by more judges than any divorce case of record.

German Trenches Are Taken
Americans in Three Big Raids

pected pill boxes were encountered. The Americans, their leggings, pants and coats torn and ripped by the barbed wire, pushed forward. Before the door of a dugout some infantrymen, armed only with bayoneted rifles and pistols, shouted:

"Come out!"

The only answer was a revolver shot through a loophole. At that moment some grenadiers, running up, drew back their arms, took aim and let fly. There was a sheet of flame and the ground was shaken by the explosions.

A fraction of a second later there was no dugout—no Boches.

The pill boxes were handled the same way, though they were harder to crack.

When the raiders reached the German third line they found the demolition even more complete than in the previous two. There wasn't a sign of life.

They cleaned up the third line, making a thorough search for military documents and other bits of information.

SIGNAL RECALLS AMERICAN RAIDERS

From the American trenches a white rocket appeared. It was the signal to return. The gait in going back is whatever the men set for themselves.

The German barrage had now started, kicking up mad bursts of explosions between the Americans and their trenches. It was everybody for himself—to walk or run through the barrage, hop over the parapet and drop into his own trench.

The captain looked at his watch. It was just forty-seven minutes since the whistle had sounded above the din of artillery explosions sending the men over the top.

On another sector no dugouts or pill boxes were found intact. The raiders penetrated beyond the third line and captured two wounded prisoners.

American soldiers operating with the French in the section where five prisoners were taken in a third sector walked across No Man's Land without opposition, laughing and joking at the lack of enemy fire.

They cleaned up the enemy trenches in short order and were anxious to go on, but withheld when the German barrage started to fall. A sergeant shouted: "Get out of the way! Let a man run who can run!"

The Americans dashed back to their own trenches, their leggings and pants torn to tatters by the barbed wire entanglements.

With their barrage roaring ahead, the Americans started their march Bocheward, a steady, even stride. There was no running. The men marched as though on parade.

AMERICANS RESCUED FROM SHELL HOLES

They soon began encountering shell holes and several shipped in up to their hips. Their bunkies, with outstretched hands, aided in pulling them out.

The objective of one company was located in a shell-shattered woods, where nothing but splintered trunks of trees which raised their jagged limbs toward the sky in a mass of debris were visible.

Then a new noise was heard above the rumble of the barrage—the roar of the exhaust of a Boche airplane as it suddenly appeared above the raiders and swooped down toward the woods.

The rattle of its machine gun could be heard above the other noises as it swept so low that the Yankees, looking upward, could see the faces of the aviators.

The machine gun bullets clipped through the trees as the infantrymen raised their rifles and banged away at the plane.

Then our barrage became too hot and the airplane sailed into the sky and disappeared.

As they went over the second line a private slipped on something and kicked it out of his way. It was a German arm. Plastered against the trees, and even hanging from the limbs, were pieces of German flesh, blown there by the American artillery. The demolition was complete.

The four-day bombardment of American positions near the Swiss border ended yesterday afternoon when American gunners neutralized the work of the Boche batteries. Despite the unusual enemy activity on this sector, the American troops stood up under the cannonading in splendid fashion. Thirty-two German airplanes were engaged in observation work over the American lines.

WIN FRENCH CROSS FOR BRAVERY

The first official statement from general headquarters, printed in "Stars and Stripes," an army publication, recounts the activities of American troops under fire since March 1.

"The baptism of fire which already has been given to a few Americans will come to all. There is no doubt that the test through which the first troops came with such signal success will be encountered and passed with the same success by their brothers in arms in divisions still to reach the front."

The following New England soldiers have been granted the French Croix de Guerre for bravery on the Chemin des Dames front:

Lieutenant H. K. Davison, Chaplain C. Boucher, Sergeant G. Dover, Corporal F. Hurley and Privates E. Larkin, H. Eldredge, S. W. Miller and C. M. Sykes.

HUN AEROPLANE IS SHOT DOWN

By HENRY G. WALES,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, March 11.—A two-seated German aeroplane that was engaged in carrying out observations over the American lines north of Toul was shot down by French anti-aircraft guns on Sunday.

It was a big machine that had been camouflaged and was flying at a high altitude when fire was opened against it by the high-angle guns. Flying shrapnel was revealed by the puffs of smoke that burst around the plane.

Suddenly the aeroplane careened like a wounded bird and commenced to slide earthward. The German pilot tried to volplane into his own lines, but the machine had been too badly damaged. The aeroplane struck the earth near the American first-line trenches, falling into a shell crater, which caused it to overturn, hiding the big black Maltese cross, the insignia of German aircraft.

There was much air activity all day Sunday and the troops saw many thrilling contests high in the air, but found it hard to distinguish between friend and foe, so great was the altitude at which the engagements occurred.

American artillery has been carrying out a destructive and harassing-fire on the Germans' rear line and cantonments, occasionally diversifying the cannonading by dropping a few shells on the Boches' trenches.

American sharpshooters have been very busy, duels developing between the American and German snipers. In three instances the intensity of the Americans' fire compelled Boche snipers to desert their posts. There was the ordinary patrol activity during the night. A group of Americans was discovered examining the Germans' barbed wire and was fired upon but none of the men was hit.

The war department's new plan of issuing the casualties may be investigated by the Senate military committee. Senator New of Indiana today had his resolution calling upon the department for information referred to the committee, stating that he and other Senators had received many criticisms of the order.

BERLIN, via London, March 11.—German detachments penetrated the enemy lines in the Armentieres region northeast of the Meuse and brought back several prisoners and a number of machine guns, the official war office statement declared today.

LONDON, March 11.—The Turkish garrison of Hit retired twenty-two miles after the British took the city, it was officially announced today.

MOTION IS DENIED

Superior Judge James G. Quinn today denied the motion of the children of 93-year-old Susan Sanders for a retrial of the suit brought to compel them to maintain her. Judgment was given against the children for $30 a month when the case was heard some weeks ago by Quinn.

Mrs. Sanders has been for years making her home with one of the six children, Mrs. Lauretta White, in Oakland, who, when her husband's business failed and her two sons went to war, asked the other children to assist. They answered that they were each willing to give their mother a home if she would live with them.

When the case was first heard court was held on the sidewalk in front of the court house because the aged plaintiff was unable to go up the stairs to the courtroom.

WEATHER AIDS IN DEFEAT OF TEUTONS

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES AFIELD, March 11.—Superb weather continues along the British front today, with air fighting the most important activity.

The Passchendaele sector was the scene of considerable artillery fighting, following the sharp engagement there last week. The Germans appear surprised at the completeness of their defeat thereabouts.

Despite attempts at points along a wide front and rapid attacks against two points at the extreme limits of the bombardment area, they failed to gain a single advantage. With the exception of intense activity, gun duels, patrol encounters and trench raids, the situation is unchanged, but all are expectant.

From one end of the front to the other the allies hold high ground, with excellent points of vantage for observation of the German positions. This probably explains the enemy's determined local attacks, of which those in the Passchendaele salient were among the most stubborn.

Field Marshal Hindenburg demands that his troops seize territory for ground observation, as the allied planes are making sky-spying precarious. Likewise, from the British lines, but little movement behind the German positions escaped being spotted. The Britishers are prepared for all eventualities.

Take Your Medicines

Regularly This Spring—Hood's Sarsaparilla Before Meals—Peptiron After.

This combination is having wonderful success everywhere.

It is relieving rheumatism, expelling humors, restoring lost appetite, giving the glow of health to the cheeks, making faces bright and complexions clear, and literally giving worn-out, brain-fagged people new ambition and the strength of iron.

For it combines that most useful of all metals—iron—in a course of medicine that is peculiarly effective.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is made from an unsurpassed formula of blood-purifying and stomach-toning remedies, and Peptiron from pepsin, iron, nux and other blood and stomach tonics that physicians prescribe.

In cases where a cathartic is needed Hood's Sarsaparilla and Peptiron are very effectively supplemented by Hood's Pills, relieving billiousness, constipation and all liver ills.—Advertisement.

VINOL MAKES GOOD BLOOD

Positive—Convincing Proof

Many so-called remedies for anaemia are only so in name. Their makers are afraid to prove their claims by telling what their medicines contain.

The only way to be honest with the people is to let them know what they are paying for. Here is the Vinol formula. When the doctor knows what a medicine contains, it ceases to be a "patent" medicine.

Formula: Cod Liver and Beef Peptones, Iron and Manganese Pepionates, Iron and Ammonium Citrate, Lime and Soda Glycerophosphates, Cascarin.

Any doctor will tell you that the ingredients of Vinol, as named above, will enrich the blood and banish anaemia and create strength. When the blood is pure and rich and red, the body is strong and robust.

You can prove this at our expense because your money will be returned if Vinol does not improve your health. —The Owl Drug Co., Oakland, and at the best drug store in every town and city in the country.—Advertisement.

BRANCH Y. M. C. A.

Five hundred dollars has been raised for the establishment of a branch Y. M. C. A. for colored people in Oakland, according to announcement made at the North Oakland Baptist Church yesterday. A campaign to raise this sum was started recently and the central Y. M. C. A. of Oakland agreed to add a like amount or more to establish and equip a suitable place for the colored branch. The location will be decided upon and a secretary installed in the near future.

Rev. J. M. Brown is chairman of the finance committee which conducted the campaign. Attorney Lawrence Sledge, president of the colored Y. M. C. A. League, and L. A. Brown, the secretary, are largely responsible for the success of the movement to establish the colored Y. M. C. A. here.

"KITES" P.O. ORDERS; IS FINED $750

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—Accused of "kiting" money orders, which he put through local banks as coming to himself, in order to make it appear that his business was bringing in more returns than was actually the case, Joseph Cereghino, Pacific coast handball champion, was fined $750 today by Federal Judge Maurice Dooling, after Judge Bernard G. Flood, William F. Humphrey, president of the Olympic Club, and others, had testified in his behalf as character witnesses. He pleaded guilty to the charges.

According to the government complaint, Cereghino's business had been undermined by injudicious extension of credit to customers, and wholesalers who had sold goods to his grocery and butcher shop had started an investigation of his assets with a view to ascertaining whether or not further credit should be extended him. The postoffice department charged that he had been issuing money orders to himself as from fictitious persons, then endorsing them over to his bank, thus keeping a steady stream of money moving through his bank and through the postoffice, and giving the impression that he was receiving steady pay from "customers." His operations in keeping his money so moving had cost him $1750 in money order fees, according to the postal records, before it was discovered. His operations, say postal inspectors, had covered 14 months.

"This is a new method of frenzied finance," said Judge Dooling, in passing sentence. "Since the trouble seems to have been caused through injudicious extension of credit to the poor, I will assess a fine of $750, bringing the total of what his scheme costs him in payment to the government to $2500.

Solomon "Fizzle" as Father, Says Oakland Pastor

Rev. Frank M. Silsley speaking last night at the First Presbyterian Church on "A Remarkable Man Who Fizzled as a Father," said: "Solomon was a remarkable man as a ruler, administrator, builder and in wisdom, but failed as a father. And there are gifted fathers today who are fizzling. They are failing in psychology for their boys in that they give their boys no serious thought along the lines of educational and moral development. They give them a certain cash value consideration. They may want them to be smart, world successes but they trust their boys' development in character and soul to chance and accidental environment. They are not much more than physical fathers, for they have fizzled in being statesmen with constructive plans for their sons.

"We often face the paradox of a father being a great mechanical, commercial, business or professional success, but a colossal failure in building up his boy in the things of God and right, and lofty ideals and the fine turns of manhood.

"It is Solomon who said, 'Train up a child in the way that he should go,' but Rehoboam's life shows how his father failed as a disciplinarian. So many modernized conceptions of parental discipline are failures because they are not biblical. Among the varieties of parental discipline are the fathers who are too harsh and the fathers who are too easy. A thoughtful boy will not respect a cross, nagging father or one whose chastisements are furious abuses, nor will he respect very deeply a father who is an 'easy mark.'

"An irreverent, reckless father has the natural tendency toward the demoralization of his boy. Every boy is handicapped in the race of life whose father is godless, and who cares nothing for prayer and eternal things. The influence of a worldly, bohemian father over his boy is utterly negatived."

Sermonette prepared for The TRIBUNE by Rev. H. C. Shoemaker, pastor of St. James Presbyterian church:

"And he is the head of the body, the church." (Col. 1:18.)

The church is the body of Christ. No, I do not fully understand what that means, but some day we will understand. What is this church and of whom composed? In answering this I will say that Paul was and is a part of the church—one of its units and if we measure his spiritual character we will have the measurement of those who will have the measurement of those who make up the body of Christ.

Paul was a believer in the deity of Christ and in the efficacy of his shed blood to cleanse from all sin. Paul knew in his own life cleansing by that blood and the new birth by the holy spirit. Paul's life was surrendered to God. This is a brief statement of Paul's spiritual measurements and I can safely say that every person whose spiritual measurements approach those of Paul in every particular is also one unit in the church of Christ.

Yes, the standard is a high one, but God made it and I have no authority to change it. Yes, there is mercy. The psalmist says: "As the heaven is high above the earth so great is His mercy toward them that fear Him," but notice the statement, "toward them that fear Him." There is mercy for those who realize their need and diligently seek for it. There is positively no promise for any other.

Not every person whose name adorns a church roll is a member of the church of Christ's body. It could not be so. A majority of the church members of this world are inactive and seemingly void of spiritual life. Many churches are simply paralyzed by the weight of this mass of inactivity.

On the other hand, the church of Christ is essentially an active body. Active in working out the salvation of its own units and also active in carrying the message of salvation to all people everywhere who will receive it. This necessarily eliminated those who are inactive. Were it not so the body of Christ would be suffering from paralysis—a thing unthinkable, for He is a living Christ and His body must be alive, active and strong for time and eternity.

THE MODERN MINISTRY.

The line between the ordained and the unordained ministry has been drawn by man alone. It is purely arbitrary.

Each disciple gets his commission from One who only has authority. All laying on of hands and rites of consecration may be confirmatory and helpful, but are not essential.

The most inspiring spectacle of today is the march of democracy to kingly power by the way of sacrifice and service.

Exit the monarchical theologies, archaic symbols, despotic assumptions, the sacredness, of priests peculiarly. Enter the brother, the servant, the minister. There are no "Princes of the Church," only servants.

To teach is as holy as to preach. To edit a newspaper, write books, sweeten politics, drain swamps, fight bacilli, is sacred business. The man who introduces the Golden Rule into the commercial life of today, is an evangelist of as much, if not more value, than Billy Sunday.

The great ambition, the one adequate to satisfy man's divinest possibility, is to become a minister after the pattern of Him who went about doing good, and the place to do good is in our home, our street, our ward, our town, our place of business.

WELSH PRESBYTERIAN.

At the communion service the minister, Rev. O. R. Wilhams, said that there were many ways by which we could come close to the Master but that the sacrament was the one institution of the church that brought us nearest of all to the fellowship of Him who died that sinners might have life. It was not only a feast of fellowship but also a feast of healing. We could have fellowship at other feasts, but there was no healing except at the cross of Calvary.

FIRST M. E. CHURCH.

At the First Methodist Episcopal church on Sunday morning, Harry O. Hill, southern leader of the war work of the Y. M. C. A., spoke on the activities of that great organization in the interests of the men in the service at home and abroad.

In the evening, Dr. John Stephens, the pastor, preached on "How Christ Won a Woman With a Past," the third in the series on "The Victories of Christ." The congregational singing and special music by the choir helped to make the evening worship of interest.

FIRST UNITARIAN.

Sunday at 11 a. m., Rev. Charles Pease of Sacramento preached at the First Unitarian church, Fourteenth and Castro streets, speaking on "The Mission of the Unwise." Rev. Pease was for many years a Congregational minister, but for the last four years pastor of the Unitarian church of Sacramento.

Wednesday evening, March 13, the minister of the church, William Day Simonds, will give an illustrated lecture on "Berlin—And the Psychology of Russianism."

An interesting introductory address will be given by Lawyer D. V. Mahoney on "Experiences in the Court Room." Music will be furnished by Mrs. Adelle Swett.

CURRY RECOVERS

SACRAMENTO, March 11.—Congressman Charles F. Curry, former secretary of state, who has been seriously ill in the East, has written to Emmett Phillips of Sacramento concerning his illness. He asserts he has been very ill, but says he now is rapidly convalescing and will soon be completely recovered.

He announces in the letter that he intends to "stay on the job" in Washington and will rely on his friends at home to make his election campaign.

FUNERAL OF J. J. WHITE IS HELD

Funeral services were held from St. Mary's Cathedral at 10 o'clock this morning for J. J. White, former Oakland postmaster and for fifty years a prominent resident and business man of this city. White died Friday at the family home, Fifteenth and West streets, following an illness of less than a week. He was a native of Ireland and was past 79 years of age.

The deceased came to California from Australia. His first year in California was spent in Amador county, the gold rush being then at its height. He moved from Amador to Oakland and since that time Oakland was his home city. He was a member of the firm of Rice & White, one of the old-time Oakland butcher firms and for thirty-five years was in business in the old City Market. He retired from active business ten years ago.

White was active in county and state politics. He was for many years chairman of the Alameda County Democratic Central Committee, and also served numerous terms as chairman of the Oakland City Democratic Central Committee. He was co-worker in Democratic politics with Warren and Will English, W. W. Foote, Thomas Fitzgerald, Frank Moffatt and the other old Democratic war horses. He was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention which nominated Grover Cleveland for the presidency, and after Cleveland's election was appointed postmaster of Oakland.

White leaves a widow, Mrs Mary White, three daughters and a son. The daughters are Mrs. B. F. Lewis of Fresno, Mrs. Philip Dibert, Mrs. Charles Beck and Miss Katherine White, the latter three of Oakland. The son, Will Basil White, is now a San Francisco resident, but was formerly prominent in Oakland and Alameda county politics, and headed the Oakland City Democratic Committee at one time.

White was highly esteemed for his business integrity, his loyalty to friends and his charitable work and many kindly acts. The interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

TRAVELERS TELL OF RUSS CHAOS

Travelers who have just arrived here from Russia have brought strange tales of the disorder and chaos prevailing there. Passengers on the Dutch steamer Koningin der Nederlanden, which arrived in San Francisco Bay yesterday, tell of how, while bound for Manchuria to enlist Chinese government aid in the Bolshevik cause and carrying 5,000,000 rubles for propaganda purposes, a mission of Bolshevik leaders was taken from a Tran-Siberian express at Chiati and murdered by armed Cossacks, who made off with the money. Alfred Tellam, a metallurgical engineer, employed by an English company, said the Cossacks came through the train after removing the [illegible] and announced that all their papers and money had been confiscated and that the leader of the party, a former member of the Duma, had been killed while the others were to be shot as soon as they had given up further information wanted by their captors.

"As soon as the armed Cossacks learned that our party was traveling on American passports, they returned several things they had confiscated and apologized, and said that as Americans we were entitled to every consideration."

Tellam said that the Chinese government has cancelled the concession given the former Russian government for operating more than 1000 miles of the Trans-Siberian railway through Manchurian territory.

Philip Parker, a merchant of Yokohama, stopping at the Palace Hotel, San Francisco, tells of how travelers leaving Vladivostok, are prohibited by the Russian authorities from taking more than 500 rubles cash out of the country, and as the Japanese require every person coming from Russia to have 250 yen, or 2250 rubles, before being permitted to land in Japan, many embarrassing situations have developed and American consuls and bankers have been called upon to loan cash to travelers held up for not having the required sum.

How a stowaway Russian youth forced her to harbor him in her cabin for two days and nights on the voyage here from Batavia, was told by Mrs. J. Bosien, a Russian passenger on the steamer Koningin der Nederlanden. He was finally discovered by the ship's officers, along with a second stowaway. Both said they were followers of the Bolsheviki. They were landed at Honolulu to be sent back to Russia.

5 ELEPHANTS' CHARGE CROWD AT VENICE, CAL.

VENICE, March 11.—Elephants, five in number, held undisputed right of way in Venice streets, when they broke from training quarters of a circus wintering here, and dashed among the throngs at the beach. People ran everywhere to escape the onrush of the big beasts, who were charging down the walk, trumpeting. After an hour's freedom, they were captured.

COLONEL SAYS WIFE WAS 'NAG'

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—"She nagged me for twenty years and was a bar to my promotion on two different occasions through the trouble that she caused at various army posts," says Colonel Melvin W. Rowell of the Fifteenth Infantry, now stationed at Nogales, Arizona, in a petition for divorce filed today against his wife, Henrietta.

"She caused trouble at Fort Des Moines in 1906. At Rio Del Rio, Cuba, in 1907, I was forced to send her back to the United States because she objected to my rides with children. She accompanied me to the Philippines in 1904 and 1905 and went to Fort Ethan Allen, New Jersey, where she was a troublemaker."

The complaint further says that Mrs. Rowell was a bar to his promotion to staff positions and another raise in grade by her quarrelsome and nagging disposition. Mrs. Rowell is now in Newark, N. J.

BANDITS IN CHINA ROB AMERICANS

PEKING, March 11.—Two American engineers, Nyl and Pursell, have been robbed and captured by bandits near Yeh Sien, in the province of Honan. A Chinese assistant also was taken prisoner.

The party was carrying a large sum of money with which to pay surveyor parties. An escort of twenty soldiers resisted the bandits until their ammunition was exhausted when the party surrendered. Two of the Chinese escaped and reported the outrage.

ST. PAUL, March 11.—It was learned that the Purcell, one of the two American engineers reported to have been robbed and captured by bandits in China, was A. J. Purcell, formerly of St. Paul, Minn., at the offices of the Siems-Carey Railway and Canal Company here today. He has been engaged in surveying work for which the company has contracts with the Chinese government, it was said.

Though officers of the company said there was no one in their employ named Nyl, they expressed the belief that this name has been confused with that of G. A. Kyle, formerly of Portland, Ore., who has been in China for several months.

LIQUOR SCHEME IS BROKEN UP

PORTLAND, Ore., March 11.—Federal officers today arrested six men who are charged with operating a liquor dispensing scheme through the check room of the Portland Hotel, the city's leading hostelry. The liquor, it is said, was put on trains at San Francisco, packed in suitcases, which were scattered among passengers' baggage. On arrival of the trains here, the liquor suitcases were sent to the Portland Hotel checkroom.

Those arrested are: William Bradley, hotel porter; William Brice, driver of the hotel bus; H. S. Barker, runner for the hotel; A. A. Sykes, a "red cap" porter at the union depot; W. J. Hornville, train porter, and Steve Malcolm, a passenger. Twelve suitcases filled with liquor were confiscated from the train.

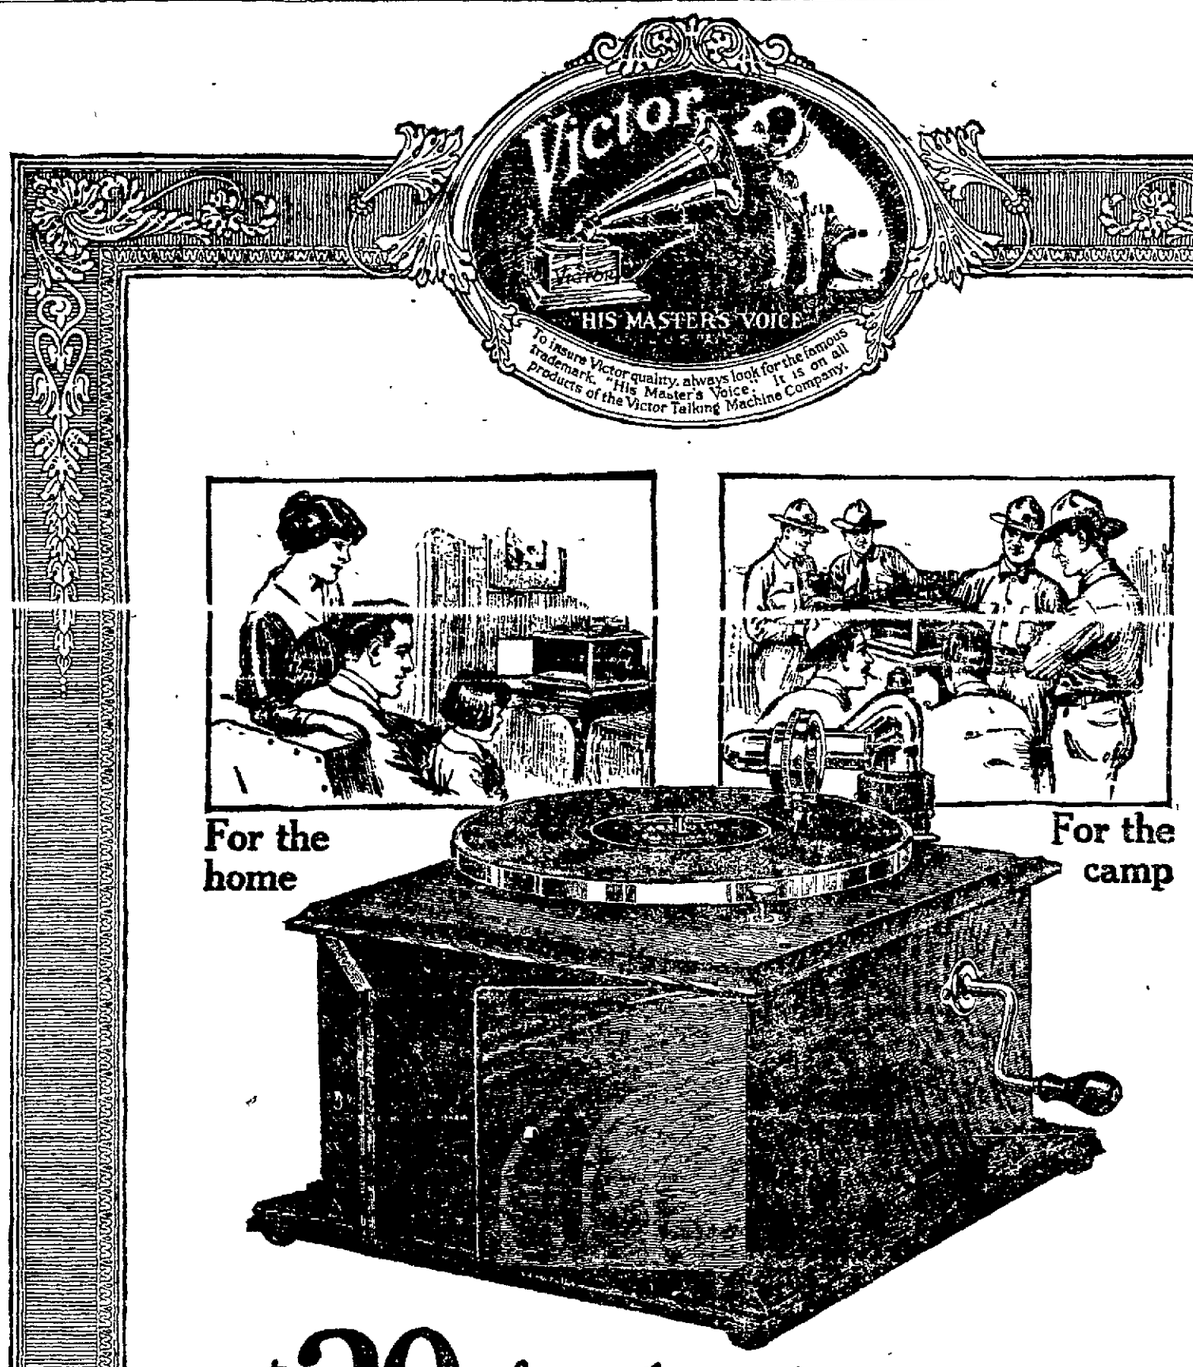

FOR Y.M.C.A. DRIVE

A spring offensive for 500 new members will be launched at the Oakland Y. M. C. A. tomorrow evening with a dinner and membership rally. The offensive is to be known as "membership camouflage" or a war game to be played by the members of the Oakland association. A large relief map of the west front has been prepared and is now in the lobby, which will show from week to week the progress made. The membership has been divided into five allied camps represented on the map by miniature soldiers, guns, aeroplanes and field artillery with all the accoutrements of war.

Each division is to go "over the top" on a certain day of each week. On this day there will be a short drive of two hours for members under the direction of the general and major-general of the division which is taking the offensive.

The United States division will be led by Dr. G. T. Pomeroy and W. H. Groat. The Italian division will be led by Commissioner F. F. Morse and Attorney M. L. Hagen, the Belgian division by R. J. Bitterman and C. H. Binkley, the British division by P. W. Morehouse and O. W. Shattuck. The French division by Attorney Ben F. Woolner and W. B. Townsend.

Harold H. Blote, a member of a French ambulance unit before Verdun, will be the guest of honor and principal speaker at the dinner.

LIVERMORE'S MAYOR IS ON ALIEN LIST

In the discovery by federal agents today that Fred C. Lassen, mayor of Livermore, was an unintentional enemy alien, there has been uncovered an angle of the alien enemy registration work which, it is declared, may cause upheavals all over the country, and has provided Uncle Sam with a knotty problem that is causing official Washington considerable thought. Incidentally Mayor Lassen, against his will or his sentiments, has been classed with the country's enemies, and all on account of a technicality.

Lassen is a loyal patriot of Alameda county. He has been active in the work of patriotic organizations, and has been prominently identified with all government projects in aid of the war and the national and state defense program work. He has always understood that he was an American citizen through the naturalization of his father, John Lassen. But today it was discovered that he is, as a matter of fact, a German, his father having taken out only his first papers.

John Lassen, the senior member of the family, was a native of Germany. His two sons, Fred and Henry, were also born in Germany, but they came to California in the early '80s and settled in Alameda county. Fred Lassen, who later became mayor of Livermore, had always been told by his father that the latter had become naturalized. No one ever questioned this statement, and Fred Lassen has always believed it.

When the alien registration came up the elder Lassen could not produce his naturalization papers. He declared he had become a citizen in San Joaquin county, where he first settled on coming to the state, but search of these records failed to reveal any trace of the naturalization proceedings. Government agents thereupon broke to Mayor Lassen the startling news today that he is an enemy alien.

Scores of other Germans are alleged by federal agents to be residing in this section under cover of an alleged naturalization which did not take place. Just what action is to be taken is not yet determined. The problem has been passed up to Washington for instructions. Lassen is in San Francisco today in conference with the federal authorities.

CAN RAISE HOGS

An amended ordinance introduced by Commissioner F. F. Jackson in the city council today designates a new district, far remote from any residence or settled neighborhood, where the Boy Scouts of Oakland may raise hogs in their campaign to reduce the high cost of living. The district is at the head of Dimond Canyon and not on any watershed. Commissioner Jackson visited the camp last week and was satisfied that the quartering of hogs there would in no manner be detrimental to the health interests of the city. The ordinance was

MARRIED IN OGDEN

News has reached Oakland of the marriage last week in Ogden of Mrs. Edna Mildred Webb of Oakland to Edmond Melvin Brown of New York City. Mrs. Brown is well known in Oakland as the widow of Arthur Webb, who for a number of years was the champion blue rock trap shooter of the bay section. Brown is a prominent mining man and stockbroker of New York city. The couple will make their home in the east.

Takes Issue With Rail Head Says Long Wharf Facts Misstated

Edwards Writes to Max Thelen

Open issue of the facts alleged to have been submitted to Director of Railroads William A. McAdoo by Julius Kruttschnitt, head of the Southern Pacific Company, in support of an effort to have the Oakland long wharf retained for Federal purposes, is made today by W. H. Edwards, commissioner of revenue and finance, in a letter to President Max Thelen of the State Railroad Commission, in which he declares that the Federal authorities at Washington have been given misleading information.

"We are anxious to do all possible to help win this war," he writes, "and if after Mr. McAdoo knows all the facts he should decide the long wharf should remain, we shall offer no further objection. But I believe Mr. Kruttschnitt's letter is quite misleading, at least in reference to wharves which he claims the city is to build on or before November 23, 1918. The city of Oakland is not contemplating spending any money on her waterfront in building wharves and docks of any kind and will spend only such money as allowed in the budget for usual maintenance, which for this fiscal year for our entire harbor amounts to less than $150,000."

Commissioner Edwards in his letter to Thelen reviews the conditions under which the original grant of the long wharf was made to the Southern Pacific Company. The track extension along the long wharf comprehended in the 50-year franchise grant of 1910 and included in a compromise arrangement between the city and corporation by which the wharf was to be removed by November 23, 1918, and the company's business transacted over their own wharf which was to be constructed in the interim.

Edwards declares that the company has made no effort to fulfill this portion of the agreement. He alleges further, in the letter, that the present long wharf obstructs the entrance to Oakland's western harbor, and the entrance to the contemplated 52-year lease on a portion of the waterfront which promises to give the city a model deep-sea terminal. In concluding his position in the matter, as representative of the attitude of the city administration, Edwards says:

"If the Government thinks the Southern Pacific company would be spending too much money in completing their work as required in their franchise, I am sure the city council would gladly work in co-operation with the government and allow the Southern Pacific Company to build a pier of sufficient length to handle their business at this time and complete the 4020 feet, and other details when convenient or necessary. But I believe if Mr. McAdoo knows our needs as we see them, he, like us, would insist the long wharf be removed as per original agreement."

Edwards' letter is inspired by a letter written by Kruttschnitt to McAdoo in which it is set forth, among other things, that the City of Oakland is contemplating building wharves on the portion affected by the long wharf. This Edwards strenuously denies.

Conference is being held in the office of Mayor Davie this afternoon over the proposition.

PASS ORDINANCE TO CLOSE STREET

Raising the question that the city has no legal right to close Petersen street for the purpose of leasing land to the Scandia-Pacific Gas Engine Company to enlarge its plant for making war material, Commissioner Frederick Soderberg today opposed final passage of the closing ordinance.

The ordinance was passed despite his opposition. It was stated by representatives of the company that $100,000 will immediately be spent on improvements. The lease is to run for 25 years, the company to pay $2000 for the first 25 years and $1000 additional for the last five if the land is retained.

In presenting his opposition, Soderberg claimed that "it is not shown that the proposition is for the good of the public welfare; that it is particularly for the benefit of the company; that there was other land adjoining the plant that could be purchased but at higher cost, and finally, that the granting of the lease is a violation of the city charter."

Soderberg takes the stand that the land is waterfront land and that such a lease should have been auctioned.

The entire proceedings were passed upon by the city attorney's office.

TELL OF GERMAN-AMERICAN FUNDS

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Witnesses before a Senate committee today gave further testimony regarding the German-American alliance, which it was shown at Saturday's hearing, collected funds for the relief of German war sufferers before the United States entered the war, the money being turned over to former ambassador von Bernstorff, and at least a part of which finding its way into the hands of Dr. Bernard Dernburg, chief German propagandist in this country.

Joseph Keller of Indianapolis, Indiana, and Percy Andrease of Chicago, both active in the alliance, were first on the list of witnesses.

AD. CLUB GUESTS

Tomorrow will be "Technical High School Day" at the Advertising Club luncheon at the Chamber of Commerce, when students of the high school tell "how they would advertise a city." The affair will take place in the ballroom of the Hotel Oakland. More than 400 guests have been invited.

Captain Joseph E. Caine, secretary of the Chamber, will be chairman of the day, and addresses will be made by P. M. Fisher, principal of the high school; Captain Donald Johnson and Arthur Woods. The high school band will play.

PERMIT GRANTED

Despite the protest of Commissioner Soderberg of the street department, the city council today rescinded public proceedings started for improvement of the unpaved portions of West Sixteenth street and voted to grant a permit to a paving concern to do a section of the work under private contract.

SEMI-CONSCIOUS

J. Felix, 270 Fifth street, was picked up in the street in a semi-conscious condition after being hit by a street car at Eighth and Franklin last night and taken to the Receiving Hospital, where he was found to be suffering with a possible fracture of the skull. He has been unable to explain how the accident happened.

STRICKEN ON CAR.

Mrs. Celia Murphy, 75, aunt of John Garvey, State purchasing agent at Sacramento, living at 1830 Austin way, Berkeley, was stricken with apoplexy on a Grove-street car at Thirteenth and Washington streets today. She was removed to the Central emergency hospital and later sent to her home. Her condition is serious.

ESTATE SUIT IS ON

Trial of the suit to set aside a conveyance of property valued at five thousand dollars to Mrs. Elizabeth Jewett Boyd, widow of Thomas Boyd, former minister and before his death an Oakland attorney, was begun before Superior Judge William H. Waste this morning, the plaintiff, Helen B. Camp, administratrix of the estate, alleging that deceased was of unsound mind when the conveyance was made. The defense will offer to show that deceased preached a sermon in an Oakland church a week before the money was paid to the wife by an order on the bank and that he preached again a week afterward.

SLOW TRAINS MEAN LOSS TO GROWERS

Farmers of California, confronted with a serious hindrance to proper shipping of produce through train shortage and probability of only slow freight service for the coming season, have appealed to Director General McAdoo of the nation's railroads, asking that arrangements be made for fast trains east for fresh vegetables and produce. If these cannot be had, say the farmers, they will be forced to abandon plans for planting crops on 75,000 acres of California lands.

The suggested schedule is: Nine days to Chicago, fourteen days to New York, a corresponding schedule for points between Chicago and New York, and fifteen days to Boston.

The committee consists of:

W. Q. Wright, chairman, 731 Merchants' Exchange building, San Francisco; F. T. Ilsey, George F. Pettigrew, G. Scalmanini, William Kessner, R. Durbin, W. L. Cobb, E. H. Crane, R. P. King, D. F. Lane, E. Hogeland, J. N. Teague, John Hettebrink, L. L. Asher, F. G. Kelly, C. N. Kelly, L. S. Ripley and R. P. Duncan.

The statement reads:

"The total eastern shipments of these products approximate 25,000 cars annually, about 75 per cent of which is distributed east of the Mississippi river.

"Prior to this season the service rendered by the carriers has, as a rule, made it practical to deliver our products in all markets, even to Atlantic coast points, in good condition. But for several months past, because of delays in transit, our vegetables have arrived at destination in bad, and, in many cases, worthless condition, and have sold for very low prices, in many cases far less than the transportation charges.

"This has caused not only loss to us, but the absolute waste of valuable and necessary food products. This condition can only be corrected by putting in effect immediately a maximum transportation schedule for fresh vegetables.

"The urgency for immediate decision is apparent, as it has been fully demonstrated that it is impractical to submit these highly perishable products to unreasonable delay in transit. The schedule presented is the outside limit of safety.

"This indstry is at stake. While it is relatively unimportant from a commercial standpoint in comparison with other and larger enterprises, it is of vital importance as a question of food production and conservation, in which the people of this country are directly concerned."

Dock and Deck

The [illegible] has been spoken 258 miles southwest of the Golden Gate bound for this port from Sydney, Australia, with a cargo of copra. She is out 123 days today, and was thought to be lost. When she was spoken by the Dutch steamer Konigin Der Nederlanden, Captain Haasnoot of the steamer stated that the schooner was flying signals of distress, and he sent off a boat load of provisions, tobacco and a fresh supply of water. Otherwise all on board are well, and they should reach port within twenty-four hours as they now have a fair wind. The steamer comes from Batavia bringing 5000 tons of merchandise and 93 passengers. Most of the cargo will be unloaded at the Western Pacific pier, Oakland.

Another of the Alaska Packers steamers left Oakland Harbor, for a winter's cruise before going to Alaska. She was the steamer Nushagak, under command of Captain Anderson, and is taking a cargo of merchandise to Honolulu, and will return with sugar. It has been rumored that the sugar cargo will be used by the company's cannery fleet, and will be transferred to the different vessels now loading at Oakland for Alaska. These craft have already received their coal and lumber, and now are awaiting other material.

The steamship President arrived from Honolulu on her last voyage to that port and will again go on the Puget Sound run from this port. She brought a full cargo of sugar and tropical fruits, besides 53 cabin passengers, under command of Captain Cousins, who reports speaking two square-riggers on March 9 off the Farallon Islands, and the ship Marian Chilcott bound for Honolulu 6 miles off the same place.

SCHOONER SAGINAW IS PURCHASED.

The Charles Nelson Company has purchased the steam schooner Saginaw, from the Saginaw Steamship Company and will operate between Oakland and Puget Sound for the Sunset Lumber Company. She carries a cargo of 900,000 feet of lumber, besides fitted for passengers and towing.

Motor schooner Mount Ralnier, which arrived here February 12 for repairs, started for sea again yesterday but was compelled to return on account of engine troubles. She is en route to Callao, from Columbia river with lumber but came here for repairs.

Grays Harbor has shipped 22,229,000 feet of lumber to California during the month of February. It was carried by 29 vessels, showing a large increase over previous months.

ARAPAHOE BRINGS COAL CARGO.

The ship Arapahoe, under charter of the Western Fuel Company, arrived at their bunkers, foot of Market street, Oakland, this morning from Nanaimo, in tow of the tub Tatoosh. She brought 3157 tons of coal, which is the third large cargo received here during the past few days. The Arapahoe was formerly one of the German interned ships which was seized at the outbreak of the war.

There was 3,084,000 feet of lumber brought to this port today from northern ports and double that amount is on the way, due here within a few days. As the weather along the coast is rough, with southerly winds, incoming craft will be delayed several hours on their journey. The heaviest wind reported is on the northern California coast, blowing at the rate of 35 miles an hour with moderate seas.

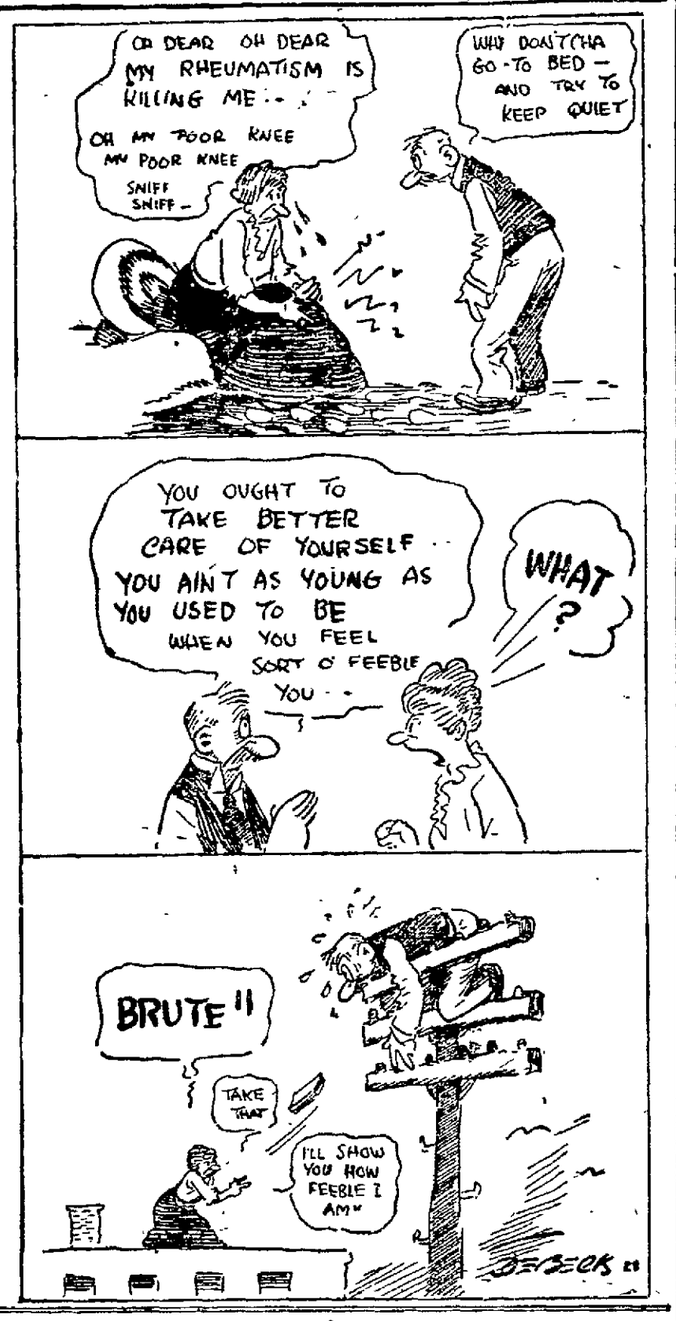

Change of masters registered at the United States Custom House: Captain H. C. Thomas, steamer Governor; Captain A. Hendriksen, steamer Frank D. Stout; Captain J. Krimphoff, steamer Farragut; Captain O. Hansen, steamer Homer; Captain Charles Kruger, steamer Century; Captain G. Moerman, steamer T. G. Condare.

CHARGES CRUELTY

The divorce suit of Mary Schomig against Adam Schomig is being heard by Superior Judge James G. Quinn today, in which the plaintiff alleges that her husband, who, she says, has clear property yielding $200 a month income, struck her when she was in a delicate condition and expressed the wish that she and the baby would "get in a fire."

She says he complained that she was "not as good as his first wife." Mrs. Schomig is asking for $100 a month.

MARRIED LIFE

TWO FILE ARTICLES

According to articles of incorporation filed in the office of County Clerk George E. Gross, the number of new manufacturing enterprises being launched in Oakland is not being retarded by reason of war conditions. Articles of incorporation were filed today by the Coast Fire Brick Company, for the manufacture of products of magnesite, silica and chrome ores and clay, including tile and crockery. The company is capitalized for $22,500, and the incorporators are A. Pregulman and C. E. Hall of Oakland and S. A. Myhre of Berkeley.

The Western Glove Company, a $25,000 corporation, organized to engage in the manufacture of gloves, filed articles of incorporation today, with C. C. Threlkeld, O. E. Bartlett and Rhoda J. Threlkeld as directors.

SEEKS DAMAGES

The damage suit of Hortense Gyle against the Wing Ching Lung Company, storekeepers on Washington street, in which the plaintiff asks for $2357.50 compensation for injuries alleged to have been sustained when she fell down a stairway at the rear of the store, is being heard today by Superior Judge T. W. Harris.

The plaintiff testified that she went into the store to buy some pongee displayed in the window, but before buying she telephoned her sister to get her sister's opinion, and as she stepped back from the phone, which was stationed on the rear wall, she fell through the opening, sustaining a broken wrist, cuts and bruises. The injury occurred in April, 1913.

SERVICE MEET

The war service league district club will hold a meeting this evening in the auditorium of the Franklin school. A patriotic program and some snappy talks will be given.

The war gardens committee of the league has made a very favorable report on the attitude of lot owners toward permitting their property to be used free by responsible parties who will undertake to produce garden truck, etc., to aid in the conservation of food.

R. R. James, the chairman of this committee, is anxious to receive offers of lots from owners and also requests from people ready to cultivate them.

There will be a meeting of the district league in the auditorium of the McChesney school Tuesday evening of this week to be addressed by Colonel William Harvey Higgins of South Carolina.

NIGHT SCHOOL FEE

Proposed taxation of more than 10,000 students who attend the special night classes in the different schools in the city for the purpose of raising additional revenue for maintenance, is being considered by the Board of Education, it developed today with the announcement that the debating team at Technical High night school will debate the subject tonight with the Fremont High School teams.

That the levying of an assessment of 10 cents a night on an average of two nights per week on each pupil would raise approximately $2000 a week without hardship to any of the students, many of whom are adult, is the proposition.

JURYMAN 'CARVER'

Juryman L. L. Woody is acquiring a reputation at the courthouse as "The Carver." Last week Woody made a very fine gavel of manzanita and rosewood, which was presented to Bailiff Al Smith of Judge Quinn's department.

Today he made a similar presentation to Bailiff D. R. McCabe in Judge Waste's department. And, incidentally, the secret is out as to where all the very nifty foot-rests that have been making their appearance in the jury boxes come from. From the same "Carver," who does them at his shop, 2118 Channing way, when the jury business is slack.

MAN FOUND DEAD

A. J. Toft, an aged flagman for the Southern Pacific Company, was found dead by the police this morning in the old Badger home at 807 Seventh avenue. Death was probably due to heart disease. Considerable mystery appears to attach to the presence of the aged man in the house.

Neighbors saw him enter the domicile and some hours later notified the police.

SEEK WINE VALUE

The value of dry wine was up for discussion today before Superior Judge Joseph S. Koford in connection with the suit of W. H. Lawson against Christian True to collect $6000 commission on the sale of 300,000 gallons for the defendant. The plaintiff alleges that he sold 100,000 gallons and had a buyer for the rest of the lot, but the defendant refused to deliver and demanded a greater price than agreed upon. The defendant alleges that only 6500 gallons were sold and that she has never received an accounting for the sale. The matter was up on preliminary argument and the trial set down for next week.

WOULD SAVE $100

Commissioner F. F. Morse, in a communication to the city council today recommended against the appropriation of $100 for placing a picture of the city hall on the cover of city directories for this year. He stated that he believes all money possible should be saved for war conservation propositions but recommended that as soon as possible a substantial advertising fund be created.

NO DANGER FROM JAPAN, SAYS ENVOY

That it would be against Japan's own interests to hold a naval base in Mexico, and that, beyond this point, there is no chance of the Nipponese or any other power gaining a Mexican foothold, is the statement of Colonel M. Perez Romero, Mexican minister to Japan, and brother-in-law of the late Francisco Madero, who is visiting in the bay region preparatory to his departure for Mexico, where, it is said by his friends, he is to receive the portfolio of foreign affairs.

Colonel Romero is a brother of Madero's widow, and was Carranza's first envoy to the United States. During the past three years he has been accredited to the Japanese and Chinese governments. He declares that not a word has been heard in the Orient regarding the "Japanese base" rumored from time to time to be planned in Mexico.

Romero is staying at the Palace Hotel, across the bay, for a few days, prior to starting for Mexico. He will not discuss his reported promotion.

AGAINST POLICY.

"It would be against Mexico's own interests to give any power a foothold in our country," said the ambassador. "Weakened as Mexico has been by internal strife we cannot afford to give anyone a toe-hold in Mexico. All we want to do is to be left alone. The Mexican Government has worked wonders in the last few years and it is steadily progressing, restoring normal conditions. The misunderstandings that occurred between the United States and Mexico not long ago have been removed entirely and the best feeling now exists. A flash between the United States and Mexico would have been a calamity and yet the two nations were brought very close to war simply through misunderstandings that were quickly dispelled when the light of truth was thrown on them."

That Henry Lane Wilson, the American ambassador to Mexico could have saved Madero from assassination was the charge made by the murdered presidents' brother-in-law. Wilson, said Colonel Romero, was working hand in glove with the Huerta contingent to oust Madero.

"I was with Wilson on a day when he could have prevented the murder of Madero by simply sending a telegram to President Taft," said Romero, "but he did not want to interfere. Wilson knew about the plot."

The colonel is traveling with Mrs. Romero, their children and a governess. Mrs. Romero is a sister of Colonel B. Garcia Lozano, presidential chief of staff in Mexico City. The Romeros will remain in San Francisco several days before proceeding south.

AMERICANS KILLED IN LONDON RAID

LONDON, March 11.—The bodies of Mrs. Lena Guilbert Ford, an American poet, and her son, about 30 years old, were discovered today in the wreckage of a house destroyed in the German raid last week. In this house twelve persons were killed.

Mrs. Ford formerly lived in Elmira, N. Y. She was author of "Keep the Home Fires Burning," one of the most popular of the English war songs. She has made her home recently with her son, Walter, in the northwestern section of London. Her mother, Mrs. Brown of Elmira, was extricated on Friday from the wreckage of the house and taken to a hospital seriously injured. The Ford home and five adjacent houses were wrecked by a bomb.

GET MORE TIME

Soldiers and sailors who have been buying Southern Pacific lands on the installment plan need not worry about their payments until the war is over. They have until nine months after that time before they have to resume their obligations, according to B. A. McAllister, land commissioner of the company. This applies both to interest and to principal.

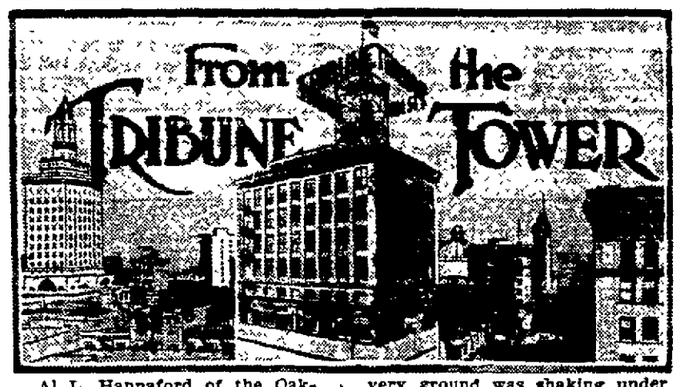

JACK PICKFORD, MOVIE STAR, IS ON WAY TO WAR

LOS ANGELES, March 11.—Jack Pickford, brother of Mary, "America's sweetheart," and a motion picture star in his own right, is on his way to war today. Pickford, not yet of draft age, has enlisted in the aviation corps and is on his way to new York to begin training. At the station to bid him Godspeed were his bride of a year, Olive Thomas; Mrs. Charlotte Pickford, his mother; his sisters, Mary and Lottie; their husbands and a galaxy of cinema people famous on the screen. Young Mrs. Pickford broke down when her husband left, and had to be rushed home in Jack's fast racer.

RAIN ENDS REVOLT PLANNED BY PAIR

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., March 11.—Federal officials here today arrested Orville E. Enright and Louis Pickens, both of Ellis county, the former a country school teacher, on indictments charging them with conspiring to start an armed revolution against the United States. The two-man revolt was to begin with burning railroad bridges in Ellis county in an effort to block transportation, according to the officials, but a heavy rain came suddenly and made useless the straw they had to kindle the fires.

Enright is believed to have been associated with William Madison Hicks, president of the so-called People's Peace League, under indictment on a disloyalty charge.

Al L. Hannaford of the Oakland school department has a fund of kid stories stored up from years of experience at the educational game. The best of the lot is the composition, which one youth, Jimmie Black, wrote on the subject of "chickens." Jimmie's effort was as follows:

"A chicken is a very large bird. It can't fly because it has too many feathers. It has three toes pointing east and a bind toe going west which keeps it from tipping over. It also has a point on its face which it eats with."

STARTLE HIM, AND CURE HICCOUGHS.

Police Lieutenant William F. Woods, the Socrates of the Northern Police Station, has a cousin in the British expeditionary force. In a recent letter his relative tells this story on another relative, in his division.

"Bill was trying to pot a certain Hun over in the other trenches," writes the "Tommy," "and was having a hard time. A big barrage was kicking everything up, and you couldn't hear anything half the time. The very ground was shaking under the explosions. And here was Bill, trying between puffs of smoke to get a bead on that Hun. Every time he'd just get his rifle sighted he'd hiccough, and spoil his bead. Then would come more shells, and he'd wait. Six times it happened, and every time he'd hiccough and spoil his aim.

"'Henry,' he says, turning to me, 'for God's sake do something to startle me!'"

RICE, MR. MERRITT—BUT NOT SAWDUST!

Food conservation may be all right, and it may be a laudable ambition to save rice—but that's no reason why cheerful friends should not throw sawdust at a bride and groom a rice substitute! Ask them!

The couple arrived last night at the St. Mark hotel and many friends followed. No one had any rice. They looked around. Now, Abe Leam had just brought in a nice fresh box of sawdust for the buffet floor. There was a rush of friends to the sawdust and two seconds later the floor of the hotel lobby resembled a prize ring. The bride and groom didn't resemble much of anything except a sawdust pile.

Leam bewails the sawdust. It cost him a dollar.

CHANGED NAME—BUT NO PUBLICITY.

She told him that his people should be her people, for she believed that in his people flowed the blood of true humanity and that they were struggling toward the light; but that his name that was his father's name could not be her name, for it was a Teuton name, and upon it the curse of mankind. So great is her patriotism that for it she would put out the fire that burned in her soul for him unless he would go to the courts and have it changed to harmonize with the nomenclature of the land that furnished sinews for the cause of truth and right. And because in his heart there was a love for her that was greater than all else, he went and was made American in every sense.

But for the sanctity with which Superior Judge Joseph S. Koford regards a confidence, the name of this Oakland society girl, who is not like Jessica was, could be heralded to the world. The name of the girl did not appear in the record, nor the true reason for the change, and only the judge and the man and the lawyer know it. The applicant applied to have the name by which he is known made his legal name, he having of his own accord cast off the name his father bore. And so the new name that is acceptable was written in the book and only he knoweth it that receiveth it, and an Oakland patriot who loves her well but who loved her nationality better, must go unheralded and unsung.

INK SHRAPNEL SCARES KING OFF

Former President Joseph H. King of the Chamber of Commerce did not take his usual airplane flight a week ago Sunday; and thereby hangs a tale that reached the light only today. For while King and J. H. Strubel, owner of the airplane, are patriotic, still patriotism and paint don't mix, according to their ideas.

For out in Berkeley are two young inventors, Ed Christy and Charley North. These have perfected a new anti-aircraft gun—guaranteed, they say, to scatter shrapnel around an airplane as high as there is atmosphere to fly in.

Saturday they wrote Secretary Fred Boegel of the Chamber of Commerce, asking him if he thought King would mind being "peppered" for the good of their experiment.

"We have some smoke shells fixed up with black paint instead of shrapnel," wrote the inventors. "They are perfectly harmless. You see, the smoke will tell us where they burst and the paint would register the hits on the machine and drivers.

"If Mr. King would fly anywhere in sight of Berkeley, we would like to try out our gun. It would help us locate him if he painted a black cross on the bottom of the machine."

Boegle turned the letter over to the parties concerned.

There was no flight.

SUSPECT IS FREED

After being taken into custody for alleged seditious utterances, following services in the First Unitarian church yesterday, A. C. Campbell, an aged resident of the King's Daughters' Home, was found to have recently undergone an operation of his skull and he was freed by the police with a reprimand. Campbell was heard to make remarks considered out of patriotic propriety by Clifford Ellis of 1813 Vine street, Berkeley, and H. J. Swobada of 540 Tenth street. They took him to the police station and he was questioned by Acting Inspectors Gannaw and Kcefe.

POLICE BARRAGE

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—A barrage of bottles, chairs and flatirons was dropped in front of the police morals squad, when it began a raid on a rooming house at 82 Perry street. Despite the fusillade, Mary Cary, alleged proprietress, four women inmates and sixteen men visitors were taken into custody today. The Cary woman was held on a charge of conducting a vice resort within five miles of a military reservation, and will appear today before United States Commissioner Francis Krull.

ON WAY TO ARIZONA.

Miss Ethel McAvoy, a graduate of the Fremont High School, and Miss Josephine Garbardine are on their way to Tucson, Ariz., to become telegraph operators for the Southern Pacific Company. They are both graduates of the S. P. Agency and Telegraph School.

Build Health on Solid Foundations

A body kept going on temporary tonics sooner or later comes down with a crash. Strength must be renewed, health regained, by rebuilding the body from its very foundations—the red blood cells.

You can't keep a jaded horse going for long on whip and spur. You can't repair a broken-down house with paint. Neither can you repair a worn-out body and brain with a temporary tonic.

The tired horse needs, not whip and spur, but hay, oats, rest, and kind treatment. The broken-down house needs new clapboards and shingles. The worn-out body needs new blood-cells, muscle-cells, nerve-cells, and brain-cells.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan

"The Red Blood Builder"

A temporary tonic, or "pick-me-up," increases your pace for awhile as the whip makes the tired horse spurt. But the strength it gives you is only false strength, and after the effects of the temporary tonic have worn off, you learn to your sorrow that you are weaker and more jaded than you were before you took it.*

You can't build up your body that way. You must build it from the ground up. You must build it from the red blood cells. You must revise your whole system of living—eat right, breathe right, sleep right, and exercise regularly. As a logical aid to Nature in her work of rebuilding your blood, rebuilding your body, take Gude's Pepto-Mangan, "The Red Blood Builder."

Gude's Pepto-Mangan is not a temporary tonic but a real blood food and reconstructive. It builds your blood from the very foundations, because it supplies the red blood cells with just the elements they need. It helps to create lasting strength and force. Yet it also is a tonic in the best sense of the word, since it increases the appetite, improves the color, and tones up the whole system.

FRIENDLY WARNING: There are many imitations of Pepto-Mangan on the market, but you can be sure of getting the genuine if it bears the name "Gude" and is put up in the bottle and sealed package as pictured here. Ask for it by its full name—"Gude's Pepto-Mangan." For sale at all drug stores.

Pepto-Mangan is made only by

Some Food for Thought.

People everywhere are beginning to realize that it pays to buy medicines that have an established reputation as they are most trustworthy and most dependable. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is one of them. It has been in use for almost half a century. From a small beginning its sale and use has extended to all parts of the United States and to many foreign countries. When you have a cough or cold give it a trial and realize for yourself what an excellent medicine it is. For sale by Osgood Bros. Drug Stores.—Advertisement.

OAKS ARE WATER-BOUND IN THEIR BOYES SPRINGS CAMP

PERCY AND FERDIE---A Load on Their Shoulders, but One Off Their Minds - - By H. A. MacGIL

Duffy Lewis and His Sailors Will Play the Oaks Saturday and Sunday at Camp

By Carl E. Brazier

Not a hit was made by Duffy Lewis and his Mare Island Sailors against Del Howard's Oakland pitchers yesterday; neither was an error made by any of Del Howard's Oaks behind any of these pitchers. Sounds pretty good for a starter to real news from the Boyes Springs training camp, doesn't it? And it might sound better if there were any way of getting away with it for more than these few lines, but when you come to going into details of that theoretical no-hit, no-error game you find that there was no game and that the reason Oak pitchers did not allow a hit was because they did not pitch, and the reason the Oak fielders did not make an error was because they did not get out on the field.

The Oaks are water-bound in their Boyes Springs camp. After missing only one day of work in the first preliminary week of work, the Oaks awoke Sunday morning to find the rain pouring down at a rate calculated to make up for all the dry weather. J. Cal Ewing and Secretary Herbert McFarlin went up to camp in the hope of getting a peep at the Oaks in action against Duffy Lewis' Sailors, but the rain continued right through the day and there was no action. As soon as Ewing and McFarlin took the afternoon train home, the storm broke, but it was too late for a game. Today it is raining again and the Oaks may not get anything but gymnasium, swimming tank and dining and card table exercise for the next few days.

THREE GAMES THIS WEEK.

Duffy Lewis makes his home in Boyes Springs and with Mickey Shader, known to all the fans from San Rafael to Uktah, slated to pitch for the Oaks, yesterday's game promised to draw the biggest crowd to the resort that has been around there in the memory even of Colonel Brady. But early in the day the word went out that the game was off and except for Ewing, McFarlin and Oakland scribes, the only strangers in town were Tom Cahalan and a pair of assistants scouting for ball players for the sugar town team in the coming summer league.

That game with Duffy Lewis' boys was too good a treat to miss and right away everybody at the springs began to request that the game be booked next week. As a result McFarlin is today arranging for the game to be played next Sunday. Better than that, he will probably arrange two games—one for Saturday and one for Sunday—giving the fans two chances to look at the Oaks and Sailors. Roxey Middleton will take half of the squad to Crockett next Sunday, but Boss Howard will keep plenty of men on hand to give the Sailors a good battle.

KRAUSE VS. ST. MARY'S.

In the meantime the Oaks are booked to play St. Mary's Phoenix team at Boyes Springs Wednesday if the weather is favorable. The St. Mary's game should be a good battle with Harry Krause, a former St. Mary's boy, slated to pitch against the collegians. Ted Brandon, who looks ripe for faster company, will be on the mound for the Phoenix outfit. The rest of the Oak lineup will probably be the same as originally announced for yesterday's game—Murray, catcher; Allen, first, Christensen, second; Arlett, third; Croll, short; Middleton, Smale and LeBourreau, outfielders.

There's another reason for Arlett shifting to third than just the experiment of seeing whether he can adapt himself to that position. Christensen's arm is bothering him a bit and rather than risk hurting the arm by long throws across the diamond, Howard figures that Chris can get plenty of action at second for the present. By Saturday's game Chris will probably be right and then he may go over to third with Arlett back on second.

OAKS HOME MARCH 23.

The three games of the coming week will be the only games at Boyes Springs outside of daily practice games. For the Oaks will break camp a week from next Friday, and will come home to finish the training season. They have several games booked in the last week and a half of training. Following is the schedule of games booked for the rest of the training season:

Wednesday, March 13—St. Mary's Phoenix at Boyes Springs.

Saturday and Sunday, March 16 and 17—Duffy Lewis' Sailors at Boyes Springs.

Wednesday and Thursday, March 27 and 28—Chicago Cubs at Oakland.

Sunday morning, March 31—Chicago Cubs at Oakland.

Tuesday, April 2 is the opening day of the 1918 Coast League race, with the Oaks booked against the Seals in the opening series of the year.

SMALE MAKES IMPRESSION.

Bobby Smale, the local 17-year-old outfielder who made such a hit in the inter league play, has made a great hit in the Oaks' camp. But this does not mean that Chick Hawks, LeBourreau or Leifer are out of the running. Hawks is suffering from a cold that is holding him back a bit in getting into shape, but he expects to be ready to step when he goes to Crockett next Sunday with Captain Roxey's bunch. Smale has made a hit with Boss Howard in his work in the outfield in batting practice, for Howard says that he has never seen a fellow of Bobby's age who could judge fly balls so well and get under them so fast.

Indian Lockhart, the new pitching importation from Mendocino county and Arizona and way-stations arrived in camp yesterday and all the boys were mighty favorably impressed by him. He is about as husky a youth as there is on the club and is of just about the same build as Hack Miller. Hack, by the way, is about ten pounds lighter than last year and the winter work in the shipyards seems to have done him a lot of good.

CAMP GAMES THIS WEEK.

Along with Lockhart, Pitcher Ray Kremer and Catcher Honus Mitze put in an appearance at camp. With Speed Martin and Happy Goodbred due in camp today, and Rube Gardner due by the middle of the week, Howard now has plenty of players to split up into two full teams. As soon as the weather dries out, Howard will start the daily practice games between two squads from the camp and then it will not take long to get a line on the material on hand. For Martin, Prough, Krause and Shader have been pitching enough during the winter so that they are in shape to shoot them up at the batters and it will be a case of the players facing high-class pitching right from the start.

Colonel Brady was in the same chair and in the same spot and in the same position with the same old pipe as a year ago when Cal Ewing blew into the clubhouse at the Boyes camp yesterday. But Colonel insisted that he had moved quite a bit in that year, and he proved that he had had his ears open by unloading a bunch of new stories for the boys. Rudy Lichtenberg was around, helping to make the guests feel at home; and Frank Klein, the new boss of the hotel, did not waste any time finding out that he already knew Cal from the days of baseball before the earthquake. Everything around the resort looks just about the same as a year ago, so the Oaks have evidently done no damage in the week they have been in camp. But in another few weeks the visitor will not recognize the place for a stretch of lawn between the hotel and the depot will give the resort a far different appearance.

GROUNDS IN GOOD SHAPE.

The grounds are in good shape and with their natural drainage facilities, it does not take more than an hour or two of sunshine to dry them out after a heavy rain. So the chances are that the Oaks may get into a practice game tomorrow; at any rate everything looks rosy for the game booked with St. Mary's on Wednesday. There were many Oakland fans planning to make the trip yesterday and the Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday games will probably draw a good delegation from the bay. The roads are all perfect highway from San Rafael to the camp, taking the Black Point cutoff road just outside of San Rafael.

Ralph Croll's cut finger has healed up in great shape and he is anxious to get into action. But the bad weather did not hurt him; it gave that finger a little extra time to heal and when he does get a chance, Ralph will know that he can get in there and cut loose without feeling that he must go easy on the injured member.

HARD FIELDING PRACTICE.

Rod Allen has made a hit with Del Howard by the way he goes after a low ball around first base. Del says that Allen has the most natural fielding ease of any young first sacker he ever saw. About all the actual baseball practice that the boys had so far has consisted of fielding practice. Saturday Howard had them out for a three-hour session of fielding practice. Howard did the infield batting and lined up his infielders for some real work.

Climbing the hills and scrambling through burned over manzanita that Roxey says scratches and also leaves traces of dirt behind, were the most strenuous forms of exercise last week. But the leapfrog game in which the squad is split into three sections and started on a leap-frog race from the home plate to center field and back has drawn out this remark from Hack Miller and some of the boys—"And they say that it was hard work in the shipyards." That leapfrog game looks easy; try it for that distance.

VETERAN PLAYER DEAD.

PATERSON, N. J., March 11. — Jim McCormick, 60, veteran baseball player and famous pitcher of the Chicago White Stockings in the early '80s, died at a hospital here yesterday from liver disorder. In his baseball days he was a team mate of Rev. Billy Sunday, Mike Kelly, the $10,000 beauty, and "Old Silver" Flint, under the management of Captain Adrian Anson. He and Kelly were considered the best battery in baseball at that time.

VISITACION VALLEY RUN.

The Pacific Athletic association has named Visitacion valley for the annual cross-country run. The run will start on March 30.

Many Games Called Off By Weather

Baseball Fans and Players Are Disappointed by Rain of Yesterday.

Many ballplayers had a sad awakening yesterday morning when they rubbed their eyes and peered out the windows to see the rain. The boys all went to the hay on Saturday night with the intention of being out on the diamond Sunday and tossing the ball around, but the early hours of the morning saw the rain clouds drift over Oakland and send down a torrent that made practically every baseball diamond in the bay cities unfit for play.

It was not only the young bushers that were forced to find other means of recreation, but it was the big leaguers as well. Over at San Francisco the fans were figuring on seeing the World's Series famed Eppa Rixey perform on the mound for the soldiers of Fremont when they would meet the St. Mary's Phoenix at Recreation Park. The grounds were too wet for the game, and they may yet get their chance to see the Philadelphia star in action next Sunday.

The fans of San Leandro and Fruitvale were next to luck because of the rain spoiling their plans for the day's enjoyment. The final game of the series between the Fruitvale Natives and San Leandro which would have decided the semi-finals for the Alameda county championship was called off because the San Leandro grounds resembled a swimming tank. The postponement of this game will not kill any of the interest in the outcome of the series as the fans are bent on seeing the teams finish their argument which is now even with each team having a win to its credit. If the weather permits the game will be played next Sunday and the following Sunday will see San Leandro battling the Melrose Merchants who won the championship of the East Bay Cities Midwinter League Class B division.

The TRIBUNE All-Star and Moore Shipyard game at Fruitvale was also Called off for the same reason as the other two big games. The two teams will try to get together on next Sunday. The Allandale Merchants failed to make the trip to Niles, as did the Oakland Commission Merchants to Newark. A number of other games between young players were also postponed, and about the same program which was mapped out yesterday will be followed out next Sunday.

Fifty-Three Weeks of Eastbay Games Finally Broken

Here's something for the Chamber of Commerce book! Yesterday's postponements in all baseball games scheduled around the bay marked the first break after fifty-three consecutive Sundays of baseball for the east bay fans. Files of the Oakland TRIBUNE show that east bay fans had baseball every Sunday during the month of March, 1917, either of the Coast League training camp or independent variety. Games were played the first Sunday in April and when the Coast League season opened the first Tuesday in April, not a Sunday game was missed for any reason on the bay lots.

The Coast League closed the last Sunday in October. The first Sunday in November the East Bay Winter League opened and there was never a Sunday passed without some league games being played. After the mid-winter league season closed independent games were played each Sunday during February and up to yesterday. On February 17 the weather man threatened to put the crusher on all the games but the Swain All-Stars vs. Crockett at Crockett saved the day for the east bay district and kept up the run of consecutive Sunday baseball until yesterday.

February 25, 1917, was an off-day for all baseball teams around the bay. For fifty-three consecutive Sundays [illegible] has always been Sunday baseball on the east side of the bay until yesterday when all teams were idle.

JIM ARCHER SIGNED.

PITTSBURG, March 11. — Jimmie Archer, former Chicago National and Detroit American catcher, has signed a contract to play this season with the Pittsburg National club, it was announced yesterday. He was given unconditional release by the Chicago club last year.

Bartolomei has been elected captain of the Martinez team in the place of Fred Weeks who will go to fight for Uncle Sam. George Hongger will be another member of the Martinez team who will leave shortly to join the colors.

Crockett Will Be Solid For Oaks This Year

Prough, Martin, Middleton and Christensen Are Four Good Reasons.

Crockett is out to stay on the summer baseball map. Not content with winning The TRIBUNE pennant in the winter league race, the sugar town boys are determined to have something to say about who shall carry off the summer honors. Not only that, those Crockett fans are determined that other fans than those who go to Crockett shall know that they are on the baseball map.

Today, Tom Cahalan is gracefully retracing his hints that he might retire as manager of the Crockett club and with the assurance that he will have the support of the sugar refinery company, Tom is planning a strenuous campaign. First of all comes the big baseball rally tomorrow night at which G. M. Rolph, head of the California and Hawaiian Sugar Refinery Co., will be given a chance to catch some of the baseball enthusiasm of the sugar town; second comes Cahalan's quest of players for his summer club; third comes a game next Sunday between a Crockett club and a bunch of Oaks led by Major Roxey Middleton; and then comes a big campaign to have Crockett depopulated on the first Sunday of the Coast league season.

SOLID FOR THE OAKS.

In former years Crockett fans have been like those of other interior towns, divided as to their Coast league favorites. But this year Crockett is solid behind the Oaks. Here's the reason: Bill Prough and Speed Martin, Oakland pitchers, pitched the Crockett boys to the championship. Roxey Middleton hit the first ball pitched to a Crockett batter for the season over the fence for a home run and started himself on the road to fame in the sugar town; and Roxey is field captain of the Oaks. Harvey Christensen plugged up the hole in the Crockett infield that looked as though it might be the one big weak spot in the club, and Harvey looks due to have a good chance to stick with the Oaks. There are the four reasons why Crockett is solid for the Oaks.

Tom Cahalan arranged with Cal Ewing yesterday for a big delegation from Crockett to take in the first Sunday morning game played on the Oakland lot and tickets will be put on sale this week for the big excursion from Crockett. Cahalan figures that he can get enough for a big special train and says that his gang will be on hand early to grab off a whole section of the grandstand for that Sunday morning game between the Oaks and Seals, April 7.

FAST GAME FOR SUNDAY.

Cahalan was on hand at Boyes Springs camp yesterday, partly because he wanted to see a ball game, partly to scout for Crockett ball players for the summer league, and partly to make final arrangements for next Sunday's game at Crockett. Roxey Middleton will have a fast delegation of Oaks to take to the sugar town with Speed Martin and Bill Prough as pitchers. Middleton, Hawks and Gardner will be the outfielders; Christensen, Perry, Clayton and Croll will be the infielders, and Murray will do the catching. This will leave Howard just about enough to make up a team to meet the sailors at the camp.

Jimmy Steele and Bob Muller were along with Cahalan yesterday to help him in his job as scout, and they showed him the trail, opening the doors, clearing a space for him in front of the cash register, and lining up all the gang from the surrounding counties when Tom said that he would spend some money.

MEETING NEXT FRIDAY.

Cahalan has been given assurance that the town of Crockett is solid behind him in his effort to turn out another winning team and he is not going to waste any time. Tomorrow night all the fans in town will be out to hear the prospects for the coming season, and then Crockett will be off at a pace that promises to make the other teams in the summer leagues step some.

Next Friday night is the time of the meeting for the Central California and the Alameda County leagues. At this meeting by-laws, schedules, and additional clubs for the two leagues will be considered at this meeting. The Maxwell Hardware club rooms will be the place of meeting.

Shipbuilders Will Start Their Athletic Activity At Auditorium Tomorrow

Feature Boxing Bouts Along With Music, Wrestling, Etc., On Big Program

By EDDIE MURPHY.

The sport-loving fans and fannettes of the bay cities will be called upon tomorrow night to show if California will be able to boast of a Shipbuilders' Athletic League that will rival that which is now organized in the Northwest. At the Oakland Municipal Auditorium tomorrow night the Shipbuilders' Athletic Association formed by the shipyards on the east side of the bay, will stage its first of a series of big events in the way of an athletic carnival.

All that the fans will have to do tomorrow evening to show if they want to enjoy the many sports, such as boxing, baseball, racing, hockey, basketball, etc., will be to go to the Auditorium tomorrow night and witness the big athletic carnival and let the boys know that they are to be given the support of the public. There is not the least bit of fear that the first effort of the boys will be a reason for them to get discouraged. All about the bay the big athletic carnival is being discussed, and now ironworkers on the San Francisco side of the bay want to get into the association.

A special meeting is called for the Spalding fan room tonight for the com- [illegible] that nothing has been overlooked for tomorrow night. At this meeting a representative of the San Francisco Union Iron Works will be present and probably will ask for admittance of that plant into the association.

VARIED PROGRAM OFFERED.

But at the big athletic carnival tomorrow night there will be everything in the way of entertainment for the public—boxing, wrestling, singing, music and minstrels. All these are on the program for the first show of the Shipbuilders' Athletic Association, and all will be reeled off by the best talent that can be had around here.

The boxing show will bring before the fans many of the favorites of the ring who have been performing regularly in them at the Emeryville and San Francisco arenas. The entire card spells "action" and the boys are sure to carry it out. Cliff Wixon's and the Yosemite training quarters were busy all day yesterday with the boys doing their training and with a few minutes of light workout tonight, they will all be ready to step into the ring and put up the fights of their lives.

AROUSE TRANSBAY FANS.

Moose Taussig announces that the Harry Pelsinger and Sally Salvador bout which is one of the best on the card, is causing much talk in San Francisco and that many fans have planned to make the trip across tomorrow night. For more than a week the two 125-punders have been in training, which they completed yesterday afternoon with sparring matches with other boys. Sally Salvador claims to be in great trim, and looks every bit of it. He has been working at the Union Iron Works for over a year and the labor has been an aid in keeping him in shape. He promises to give Moose Taussig's battler a merry time, and although this is not carded as the main event, it is causing the biggest talk.

"Sailor" Bill Schaffer of the Union Iron Works needed to do very little training for his bout with "Battling" Joe Moore of the Moore shipyard. Schaffer, like Salvador, has been working at the yards for some time, and now and then would keep in shape by working out at one of the local training quarters. Schaffer was at the auditorium seeing that things were being put in shape for the show, and he was wishing that it was then time for the bout with the colored boy. Schaffer is not looking for any easy time with Moore, as he has been advised by some of his fellow boxers that this fellow Moore, while in training, looked to be a fellow who should give any of the big fellows around here a good mill.

WEST AND VIERRA KNOWN.

The next big attraction in the boxing line looks to be in the Jimmy West-"Battling" Vierra bout. These two boys need not be introduced to the fans, as they have met before in the ring and given the fans four rounds as full of action as any two millers could put up. Their bouts have been of the torrid kind and it was only a couple of months ago that they were one of the biggest drawing cards around the bay. Since working in the shipyards, they have not been seen in the ring much, but now that the Shipbuilders' Athletic Association is formed they will be seen regularly. Both have been working out at the Yosemite Athletic Club at Fifth and Union streets.

MANY LOCAL FAVORITES.

The card is full of local favorites. The two Arrousey boys, who were rated as the best in their class around the local arenas until they took up shipbuilding, will be seen swinging the six-ounce gloves around. Johnny Arrousey will try to hold up the name of the Union Iron Works over the Hanlon Dry Dock and Shipbuilding company, when he enters the ring with Joe Rodgers, a boy whom Charley Carr has uncovered as a ringer. Jimmy Arrousey will make his first appearance in the ring in a long time when he meets Reo Caloron of the Moore shipyard.

Nine bouts in all are on the card, the others being Johnny Conde vs. Eddie Landon, Young Vierra vs. Pesty Ryan, Kid Hammer vs. Young Sylvester, and Young Tavis vs. Joe Souza.

SISTER FOR A SECOND.

With ladies being admitted to the big athletic carnival, Johnny Conde will be seconded by his sister, who is a great follower of the boxing game. Miss Conde knows more about the boxing game than many of the seconds that have been handling first class boxers, and Johnny is sure that she will advise him to a victory.

The wrestling match between Joe McCarthy of the Union Iron Works and John Arnevich of the Moore yard is the noon hour talk of the boys in both yards. G. M. Glidden, president of the Shipbuilders' Athletic Association, is responsible for Arnevich meeting McCarthy and promises that the fans will get plenty of sport in the fifteen minutes that the wrestlers are on the mat.

It will not be all boxing and wrestling that will be provided for the evening's entertainment. Not by a long-shot. Those two well known singers, William "Fat" L'Hereaux and Billy "Kid" Nelson, will be on the program along with the minstrels of the Union Iron Works. Those fellows will keep sweet songs flowing into the ears of the crowd of men and ladies, between every two rounds. The minstrels have appeared on several of the local vaudeville stages and made big hits. They promise to make things lively for the crowd tomorrow night. The coming of Billie "Kid" Nelson to sing at the big show should be good news to those who are fond of singing. Over in San Francisco the mention of Nelson on a program is always a sign of a crowded house, and Billie will bring many of his friends out to hear his clear tenor voice. "Fat" L'Hereaux was the former heavyweight amateur championship boxer, and now he is trying to be a champion in the singing line. Bill should do some good entertaining. The big Jazz band of the Union Iron Works will be another one of the many attractions.

TELEGRAPHIC TRAPSHOOT.

SPOKANE, Wash., March 11. — By defeating the Colfax-Palouse team, 116 to 113, the Kellogg team retained its leadership of the Inland Empire telegraphic trapshooting tournament with a perfect record of wins and losses. Yakima made 123 against Heppner's 116, a record for the tourney to date.

Spokane scored 115 against 107 for Oroville. Wallace 120 against 112 for Pendleton, and Sunnyside 118 against Wenatchee's 111.

P. A. A. Athletic Events Assigned to the Auditorium

According to an announcement made yesterday by the Pacific Association, the P. A. wrestling, boxing, gymnastic and the far western boxing championships will be held in the auditorium August 15 to October 15, in connection with the Pacific Coast Land and Industrial Exposition.

BASKETBALL NOTES

COLLEGE LEAGUE RACE.

Club.	W.	L.	Pct.
St. Mary's	6	0	1.000
Stanford	5	1	.833
California	4	2	.667
Nevada	3	3	.500
St. Ignatius	2	4	.333
College of Pacific	1	5	.167
Davis Farm	0	6	.000

The 36-26 win for St Mary's college over St. Ignatius, Saturday night, closed the California-Nevada Intercollegiate Basketball league race and left the St. Mary's team a clean slate of six victories and no defeats for the season championship. Stanford finished in second place with five wins and one defeat. St. Mary's being the only team to defeat the Cardinal. The University of California finished in third place, taking a 21 to 13 beating from St. Mary's and a 22 to 18 beating from Stanford. In a Stanford-California series, California won two games out of three, but the game that Stanford won was the only one which counted in the league race. Nevada, a fourth place was beaten by St. Mary's, 47 to 26, by Stanford, 30 to 20, and by California, 23 to 20. St. Ignatius finished in fifth place with a 45 to 19 win over Davis Farm and a 52 to 29 win over the College of the Pacific as its only victories. The only win of the season for the College of the Pacific was over Davis Farm, 34 to 22. Davis Farm went through the season without a victory.

For the season, St. Mary scored a total of 287 points against 126 scored by opponents. St Ignatius made the best showing against St. Mary's in the score, being beaten by only ten points. The College of the Pacific took the worst beating of the league season from St. Mary's—73 to 16.

Otto Rittler is given the credit by the St. Mary's students for turning out the championship team, his coaching being a big factor in winning the honors. He sent his team through the season in great shape and the following five St. Mary's players played in the six championship games: Percy Ritchie, captain and forward; Edwin Griffith, forward; Floyd Scott, center; John Graf, guard; Everett McKenzie, guard. Otto Rittler coached the squad.

Following are the scores by which each team won its victories for the full season:

St. Mary's—Davis, 30-17; California, 31-13; Stanford, 50-28; Nevada, 47-26; College of Pacific, 73-16; St. Ignatius, 36-26.

Stanford—College of Pacific, 47-19; St. Ignatius, 41-19; Davis, 18-9; Nevada, 30-20; California 22-18.

St. Ignatius—Davis, 45-19; College of Pacific, 52-29.

College of Pacific—Davis, 34-22.

The Fremont team, with Captain Ed. Dearborne, their star forward, out of the lineup, waded right through the Analy team of Sebastopole and when the final gun had been fired the green and gold boys had 53 points against 15 for the boys from the apple belt. The playing of Harold "Ike" Anderson, who took the place of Dearborne, and John Talt were the outstanding features of the win which Coach Walter LeBaker's boys put across. "Ike" was in the game all the time and just did nose out John Talt in scoring the most points for his team. He scored 10 baskets and 1 foul, while Talt shot 7 baskets and made good on 6 fouls.

Right from the start the Oakland boys showed that they had the visitors outclassed, and would be the team to meet San Jose for the title. It was hardly two seconds after the whistle for the start was blown when Talt had scored the first basket for his team. At the end of the first half the Fremont boys were out in front 32 to 4, and then they took things easy.

Although they knew that they were outclassed, the Analy boys went into the second half in an effort to make things interesting and they did in a few ways. Burns, at forward for the visitors, pulled the most sensational shot to be seen on any local court this season when he shot the ball directly into the basket from the outside line and about seven feet back of center. But part of the glory for his great shot was taken away when the referee failed to allow the shot as he was just in the act of calling a foul.

Faulkner, who did the refereeing, seemed to be a little more strict than the referees in the Alameda county big league games, for he called many fouls on the players that would get by other referees. Twenty-three fouls were [illegible] game had ended, and "Wamp" Anderson and Dow of Fremont, and Walker of Analy were put out of the game for having four each.

Coach Walter LeBaker of Fremont will get in touch with the coach of San Jose high and make an effort to have the game for the state finals played in Oakland on next Saturday afternoon. If Fremont went to San Jose they would have to play on the San Jose high court, and the Garden City team have an advantage by being accustomed to the court.

If the game is played here it will take place at either the Oakland Auditorium or Harmon gymnasium. The selection of referee for the game is between Sperry, the Army team coach, and Hasslett.

Northwestern League Still Up in the Air As to 1918 Circuit

PORTLAND, Oregon, March 11.—From delay in the holding of the scheduled meeting of the Pacific Coast International league, it looks very much as if the circuit will finally be made up of four clubs, Portland, Seattle, Tacoma and Vancouver or Spokane.

Judge McCredie stated today that he would urge Blewett, Dugdale and Hall to get busy at once and take some action in the Butte case. The Judge said that if Butte showed no disposition to meet the advances of the league, Butte should be dropped immediately.

In dropping to four clubs, a big protest may be expected from Vancouver or Spokane, both of which are anxious to retain their franchises. By keeping Vancouver the club will cut down measurably on transportation, but will lose somewhat in drawing power unless there has been a revival in athletic interest in British Columbia.

Bob Brown, the Vancouver magnate, has prepared for any eventuality and if his club is dropped by the Pacific Coast International, he will organize an intercity league among the shipbuilders of Vancouver, Tacoma and Seattle.

The Olympic club 120-pound basketball team will come to Oakland Tuesday evening, where they will tackle the Fremont high school five, winners of the Alameda County Athletic league basketball honors.

Claremont Golfer Is Third in Del Monte Women's Tourney

DEL MONTE, March 11. — In the week-end Red Cross handicap golf event, with 41 entries, Harvey Fleming, one time managing editor of the Kansas City Journal, now, if not then, an old war horse in golf if there ever was one, won the best gross score, left-handed at that, with an 87, might have been 78. John H. Dimmert, from the Detroit Country club, but really from Missouri, came next with an 88, tieing with A. J. Welch, entering from the Menlo Country club, one of the real goifers of the Pacific coast. The net score prize went to W. H. McGrath, Seattle Golf club, with 96 less 20-76, won the best net score.

In the women's event, not so many in members as in the men handicap, but distinctly outclassed them in real scratch players, such as Mrs. Sayward of Calwood, Mrs. William Jones of Tacoma, Mrs. Sherwood and Mrs. Field of Claremont, Miss A. Thorne, Tacoma Golf club, with 102, won the best gross score, and Mrs. N. C. Miller, St. Charles club, Winnipeg, 117-25-92, won the net prize.

The military ball on the campus of the University of California Friday evening, given by the university cadets, was one of the smartest events of the week in college circles, hundreds attending the affair in Harmon gymnasium. The ball is always an annual event, and this season was more elaborate than ever with the military setting and atmosphere prevailing. Two miles of red, white and blue streamers were required in the decoration of the ball room, and in a canopy of the same concealing the upper part of the gymnasium. In the center was suspended an airplane from the aviation camp.

A large number of the sorority members were guests representing the different women's organizations at college.

Among the most interesting visitors to Piedmont last week was Mrs. Edwin MacDowell, wife of the late American composer whose works are a favorite of the American people as well as admired by artists abroad, where the composer received the greater part of his musical education. Mrs. MacDowell is an artist of note and has mastered the technique of the planoforte. Her program Friday afternoon last of her late husband's compositions was greatly appreciated by an enthusiastic audience. Mrs. MacDowell gave a short resume of each sketch and an informal talk upon the MacDowell memorial fund and the soldiers home for convalescents—the cause for which Mrs. MacDowell is touring the country at present. The MacDowell farm at Peterborough is to be the setting for this home for convalescent soldiers, the association to care for 100 men. The home is not a hospital, but to be a place in which those convalescent may go until they are able to again face the world and make their own livelihood.

The MacDowell memorial fund supports creative art in this country. Years ago at Peterborough the late composer starting the famous "artists colony" where creative genius is given full opportunity to develop.

Five hundred acres in all comprise the setting, 350 of which is in solid forest and in the heart is 100 acres wherein the colony is located. Fifteen studios, donated by philanthropists of the country are located within the district and five dwellings. Two of the buildings are to be used for relief work. Beds and a heating plant, that the place may be kept open the year round, have been among the donations received. The association is aided by $1 membership circles, one of which was formed Friday by Mrs. Oscar Long.

Following the recital an informal tea at which a number of the younger girls served, was held in the reception rooms of the new Piedmont church.

TREATMENT FOR PALSY

If there is not a new thing under the sun every day, there is at least a few things new to us of this generation. Only the other week, a method of treatment for shaking palsy or "paralysis agitans" was described, which had to do with the use of parathyroid gland. Before that time several authorities stated that "there has never been an authentic instance of this malady where the victim fully recovered." Comes now to the fore with the newest treatment for paralysis agitans Dr. Walter B. Swift of the Boston State Hospital. Although it is generally stated that "no treatment is of any avail" for this severely distressing malady of "acknowledged incurable nature," Dr. Swift has succeeded at last in the bestowal of great relief and marked improvement upon several sufferers.

One victim in particular Dr. Swift describes with helpful details. The case was that of a woman, 52 years of age. Her hands trembled and shook, her feet dragged and her body seemed heavy. Seven years ago the trouble began in her left arm, which became stiffer and weaker, as the shaking disorder spread gradually to the rest of her anatomy. The right arm, the lower extremities and the spine were stiff and sore. The twitching, shakes and tremors were less, when she expended any effort, were absent at night and much worse when there was any emotional outbreak or periods of excitement.

FOR VOCAL TREMORS.

Work was largely interfered with because of the stiffness, slowness of movement and the restless motions of the limbs.

The patient's gait was "bear-like." Almost everybody has noticed the stiff, rigid series of half-slides and half-shuffles of a bear as it moves forward on its hind legs.

When this patient was assigned to Dr. Swift for treatment of her speech tremors, he first gave her vowels such as A, E, I, O, U to be sounded "in a prolonged, steady fashion." What was his surprise soon to find her speech and the tremor in her hands a little better!

MUST BE KEPT UP.

At once he took the hint and applied analogous, slow motions to the arms and legs to be executed for 15 minutes three times a day. The shakes, stiffness and distress grew steadily less. Two weeks of this treatment brought the patient her first hour of complete rest from all tremors, fatigue, stiffness, heaviness and pain. She was able to go to sleep without tossing about for half an hour beforehand.

The exercises given three times a day for 15 to 30 minutes are the following: Right arm up to the shoulder, level and down. Right arm up in front and down. Right arm raised backward and down.

Then the same arm is extended, opened and shut, all motions to be made down slowly about one foot to four seconds.

The same callisthenics are carried out for the left arm, then each leg in turn. Each exercise is repeated three times with all clothing loose. The essential element is slowness.

This treatment gives great relief to the intense suffering as long as it is kept up, but the improvement soon relapses, if the patient becomes indifferent and too lazy to continue the exercises.

Lucrezia Bori on BEAUTY

What Daily Exercise Will Do

by Lucrezia Bori, famous Spanish Opera Singer and noted Beauty

What woman is not willing to reach for that which may be hers if she will but exert a little energy to get it?

It requires effort to obtain anything worth while and one of these desirable things is a good form. There are very few women who do not long to have well-developed bodies, and those who have perfect measurements are willing to work hard to retain them.

A little time each day devoted to exercising will do a good deal in the way of taking off superfluous flesh and building up impoverished tissues and muscles. So, whether you are too stout or too thin, these suggestions should interest you.

HOW TO BEGIN.

It is to be remembered that severe exercise should not be taken immediately after a meal. If one were to exercise after eating heartily, the blood would be drawn to the parts being exercised and withdrawn from the digestive organs. Before breakfast, or at least two hours after eating, would be the most desirable time for exercising.

In order to obtain the best results from any exercise, the room must be filled with fresh air, all tight clothing removed and the mind freed from worry and care.

Regularity is essential if one is to derive satisfactory results in an effort to improve the figure. A fixed time should be set aside for this purpose each day.

The following series of stretching exercises are excellent for an all-round development of the body:

First assume an erect standing position, then stretch the arms as far out in front of you as you can. Swing the arms to the side until they are on a line with the shoulders. Stretch each arm to one side and then to the other.

OTHER FINE EXERCISES.

The following exercise will develop the arms and legs and offer a splendid opportunity for expanding the chest:

Kneel on the floor and stretch the right leg back as far as possible, the right arm down and the left arm up to the furthest limit. Reverse the position and repeat the movement ten times.

Now, lie flat upon the floor, face upward, and relax every muscle for a minute or two. Then tense the muscles and stretch. After you have done this, raise the right leg until it is at right angles with the body and reach high, with the toes, as if you were trying to touch the ceiling. Repeat the movement with the left leg.

Stand erect, with the feet at few inches apart and the arms extended straight up over the head. Then slowly bend the body back as far as possible without losing your balance, and as slowly return to the erect position. Do this, bending alternately backward and forward, three or four times.

In order to build up the physical being and obtain a good form, it is necessary for one to devote some time each day to physical training.

Today's Recipe

STEAK OF BREAD.

Cut as many slices of bread as are required, half as many medium-sized onions, and one egg, and half a cupful of milk for every two slices of bread. Moisten the slices of bread in the milk, then dip them into the well-beaten egg. Put them into a pan of boiling dripping or butter and fry them nicely brown. The onions should be sliced fine and fried in another pan. Serve the steaks very hot.

BACON CAKE.

Make some good puff-paste, roll it out thinly. Mince some bacon finely, and season with a small portion of cayenne. Spread some over one round of paste, then cover this with another round of paste, and spread this also with bacon; lastly, cover with paste the same size. Brush over with beaten egg. Stick strips of bacon here and there upon the top without touching each other, and bake in an oven.

Revelations of a Wife

CHAPTER XXXII.

A Night of Watching and Waiting.

"You sit still, Missis Graham. I go." Katie sprang from her chair to answer the telephone, the ringing of which had so worried me as we sat wondering what would happen next. Dicky, plainly intoxicated, had just left after coming back at midnight to take me to Lillian Gale's. We had had a scene as distressing to me as the one earlier in the evening, and as he departed he had announced his intention of acquiring a "good jag" before I saw him again. Katie, awakened by the noise, had risen to take care of me, despite my protests, and the alacrity with which she sprang to the telephone signified her willingness to stand between me and any trouble.

Katie's method of answering the telephone is to stand as far away from it as possible and shout into it. She answered this call in her usual way, and her "Hello" almost shook the room.

Her next words startled me. "Oh! Missis Underwood, dot you? Don't you remember me? I Katie."

Evidently Mrs. Underwood was in no mood to renew any acquaintance with Katie she might have had, for Katie's next answer was short and to the point.

I went to the telephone with curiously mixed feelings, terror for fear some accident had happened to Dicky, and deep annoyance at Lillian Gale. I felt as if I could not bear to listen to her voice again.

"Mrs. Graham, I fear you will never forgive me for bothering you at this unearthly hour—" her voice held more than the conventional apology—"but I was so afraid you would think I had anything to do with that crazy scheme of those two idiots to wake you up and bring you back here at this hour, that I could not help telephoning you. Have they been there yet?"

"Do you mean our two erring husbands?" Purposely I made my voice as gay as possible. "They were here a few moments ago, that is, Mr. Graham came upstairs and said Mr. Underwood was in the taxicab below, but they went away again. I think they are on their way back to your house, at least Dicky announced his intention of acquiring a real jag by the time he came home, so I suppose you will see him soon."

If anyone had told me a week ago that I would ever be guilty of giving another woman a spiteful little jab such as the one hidden in my last remark, I would have said the idea was preposterous. I am afraid my mental and moral fiber is getting a bit warped these days. I do not recognize some of the impulses that come to me.

But Mrs. Underwood appeared smoothly unconscious of any hidden meaning in my words. She countered easily:

"Oh, I am so sorry they came there and awakened you. They had been threatening to do so for an hour before they went, but I kept an eye on them. Then some new people came in, and in greeting them I lost sight of Dick and Harry for a minute. When I turned to where I had left them they had gone. I wouldn't have had this happen for worlds. Were they much under the weather when they reached your house, and were you frightened?"

I feel I am getting to be an accomplished evader of the truth. I flatter myself my voice did not hold a single tremor as I answered:

"Why, you see, I didn't see Mr. Underwood at all, so I don't know what state he was in, and it would be rather silly to be frightened by one's husband, wouldn't it? Besides, I didn't notice anything about Dicky except that he was in unusually light spirits and determined that I should return with them. And I think he was a trifle annoyed because I refused. Then he went away."

"How long ago did they leave?" Lillian's voice held a note of sharpness.

"Oh, perhaps twenty minutes or less," I replied.

"They could have been back in five. I do hope nothing has happened to them, they are such reckless scatterbrains when they are together."

I felt something clutch at my heart. This woman might simply be paying me back in my own coin; this might be only a little stinging dart which she meant should stick in my brain, but I did not think so. I gave her an unwilling mental tribute. She seemed too big a woman to frighten another woman needlessly. Besides, her voice held real anxiety.

My common sense told me that of all the silly things in the world this worrying over a few minutes' unexplained delay of two full-grown men was the silliest. But here was Lillian Gale, experienced woman of the world, plainly anxious, while I, who had always prided myself upon my poise, was really frightened. But I made up my mind that Mrs. Underwood should never guess I was disturbed.

"Oh, I am sure they are perfectly all right," I said lightly. "They are certainly big enough and old enough to take care of themselves."

"They are nothing but overgrown boys, both of them, with not a morsel of common sense to divide between them," retorted Lillian Gale, acidly, "but unfortunately there is nothing we can do. By the way, if they turn up there again before morning, or you hear from them, would you mind telephoning me, and if they come back here I'll 'phone you, of course, providing you want me to do so."

My pride urged me to say that it would be unnecessary for her to let me know anything about the wanderers, but instead I found myself saying:

"Thank you, I shall be glad to do as you suggest."

"All right, then. Try to get some sleep," and a clock told me that she had hung up the receiver.

The irony of her parting admonition made me smile. Sleep, indeed, with the prospect of telephone calls, the chance of another visit from Dicky and his companion, and the anxiety which she had given me concerning their safety.

I heard Katie rattling dishes in the kitchen, and went out there, idly curious.

"What are you doing, Katie?" I asked.

"Getting ready for Meester Graham when he come home," she replied. "See, I get teakettle full of hot water, put heem—on little burn"—she indicated the small warming burner of the gas range—"put coffee with little cold water in pot, let heem soak till Meester Graham come, den make strong black coffee queeck as I can, give Meester Graham, for he will feel so seeck!" Katie spread her hands expressively.

"Where did you learn all this, Katie?" The question slipped out before I could check it. I really did not mean to question a servant concerning her proficiency in caring for "mornings after," but Katie was only too glad to air her knowledge.

"Oh, when I keep house for Meester Graham and dose odder men. Meester Graham he not so mooch, but sometimes once, twice each week when I come in de morning, Meester Atwood or de odders, dey come in after I do, so seeck, and I feex black coffee for heem. I get me nice dress with tips I get for feexing black coffee." Katie's face held a shrewd look, even as she giggled. I made a mental note of a tip which must be given, as I turned away.

"Very well, Katie. I am going to read for a while, and you would better go to bed."

"Oh, please, Missis Graham, I no lie down. I have me Polish paper girl gave me, read about war out here."

"Nonsense," I returned. "It is too cold out here. If you must stay up, come into the living room until Mr. Graham comes home."

"All right, tank you, joost as soon as I feex here."

I returned to the living room and settled myself in the big chair with a book. A few minutes later Katie stole in quietly and sat down near me with her Polish paper. She read it intently, lost to everything about her, but I could not fix my mind on the words in front of me. I read a paragraph over and over in the vain attempt to glean some idea of what it meant. Always the same thought came to me. "Where was Dicky? Was he hurt, perhaps killed?" There was no possibility of accident which did not come into my mind.

When after an hour of waiting, which seemed four to my mind, the telephone rang again. I did not wait for Katie to answer it, but sprang to take the receiver down myself. It was Dicky's voice that came to my ears.

"Hello, sweetheart," I heard. "Have you changed your mind yet? We can't go back without you; they wouldn't let us in. Are you ready to go?"

Jumper Frock Serves Young Girl in Many Ways

"Julie, please leave the arrangement of the flowers to Marianne, I am going to ask you to do something for me," Madame said, pausing in the doorway of the studio on her way to the fitting room.

"'Speak and it shall be done!'" quoted Julie, laughingly.

"Come along, Claire," Madame invited. "We may need your help, too."

Upon reaching the fitting room we found a frock and four blouses spread out on the chairs.

"Miss Neilson's jumper is finished, and I want to see how the different bodices look with it. We'll try this one first," Madame explained as she chose a dainty, hand-made blouse of French batiste in the natural tint.

The front was a mass of tiny pinch tucks and fastened with small, crocheted bullet buttons. A rounded collar, trimmed with Val. lace and insertion, turned away from the pointed neckline. The bishop sleeves had turned-back cuffs to correspond.

When Madame was satisfied that it fitted perfectly, Julie slipped the jumper frock on over it. This smart little garment was of tobacco brown pongee of an exceptionally heavy weave.

The skeleton bodice was in two sections, the opening extending to the waistline both back and front. The large armholes were bound with a piping of the material. A few gathers gave a softness to the bodice above the belt. The latter was a plain strap of the pongee closed in the center front with a rectangular nickel buckle.

SKIRT IS PLAIN.

The skirt of the jumper frock was perfectly plain, save for two wing pockets which extended beyond the hipline in front.

Next, Madame chose a blouse of cream Georgette satin to be tried on with the brown jumper. It completely changed the character of the frock, being of the tailored type. The severe plainness of the front was relieved by a box pleat and a row of satin-covered bullet buttons. An Eton collar trimmed with a single row of machine stitching finished the rounded neckline. The bishop sleeves were set in without a particle of fullness, and turned-back cuffs completely covered the tightly fitted wristbands. A tie of tobacco brown gros-grain ribbon was knotted in a small bow under the collar.

Julie exchanged this blouse for one of ecru crepe Georgette. It was a decided contrast to the satin blouse. The front was made with a vest effect of ecru filet lace bordered with rows of hand-tucking. The sailor collar was edged with the lace and extended to the very end of the V-shaped neckline. The full sleeves were gathered into tight wristbands with turn-backs of Georgette and filet lace.

The last of the four blouses was of white French organdie, daintily trimmed with hand-embroidery and Val. lace. Rows of embroidery in a fine vine design were combined with the fine tucking and frills of Val. lace in trimming the front, collar and cuffs. The sleeves of this model were below elbow length, which gave a certain "dressy" appearance to the blouse that the others lacked.

TRANSFORMATION COMPLETE.

I couldn't help marveling at the complete transformation in the effect of the jumper frock when worn with a different blouse. It was almost like having four different dresses.

"Every girl who hasn't a whole lot to spend on a spring outfit ought to have a jumper frock with a selection of underblouses. They are a most sensible and economical garment, and nothing can equal them for smartness. This one has turned out so successfully I shall design other models in linen, pique, foulard, gingham and materials of even lighter weight," said Madam, as Julie took off Miss Neilson's frock and slipped into her own.

"Now, come with me, both of you," she concluded. "We'll run upstairs and have a look at the new stock of materials. There's a heap to be done if we are to have frocks ready for all the fittings scheduled for this week."

And on my way to the stock room I made up my mind to have a China blue jumper frock of heavy silk, if I didn't get another new frock this spring.

Kitchen Economies

When recommending vegetarian cooking as a steady diet housewives frequently say: "Yes, I have tried vegetarian meals, but they don't fill you up. We all get hungry so soon after a meal."

But I find after questioning such critics further that this is because housewives misinterpret vegetarian cooking to mean confining one's self to vegetables only. Accordingly, when they say vegetarian cooking they refer to a meal that is made up, let us say, of vegetables like potatoes, beets, carrots, cabbage, salad, etc. Of course, while these bulky foods fill you up quickly they don't "hold you," because they are bulk and not solid nutriment.

Vegetarian cooking really means refraining from meat eating rather than confining one's self to eating vegetables only. The vegetarians eat nuts, eggs, cheese and many who never touch meat will eat fish. Now we all know that there is just as much nutriment in eggs, cheese, nuts and the legumes like beans, peas, lentils, etc., as there is in meat. These are proteins, and if there is a proportionate amount of protein in a vegetable diet it is as satisfying and complete as any steak or chop dinner could be.

The housewife who plans to do more vegetarian cooking must give more thought to the proper balancing of meals than when preparing a meat meal. With meat she quite naturally includes a starchy vegetable like potatoes, turnips, etc., and also some watery vegetable, such as cabbage, salads, etc. However, when preparing vegetarian meals there is usually a tendency to run considerably to starch in an effort to supply solid bulk.

I have seen vegetarian meals consisting of creamed potatoes, rice pudding, corn and other starchy vegetables. These are filling and fattening, but they form an unbalanced, and, therefore, unsatisfying meal. If a meal consists of too many starches or too many of the purely bulk vegetables like salads, cabbage, radishes, it is also inadequate, and lessens the faith in the value of vegetarian cooking.

A vegetarian meal should consist of at least one selection from each of the following groups or a combination of two selections from each group in lesser quantity:

2—Carbohydrates: Potatoes, rice, corn, parsnips, hominy, cornstarch, bananas.

3—Fats; Milk, peanut butter, butter, lard, cottonseed oil, oleomargarine, olive oil and the composition vegetable fats which are being put on the market under a variety of trade names.

4—Mineral Salts: (Bulk foods containing the cellulose, salts and water that cleanse the body.) Tomatoes, spinach, lettuce, celery, cabbage, cucumbers and all the fruits except the banana.

All of these foods can be enriched by seasoning and flavoring so that they appeal to the palate as vigorously as any roast or steak. If you prepare it well, with an eye to its proper balancing, then the vegetarian meal is not only satisfying and complete, but it does not impart that heavy, soggy feeling which is the aftermath very often of the meatful meal.

Any additional information on this subject that is desired will be gladly answered if you will write Isobel Brands, the Applecroft Experiment Station, Greenlawn, N. Y., enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a personal reply.

MUSHROOMS ARE PLENTIFUL IN LAKESIDE PARK

Those who braved the rain to visit Lakeside Park yesterday were rewarded by a fine crop of mushrooms. Several mushrooming parties visited the park and carried away almost 100 pounds of mushrooms, which rose in the lawns under the recent rains. Park attendants say that the mushroom crop in the park is unusual; that while heretofore a mushroom here and there was seen after the rains this is the first time that any real quantity has ever sprung up there.

The mushrooms in the hills are particularly thick this year. The local commission market is almost overstocked with mushrooms, which are selling at very low prices.

Garis' Bedtime Story

"Uncle Wiggily, would you mind turning the wringer for me?" asked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, the muskrat lady housekeeper of the rabbit gentleman, as she came to the door of the breakfast room in the hollow stump bungalow one morning, when Mr. Longears was eating the last of some cabbage soup sprinkled with lollypop sauce.

"The washing is going on, Uncle Wiggily, and as it is Monday and wash day, and I wouldn't ask you to turn the wringer, only I have heavy bed spreads and——"

"Right gladly would I turn the wringer for you on any day but this," spoke Uncle Wiggily quickly. "But the truth of the matter is, Nurse Jane, that the wringer must not be turned today."

"Then how can I wash and wring out the clothes?" Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy wanted to know.

"You can't!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "You mustn't work today, nor must I. You mustn't wash the clothes and I mustn't turn the wringer."

"Why not, for the love of soft soap, if I must say it?" asked Nurse Jane. "Why can't I wash?"

"Because," answered Uncle Wiggily, twinkling his pink nose like a safety pin on a baby's stocking, "because this is a workless Monday. You see, there isn't much coal left in Woodland, or any place else, for that matter, and so Mr. Whitewash, the polar bear gentleman, who is a sort of Mayor here, says we mustn't work on any Monday for a while. We must just take a sort of vacation and burn only enough coal to keep warm."

"So let the washing go until Tuesday, Nurse Jane, and I'll help you then. I'm not going out in my auto today, nor in my airship, and I'm not even going to look for an adventure, for that might be a sort of work, and somebody might have to burn coal when they didn't need to. So, as it is a workless Monday, we'll make a holiday of it, Janie, my dear, and go for a walk up around the Orange Mountains, where the lemon trees will soon have ripe pineapples on, I hope."

"Well, if you say so, maybe it's all right," said Nurse Jane. "So let it be a washless, workless Monday, and I'll come for a walk with you."

Uncle Wiggily put on his tall silk hat and took his red, white and blue striped rheumatism crutch down off the mantelpiece, and then he and Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy started off, the muskrat lady tying her long tail in a double bow knot so it wouldn't be stepped on.

Together they went, over the fields and through the woods, and on all sides they saw their animal friends walking about doing nothing. For it was workless Monday for them as well.

"Nobody works today," said Uncle Wiggily. "Soon we will have saved enough coal so we can start in again, but until then——"

And then, all of a sudden, out from behind a stump jumped a bad old Skeezicks.

"Ah, ha!" cried the Skeezicks. "I'm in luck today! I have not only caught you, Uncle Wiggily, but I have caught Nurse Jane as well," and he grabbed them both in his claws.

"Say, now! Look here!" cried Uncle Wiggily, objectionable like. "This won't do at all! What are you going to do to us, you—Skeezicks?"

"I am going to bite souse off both your ears," said the bad chap.

"Oh, please don't!" begged Nurse Jane.

"Yes, I shall!" snapped the Skeezicks.

"Nonsense! I'll do as I please!" said the impudent Skeezicks. "I'll bite all the souse off your ears that I like and then——"

"Hold on! One moment, if you please!" quickly said brave Uncle Wiggily, as he thought of something. "Let me ask you a question! Biting souse is work for you, isn't it?"

"It certainly is work," said the Skeezicks, "though I like it! I had hard enough work catching you, anyhow."

"Then," said the bunny uncle, "you can't bite any souse off my ears, nor off Nurse Jane's either. You can't do it!"

"Why not?" asked the Skeezicks.

"Because," firmly said Uncle Wiggily, "this is a workless Monday, and if you work, and bite any souse, I'll tell Mr. Whitewash, the polar bear, about you, and you'll never get any more coal and——"

"Oh, excuse me! Excuse me!" cried the Skeezicks. "I forgot all about it being a workless Monday. True enough, I can't bite any souse off you today. Please wait here until it's Tuesday!"

But did Uncle Wiggily and Nurse Jane wait? I should say not! They went to the moving pictures, and the Skeezicks didn't get any souse at all, which served him right for trying to work on a workless Monday.

A reliable, safe skin treatment

You need never hesitate to use Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap in the treatment of severe or simple skin-troubles. There is nothing in them to injure the tenderest surface.

Resinol

is a doctor's prescription which, for years, has been used by other physicians for eczema and other itching, burning, unsightly skin affections.

They prescribe Resinol, knowing that its remarkable soothing, healing action is due to ingredients so gentle and harmless as to be suited even to a baby's delicate skin.

A Simple Way to Remove Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, or your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.—Advertisement.

A NEW PARTY!

The National Party, which was organized in Chicago last Wednesday and on Friday adopted a platform in which delegates to the convention declared their acceptance of the guidance of God, is a political organization in the sense that it plans to put forth candidates and to solicit the people to vote in favor of certain policies and proposed laws. But aside from this it is without the aims or the prospects that commonly identify party organization.

Its vision is too narrow. It does not contemplate possession of the power of government or the control of government through its representatives in public office. So far it has conceived no program looking forward to the possibility of the National Party being in charge of the administration of the national government or in any of the States. It seems chiefly to concern itself with propaganda and special objects. It has chosen the easiest basis on which to build a so-called political party, for being without any coherent plan or co-ordinated system, or articulating policies for conducting practical and effective government, the theories and untried and unripe ideas on special phases of human life do not have to be tested and fitted into a rigid framework patterned by experience.

With reference to personnel and ideas, the new National Party is composed of curious elements, and it certainly will be interesting to observe the reaction of these various elements under the attempt to fuse them in a melting pot composed of a name and a platform of "principles." The party really originated on October 3, 1917, at a meeting in Chicago that was attended by groups of Progressives, Prohibitionists, Socialists, Single-Taxers, Independents and Internationalists. The last-named was not the overt bomb-throwing kind, but the equally dangerous sort who may be found in lecture rooms and universities preaching the obliteration of national aspirations and lines, pacifism and unpreparedness against war, and performing other acts calculated to cause more violent colleagues to plant bombs in the path of patriotic demonstrations.

If it was thought a miracle in October that Single-Taxers, Socialists, Progressives and Prohibitionists could be brought together for a conference, it is more mystifying that they could meet in February for several days' discussion, draft a platform and issue a public statement without noisy disharmony. The only explanation possible is that the individuals who joined to form the National Party have a particular object in view to gain which they were willing to surrender much of their traditional "demands," or else neglect the discussion of them altogether. The net result, however, appears that some leaders in these radical ventures in thought and world reform have decided to put aside for the time being the contemplation of remote utopias and engage actively in politics in behalf of radicalism as it may be convenient.

In doing this at the proper time the party may exert a helpful influence on popular thought. But in view of the fact that there was much invidious talk among the organizers about the need of the democracy controlling the affairs of the nation, industry and international relations and other familiar subjects for anti-government agitators, and the utter absence of any necessity for political activities, much less a new party, at this time, it will not be unwise to subject the National Party and its activities during the war to the closest scrutiny. After the war there will inevitably be serious consideration of several of the planks in its platform—and plenty of time.

WHEN ENEMY AGENTS WORK.

Germany's operations in Russia should impress upon the United States government the necessity for thoroughness and energy in dealing with propaganda and sedition in any form. But it is equally important to every citizen who loves his country and is interested in its preservation to examine carefully every thought and every proposition presented to him.

Where there is any doubt rejection is the one safe course. Enemy plotters are unscrupulous and conscienceless. They will be found disguised as I. W. W., a bible students' association, pacifists organizations, intellectuals in the ranks of a new political party, and operators of publicity organs.

GOVERNMENT FINANCES.

Treasury Department statements of March 1st show that the money cost of the war plus ordinary expenditures is running close to a billion dollars a month, but still less than official forecasts of expenditures. Expenditures in Februaary amounted to $1,002,878,608, but of this sum $325,000,000 was loaned to the Allies. Expenditures in January were $1,090,000,000; in December $1,105,000,000, and in November $982,000,000.

A recapitulation of the Treasury Department reports show that the actual receipts from internal revenue since last July 1st, the beginning of the fiscal year, have been about $520,000,000, and it is estimated that the total receipts up to next July 1 will be $3,400,000,000. Customs and miscellaneous revenue have swelled the total ordinary receipts this year to $768,677,000 and receipts from Liberty loans, certificates, war savings and other public debt sources have been $9,811,668,000, making the government's total receipts in eight months $10,583,684,000. The War Savings movement has brought in $75,000,000 in the three months it has been under way.

Total disbursements in the eight months have been $10,647,709,000, a little more than receipts. Of this huge sum $3,811,556,000 has gone for internal expense, most of which was caused by the war, $3,466,329,000 in actual payments to the Allies, $14,000,000 for purchase of farm loan bonds, and most of the balance for redeeming temporary certificates of indebtedness issued in anticipation of Liberty loan campaigns.

Four months of the current fiscal year are ahead of us during which heavy deliveries of war materials must be paid for, and large items in the income and excess profits taxes, receipts from short term certificates of indebtedness and the Third Liberty Loan accounted for. But there is nothing to indicate that the judgment of THE TRIBUNE on the great war revenue and appropriation acts passed in special session of Congress last summer—that a sound, workable and adequate war finance plan had been devised—will not be verified.

CUBAN TRADE.

Trade of the United States with Cuba in 1917 was $445,000,000 against $198,000,000 in 1913, the year preceding the war. A compilation by The National City Bank of New York shows that the United States is now supplying 76 per cent of the imports of Cuba against 53 per cent in 1913, and taking 75 per cent of its exports against 80 per cent in 1913, this reduction in our share of the exports being due to the heavy European demands for Cuban sugar, due to the shortage of beet sugar in Europe since the beginning of the war.

Sugar, tobacco, bananas, cocoa, tropical fruits, iron ore, Manganese oxide, and cattle hides are the principal articles imported from Cuba, while our exports to the island include meats, lard, flour, corn, eggs, cheese, condensed milk, temperate zone fruits, coal, and all classes of manufactures.

The sugar imports from Cuba in 1917 are in round terms 4,500,000,000 pounds, being slightly less than in 1916 by reason of the very heavy demands upon the Island for shipments direct to Europe, for the reasons above stated.

Trade between the United States and Cuba since its independence has shown very rapid growth. It aggregated in the fiscal year 1895 65 million dollars, in 1905 125 millions, in 1910 176 millions, in the calendar year 1913 187 millions, in 1915 293 millions, in 1916 409 millions and in 1917 445 million dollars. The quantity of the trade may be expected to be maintained after peace, although there may be decreases in the value.

CONSIDER THE LOAFERS.

We have seen no tabulation disclosing the number of farm laborers taken by the draft from the agricultural counties of this State or from any other State. The total number of such laborers now in uniform has been variously stated; in the most modest estimate it is highly impressive. But when the total is studied by political units; the loss of each of them does not appear to be so crippling as some declamatory statesmen would have us believe.

Wherever success has best attained in replacing this labor it has not been done by contemplating the withdrawal of 500,000 men from the farms, but by finding out how many men each farm in a given section has lost and how many workers are needed to take their places. To supply 500,000 men for field labor might well daunt the most optimistic; to find a hundred for a county is a task that any persistent man or committee might survey without fear.

Every town, village and hamlet, east, west, north and south, has its quota of idlers. Some of them have inherited incomes that permit them to "get along." Others sponge on their families or their parents' friends. They are the decorators of railway platforms, the whittlers of hitching posts, the expert observers of pool played on the village table. Most of them are not vicious or depraved; they are simply lazy, and the easy-going customs of their rural environment have encouraged them to develop into spectators, supported without effort on their part through the industry of their kin or their associates. From their ranks came the wags who baited the village fool before the authorities condemned that poor lackwit to institutional care, and their representatives may be seen today, enjoying excellent health and not worse clothed than their neighbors, on the sunny side of every crossroads general store.

If all these fellows could be put at work, and they are better fitted for farm labor than are city bred or city trained loafers, they would fill every vacancy made in the roster of agricultural helpers by the draft and by the transfer of more active men to munition plants and factories. They are on the spot, or on the thousands of spots, where men are needed. Their transportation from the sites of their present enviable existence to the land would present no difficulties. Moreover, even their constitutional lethargy has not enabled them to avoid all acquaintance with agricultural processes, and if they are not expert, they are at least equipped with some knowledge of farm life.

Nobody wants to see the city loafer exempted from a fair share of work. The most that can be made of him should be. But if we are to have a draft of shirkers, an analysis of their capabilities should be made, and it is reasonable to believe that the country feared representatives of this universal pest will be found to be better adapted to rural activities than are the lounge lizards of populous communities.—New York Sun.

NOTES and COMMENT

Music is at a low ebb in San Francisco when a recital by a $10,000-a-year organist returns but $24.70. It is almost enough to warrant an attitude of indifference as to whether common humanity gets completely bogged in the mire of discord or not.

It is important and reassuring that accidents are growing less. The superintendent of safety of the State Accident Commission says so. Since it has become a risk to cross a street in a busy city, personal precaution is extended to other perils, with most gratifying statistical results.

Efforts to get Heney to express himself on the prohibition question have met with unsatisfactory results. His answer to the inquiry of a Sacramento paper is that he will state his position when other candidates state theirs. The wonder will naturally follow if his position will be determined by those of other aspirants.

Steve Gillis, the friend of Mark Twain and others of that group of original writers that California developed in the sixties and seventies, has gone over the divide. He died amid the scenes of his early exploits, and was true to that virile and original spirit in selecting a congenial eminence from which to look out upon the world and naming it Jackass Hill.

A San Francisco paper violently assails the proposition to construct a viaduct across East street according to the plans to be followed by the Harbor Commission. There is an army of commuters, however, who hope the project will not again be halted. Any kind of a viaduct there will be better than daily running the gauntlet.

The Colusa Sun paints a picture: "This soldier's battle was sharp and brief. He was carried on the wings of high adventure, the sting of danger and the wave of a great feeling. Such a one, it seems, must be gathered straight to the bosom of Abraham. The snow fell upon the body and the cruel wire and the twisting trench lines, the same gentle, graceful, beautiful garment that covered the world during the journeys of the old moon in the childhood tales of Han Christen Andersen."

Roundabouter of the San Diego Union is shocked: "After Eve ate the apple she became ashamed and put on a few fig leaves. And after viewing some of the new 1918 bathing suits at Ocean Beach yesterday I came home convinced that some of the local reformers may soon insist on passing the apples 'round again."

SPIRIT OF THE STATE PRESS

We have hundreds of mechanics who have been employed on the development of private places, and we have hundreds of laborers who depend in large measure upon public work. Undoubtedly, they would be glad to direct their energies to war work, bt they have not the means to move to distant points, and those of them who have gone to San Pedro and San Diego, where military and naval preparedness activities are under way, have returned with reports that there are more men than there are jobs.—

The world's record tuna on rod and line (a 39-thread) heavyt tackle, is 680 pounds, taken in Nova Scotia by J. K. L. Ross of Montreal, Canada, August 28, 1911, in 4 hrs. 45 m. This is the real heavy-tackle game, and very few rod men are considered in this class. Here at Catalina the game fish are less bulky, but more of the spectacular and shifty fighting variety, which permits the use of a different outfit and puts up a less strenous battle.—Avalon Islander.

The lady who attends to the dishes will tell you that nine times out of ten the coffee and tea cups that come to the dishpan contain a quantity of undissolved sugar. We could se mch less sugar, if we only wold.—Santa Ana Blade.

Writ large in every announcement thus far coming from the new chairman of the Republican national committee is the statement that he will treat all Republicans alike; that to him 1912 is as if it never had been, and that all former Moose now affiliated with the party are to receive consideration equally with those who have never wavered in their party allegiance. This is good politics for an era like this, and we hope that Chairman Hay's magnanimity will find reciprocity everywhere.—Santa Rosa Republican.

THE INCOME TAX

NO. 6.

"The Widower or Widow."

A widower, or widow, whose wife, or husband, died during the latter part of the tax year, say, December 26, cannot claim the full amount of personal exemption allowed to a married person?

The marital status on December 31 of the person rendering the return for the tax year determines the amount of exemption which may be claimed.

HORACE, ODE XIV, BOOK II.

Ehue Postume! The flying years glide by.
No piety can passing Time defy
Or stay his wrinkling hand. Encroaching Age.
Attends with Death Invincible his page,
Nor can you bend to listen to your prayer
The unrelenting Pluto in his lair,
With thrice a hundred bulls for every day
Of your short life—Pluto, whose iron sway
Holds three-limber Geryon and Tityon on that stream
Which must be crossed as in some hideous dream.
By all enjoying bounty of this earth,
Of royal strain or husbandmen by birth.
It matters not that we, avoiding wars,
Evade the falchion of destroying Mars
And angry Adriatic's tumbling waves,
Where roil black waters over untombed graves.
All uselessly we dread sharp Autum's blast
Red-handed outlaws of Danian blood
And Sisyphus, the planner doomed to toil,
The countryside, your home and pleasing wife
Must be relinquished with the breath of life;
Nor shall a single one of your loved trees
Desert with you the sun and wholesome breeze—
Unless it be the cypress, tree of doom
A worthier heir than you shall quaff that wine
And stain the pavement with a juice whose lees

THE WAR'S GRIMMEST JOKE.

The proposal that Lenine be awarded the Nobel prize is in itself incongruous enough to make the joke ghastly; but that the nomination should be proposed by the Turks makes the affair the most hideous satire of the war.

Turkish professors who sent in Lenine's name did so—according to Stockholm reports—because Russia's master anarchist had given to the world "the ideal of peace, harmony, justice and fraternity so dear to the Turkish people."

The bleaching skeletons of a million Armenians are a mute testimony to the Turk's love of justice and fraternity. The race which can approve such a sight is the proper one to endorse a man like Lenine.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

UNBRIDLED "MAJORITY" RULE.

First depose all the officers who can read and write, murdering many; then stop making munitions; then fraternize with the foe, selling machine guns for pack of cards; then order demobilization; then command the disarmed, unled, disorganized remnants of a mighty army to "fight to the death"—that is the Bolshevik idea of defending a country!—New York World.

TODAY 20 YEARS AGO

General W. S. Rosecrans, who led the Union army to victory on many occasions, died at his home near Redondo.

It was announced that the question would be asked in the British House of Commons, whether, with the view of recognizing the identity of the interests of all English speaking people, her majesty's government would consider the advisability of placing the services of the British fleet at the disposal of the United States in the event of complications between the United States and any foreign power.

GENTLEMEN, SHAKE HANDS.

It has been urged strongly by the public that the President and the Congress stop quarreling and get together in order to wage war effectively against Germany. That advice has been heeded. Both the President and the leaders of Congress have recently shown a most praiseworthy disposition to meet and talk things over and carry on government work harmoniously.

President Wilson cannot be expected to straighten out every little squabble. He has enough to attend to in his own arduous duties. It is really rather tiresome to have McAdoo and Hoover casting slurs upon each other. Let them work in cooperation. The people of this country are thoroughly and unitedly in earnest. They want the most vigorous and effective prosecution of the war against Germany. They are willing to submit without whining to inconveniences of travel and restrictions as to food. All they ask in return is that efficiency be displayed at Washington and personal jealousy be put in the background. — Brooklyn Standard Union.

DIRECTORS OF FARMS HOLD RALLY

TRIBUNE BUREAU
2011 SHATTUCK AVE.
BERKELEY, March 11.—In response to a call issued by President Wilson urging increased farm production as a means toward winning the war, 150 directors of farm bureaus and 50 farm advisers from all parts of the state assembled this morning in Agriculture Hall at the University of California for a war-time agricultural conference.

The session opened with the reading of a message from President Wilson, in which the nation's chief executive commended the work of the farmers of California and called for their increased support in helping to bring the war to a successful culmination.

TO INCREASE OUTPUT.

Today's session, which is also the annual meeting of the farm bureau heads, is being devoted entirely to a discussion of ways and means of increasing the output of the farms during the present year. Professor C. W. Ruble, assistant state farm leader, showed the necessity for an increased pork production to feed both the soldiers and the civilians of the nation. He explained a plan for a pork production campaign to be directed by the university, which provides for the placing of 40,000 hogs on 20,000 farms in order to meet the steadily increasing demands for pork products. The greatest danger, Professor Ruble stated, is seen in the decrease of breeding animals, which he estimated as ten per cent during the last year.

Details of a silo sorghum campaign were outlined by Professor W. E. Packard, while the necessity of interesting boys in agricultural pursuits was told by R. M. Hagen, head of the boys' agricultural bureau.

HOW WOMEN CAN AID.

How women can help in conserving and increasing the farm's output was told by Miss Lillian D. Clark, state home demonstration leader, who has charge of the work of the women farm advisors sent out by the university.

Delegates at today's session, which is aimed entirely as a war time conference, represent 36 farm bureau counties of California ranging from Humboldt to Imperial counties. The session is representative of some 20,000 members of county farm bureaus of California and is the most important conference called by the agricultural extension department since the beginning of the war.

CROCHERON PRESIDES.

Dean Thomas F. Hunt, head of the college of agriculture, and President Benjamin Ide Wheeler, will address the delegates at a session this evening, which will close the conference in Berkeley.

Tomorrow morning the delegates will begin a travel conference, which will take them by automobile as far south as Bakersfield, with stops at various farm centers en route. The trip will conclude Saturday.

DAROUX CASE CHARGE QUASHED

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—The case of Tessie Wall Daroux, charged with attempt to commit murder in the shooting of her former husband, Frank Daroux, local politician and gambler, was dismissed today by Police Judge T. I. Fitzpatrick on a motion of Deputy District Attorney Benjamin Black.

Detective James Cottle, who witnessed the shooting in Anna Lane December 18, last, and arrested Mrs. Daroux, testified that Daroux had stated to him he would not prosecute his former wife. This was corroborated by the testimony of Black.

In dismissing Mrs. Daroux, Judge Fitzpatrick told her to forget the past and not make a similar attempt upon Daroux's life.

"And you must stop making threats against him," Judge Fitzpatrick added.

"He calls me names every time he sees me," was Mrs. Daroux's retort, and he must stop making threats against me."

A final decree in the divorce action brought by Daroux is expected to be made by Superior Judge Graham this week. Immediately after which Daroux has publicly announced he would leave San Francisco for good.

EGGS ARE GONE.

Next to the crime of robbing church collection boxes, of which there have been several recently, Charles W. Loose of Eighth and Alice streets believes that he has been visited by the meanest thief that has operated in Oakland for some time. He reported to the police today that someone had entered his chicken coop and stolen fourteen eggs from under a prize setting hen.

St. Patrick's Day Plans Ready

Patriotism Will Be Keynote

A.O.H. in Charge Local Program

St. Patrick's Day will be celebrated in Oakland with a patriotic program to be given under the auspices of the Ancient Order of Hibernians in Knights of Columbus hall, 660 Thirteenth street, at 2 o'clock Sunday. There will be addresses, music, recitations and dances and the spirit of Old Erin will reign supreme. M. E. Griffiths, assistant district attorney of Santa Clara county, and an honor man in his graduating class at Santa Clara University, will give the oration. The program will be:

Recitation, by Leo J. Cunningham, St. Mary's College, "Emmett's Speech from the Dock"; recition by John J. Cox; Irish dances by Mrs. Frances Keith-Klemm and her dancing class pupils, accompanied by Miss May Garland; recitation by John J. Cox Jr.; songs by Miss May Garland and Miss T. S. Murphy; oration, by M. E. Griffiths, assistant district attorney of Santa Clara county.

James C. Walsh will be chairman of the evening. In charge of the celebration is a committee consisting of John J. Cox, J. C. Walsh, M. C. Ring, R. J. Heeney and John R. Kelley.

SAN FRANCISCO CELEBRATION.

The final session of the 1918 St. Patrick's Day Convention was held yesterday afternoon in Hibernian hall, San Francisco, and plans were completed for the four big events that are to honor Ireland's patron saint next Saturday and Sunday. These events will be a patriotic pageant and ball to be held Saturday night at the Exposition Auditorium, parade Sunday morning at 8.30 from Hibernian hall to St. Mary's Cathedral, celebration of high mass at the cathedral at 9 o'clock with His Grace, Archbishop Edward J. Hanna presiding, and a concert and literary program Sunday afternoon at 2:30 in the Exposition Auditorium.

Rev. Philip O'Ryan of the Star of the Sea church will deliver the panegyric at the mass, and Rev. Andrew J. Carroll of St. Francis de Sales church, Oakland, chaplain of the convention, will act as celebrant.

A series of elaborate pageants will feature the opening of the celebration Saturday night at the Auditorium. The evening will conclude with dancing, the grand march to be led by Mayor James Rolph Jr. and Mrs. Rolph.

The mayor is also to give an address of welcome at the concert and literary exercises to be held Sunday afternoon. Walter F. McGovern is to deliver the oration, while Supervisor James E. Power will present resolutions and a declaration of principles. Many other features, including a patriotic ballet and musical selections, and the singing by the audience of "The Star Spangled Banner," led by Mrs. Frances Drake Leroy and with Edwin H. Lemare at the organ, are provided in the program.

The convention appointed Daniel E. Doran, a former newspaperman, to prepare an official poem for the day. It is to be read by Thomas Lloyd Lennon, son of Judge Thomas J. Lennon, and who is now a member of the navy.

Resolutions were adopted repudiating T. P. O'Connor, member of England's Parliament, as a representative of the Irish people, and calling on the City League of Improvement Clubs and the Commonwealth Club to cancel speaking engagements they have arranged for O'Connor. If this cannot be done, it is asked that opportunity be afforded to present Ireland's side of the independence controversy.

ROSTER OF COMMITTEES.

The following reception committee for the ball was appointed: John Deavney, Richard J. Welsh, Judge Bernard J. Flood, Mrs. A. Page, Andrew J. Gallagher, J. J. O'Connor, Albert J. Brun, John P. Hare, C. J. Quirk, Miss Minnie McCarthy, M. J. O'Reilly, Mrs. A. Cram, Mrs. D. Gordon, Mrs. D. Brinkman, P. Forbes, D. J. O'Neill, Mrs. Mary Crowley, Rev. J. P. Moran, Mrs. C. Devaney, Mrs. M. Walsh and George Lowry.

It was announced that the parade Sunday morning will be led by Major C. J. Collins, Chief of Police D. A. White, Fire Chief Thomas R. Murphy, Bernard Doyle, Captain E. M. O'Reilly and Miss Nellie Leahy. There will be autos for the ladies.

Judge Franklin A. Griffin presided at the convention. George W. Harkins, chairman of the executive committee, has called a special meeting of the committee for next Thursday night.

SPENT PIGEON DROPS ON BARGE

Bearing a leg tag of identification and carrying a tiny scroll message within a tube on a strap, an exhausted carrier pigeon, which had been battling for hours with last night's storm in an effort to do its "bit" for Uncle Sam, dropped panting on the deck of a Crowley barge in South San Francisco at dawn this morning, having made the trip from the naval training station at San Diego in an estimated time of less than fifteen hours.

The bird's performance is considered remarkable, in view of the fact that it was done in the teeth of a gale that held shipping in port and rolled the breakers high on the beaches the length of the coast. The bird was first seen by Eddie Wieder, an employee of the barge, who thought at first it was a seagull. The bird was so tired that it wheeled and swooped drunkenly in midair, seeking to keep its balance, like a broken airplane.

When just over the barge the bird swung down in a wide circle and dropped flapping to the deck. It was too weak to resist when Wieder picked it up. As soon as he noticed the government tag, bearing the name of the naval training station and the number 23, he immediately communicated with the naval authorities at the San Francisco headquarters and they took the bird in charge. The contents of the message it carried was not divulged.

The bird is one of several that have been sent out from the naval training station on test flights to various parts of the country. This is the first time, so far as known, that a carrier pigeon has made such a heroic flight in the face of a high wind to deliver a message for the United States Government. Navy employees are going to give the bird a tiny silver merit tag with its record engraved on it.

BRIDES DELAYED; CUPID MOURNS

All day Saturday and Sunday Cupid stood in the rain at the San Francisco water-front and wept. The feathers on his darts got all wet and his curls all straightened out and his wooden shoes filled up with rain water and tears. For he was a little Dutch Cupid, and he wept because a dozen little "Handschoentjes" whom he was escorting to the Dutch East Indias to bring to a happy ending romances that he had carefully planned and so far carried out were delayed in passage because the War Trade Board has no sense at all when it comes to consideration of affairs of the heart. These are war times, and the little drizzled bedraggled Cupid often and over again said that Sherman didn't one-half describe it.

"Handschoentje" means, in Holland, the heroine of a proxy marriage. Dutch boys go to Java or Sumatra to make a fortune in the plantations. They get lonesome after a year or so and save up money enough with which to support a bride. Then they send for their tulip to come to them, and, being practical, they take no chances. A proxy marriage is performed, a perfectly good marriage under the Dutch law, and the little bride sails away, half the distance round the world or more, to meet her husband.

Twelve of these tulip brides were intended passengers on the steamer Oranje, whose sailing was unromantically halted Saturday by the War Trade Board. Now they are waiting in hope that they may be able to continue their journey on some crowded Japanese boat, if they are not indefinitely held up by diplomatic negotiations. The twelve proxy brides along with almost 200 other maidens, en route to their long-distance or intended husband, arrived recently at an Atlantic port on the Nieuw Amsterdam. Some of them are now on the Pacific, some are coming from New York by rail and a dozen are here, waiting inconsolable, because their passage to the land of spice and romance has been delayed.

HINDU STILL SEEKS HIS "LURINE"

Somewhere along Broadway a Hindu bride-elect, while on her way to the nuptials, became lost, strayed or stolen, and the police department has been asked to assist in locating her. In the meantime, Seetal Ran, a Hindu of high cast, is improving the time by having well stretched a new pair of shoes which indirectly made him brideless.

"Lurine" is the name of the wandering bride-elect. She disappeared Saturday when Seetal Ran stepped into a Broadway shoe shop to get relief from pinched feet. She was to wait for him and then they were to continue their course to the office of County Clerk George Gross to get a marriage license. Ran left Lurine in a nearby cafe. When he returned she was gone. He told Inspector Thomas Gallagher that he does not remember his fiancee's surname, as he only met her recently, when, after a brief but violent courtship, she promised to become his wife. Accordingly, Ran says, he purchased for her an elaborate trosseau and a jade engagement ring. For himself he bought a new pair of patent leather shoes. They pinched his feet.

BARLEYCORN DAY

This was "John Barlycorn's" day in the police courts when forty-seven defendants arrested since Saturday morning on charges of "drunk" appeared to answer the charges. With the exception of several who were taken in early this morning the others were able to appear and be released with a reprimand.

RED CROSS PLANS NEW WAR DRIVE

The date of the second war fund drive of the American Red Cross for $100,000,000 has been definitely fixed for the week starting May 20. This was the word received by Manager Marshal Hale of the Pacific division, in a wire from national headquarters yesterday.

The drive was originally set for the week starting May 6, but it was feared at national headquarters that this date might possibly detract even slightly from the forthcoming Liberty Loan campaign; consequently, the two weeks' postponement.

John B. Miller of Los Angeles has been named by Marshal Hale as chairman of the drive for the Pacific division.

Washington's wire to Marshal Hale follows:

"The war council of the American Red Cross announced today that the campaign to raise the second war relief fund of $100,000,000 would be postponed until the week of May 20. It was the original intention to begin raising this money for Red Cross work on May 6, but fear that it might detract even slightly from the forthcoming Liberty Loan campaign prompted the war council to postpone the date for two weeks.

"This action fixes the date of the second war fund campaign of the Red Cross eleven months after the first, which was carried on the week of June 18, 1917. The war council had been appointed by President Wilson five weeks prior to start of first money raising campaign, and first great task was to provide means of carrying on relief work on scale commensurate with the military operations. More than $100,000,000 was contributed in response to first call for financial aid, and contributions, plus interest, brought total receipts from first drive to $105,099,257. Of this amount, $17,006,121 was refunded to chapters for local relief work. Of balance, $77,721,918 has been appropriated, leaving balance available for appropriations of $10,371,217.

"France has been beneficiary of American Red Cross appropriations in sums of more than $30,000,000 During week preceding Christmas, Red Cross conducted membership drive which resulted in enrollment of approximately 22,000,000 new members. This was followed last month by campaign conducted by Junior membership of Red Cross, which resulted in enrollment in that collateral organization of virtually all school children in America."

CAKING COST OF GRAIN BAGS TO RAISE WHEAT

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—Due to high prices for grain bags, farmers throughout the Western States will be allowed 9 cents per bushel, or approximately 20 cents each, for bags on sacked wheat for the new crop of 1918, it was announced by R. A. Lewin, second vice-president of the Grain Corporation of the Food Administration and federal agent for California, Nevada and Arizona.

The new price amounts to an increase of about 11 cents per bag, containing slightly over two bushels, over the allowance for the 1917 crop, and was made in order to assure the farmer an adequate return on the price he has to pay for new bags. The allowance for sacks made last year was only 4 cents a bushel.

As practically all the wheat in California is sacked, growers in this state will be largely benefited, receiving $2.19 a bushel for No. 1 sacked wheat, delivered at San Francisco or Los Angeles. This is based on the fact that the government price for wheat announced recently by President Wilson, fixing $2.10 a bushel for No. 1 wheat at these central points, is for bulk wheat.

DEATH TOLL IS 11

WINCHESTER, Ky., March 11.—The number of persons killed Saturday night, when the falling walls of a burned building fell through a movie house, stood today at eleven. Of the twenty-three other persons who were injured some may recover.

Most of the victims were children.

Money was raised at a mass meeting today to pay hospital bills and bury members of families who need financial aid.

STATE Y.M.C.A. CONVENTION ENDS MEET

Pledging in a patriotic resolution the unqualified allegiance of 20,000 members throughout the State of California to the aid and assistance of the United States Government in any and all directions, the thirty-seventh annual convention of the California Young Men's Christian Association closed the final session of the most successful convention of its history at the Oakland Auditorium.

The convention was remarkable from two points of view. First because it resulted in the doubling of the war work activities of the various elements throughout the State, with a corresponding increase of working staff and general outline program; second, because the whole of the work included in four days' proceedings was national in character and entirely a portion of the State's part of the national defense program.

Among the final resolutions which were of prime importance were those urging the Food Administration to divert all foodstuffs used in the manufacture of alcoholic beverages into normal consumption channels; the providing for the $50,000 fund for foreign work in various portions of the world; the augmenting of the State staff by more than 50 per cent, with the addition of industrial, boys' work and county secretaries to open up new fields of endeavor; and those which outlined for the first time in the association's history the organization's stand on national problems.

Mention was made of the fact that at the present time the State Y. M. C. A. organizations are represented with 1988 men actually in the war zone, of which 35 are engaged in special war work and the rest are fighting in the trenches or the other departments of the American expeditionary forces. Resolutions thanking the people of Oakland for various courtesies received while the delegates were in the city and for other matters were also passed.

The final act of the convention was the selection of Los Angeles as the 1919 convention city.

MURDER RECORD

CHICAGO, March 11.—The record of three weeks without a murder in this city made at the end of last week will stand for a time at least. Bettering of the record became impossible late last night with the killing of Angelo Mario Gasparro in a "black hand" feud. According to police records, no such length of time has elapsed without a murder in more than a decade.

TURKS IN RETREAT

LONDON, March 11. — There has been a further retirement by the Turks in Mesopotamia, it was officially announced today. The Turkish garrison, which on Saturday evacuated Hit, on the Euphrates, before the British advance and fell back seven miles up stream, kept up its rearward movement, and now occupies Khan-Bagdad on the Euphrates, 22 miles above Hit.

GILBERT C. RINER

Gilbert B. Riner Disposes of Big Sum in Savings Coupons; Is Still at It.

Gilbert B. Riner is a busy man carrying mail from the main postoffice, but he has found time to establish a record of having sold more thrift stamps and war savings certificates than any other man in California. Riner says that his parents are of fighting stock and that if he is not of draft volunteer age he can do something to aid his country in its time of stress.

And so it is that Riner has been working both while on his route and on his time off to create in the minds of those with whom he comes in contact that there is much patriotism to be displayed in buying thrift stamps if one can do no more, as there is in facing the Hun and his weapons of death.

Six thousand, two hundred and twenty-nine dollars and eight cents is the cash equivalent of the saving certificates and the thrift stamps that Riner has sold. He is still energetic and before these figures are made public he probably will have sold many dollars' worth more.

In expressing his pride at the achievement of Riner, Postmaster Joseph Rosborough calls attention to the fact that for the month of February the Oakland postoffice force sold certificates to the amount of $46,717.07, and thrift stamps worth $10,739.25, a total of $57,156.32, as compared to a total of $37,441.62 in January.

MUNYON IS DEAD

"Professor" Munyon's motto, "There is hope," was his in life as well as in advertising. He often said it was the only hopeful outlook he had after each of his matrimonial ventures. There was hope of getting a divorce. His third wife, Mrs. Pauline Neff-Metzger-Munyon, was an actress, and deserted him for the stage.

I, MARY MacLANE, famous woman writer, at the American, commencing Wednesday in "Men Who Have Made Love to Me."

Beginning with the matinee Wednesday the American theater will present Mary MacLane herself, author of the phenomenal book, "I, Mary MacLane," and known throughout the country in literary and newspaper circles in the film drama, "Men Who Have Made Love to Me," a picture based on the book just mentioned.

Six leading men support Mary MacLane. These men are her suitors in the play, and were her suitors in real life, but all are losers in this particular quest for love.

This picture should be interesting as no other picture could be, for it comes from a fund of real happenings retold by the woman herself, a woman said to have remarkable ability to set her love affairs before the movie-goe. in vivid fashion.

On the same bill Edith Storey will be seen in "Revenge," her first production since her return to the screen. The performances tonight and tomorrow will conclude the engagement of Harold Lockwood in "Broadway Bill" and Sonia Markova in "A Heart's Revenge."—Advertisement.

WEST DRIVE NOT HALTED, SAYS BAKER

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Nothing has developed to indicate that the Germans have abandoned their plans for a great offensive in the west, says the War Department's weekly review of the military situation, published today. Meanwhile the allies, the statement continues, have taken an alert defensive and are content to let the enemy break himself against their impregnable line.

DIVISION OF OPINION ON GRANT FIGHT

VALLEJO, March 11.—With local factions awaiting the result of the official report filed with Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels by Captain Commandant Harry George of Mare Island navy yard, regarding the street fight between Henry J. and Adolph Weidemann, local brewers, and former State Senator Edwin E. Grant, there exists here today a division of opinion as to the relative right and wrong of the matter. The fight occurred Saturday, when Henry Weidemann attacked Grant, active factor of the State Law Enforcement League, after he declared he had failed to obtain satisfaction for personal attacks in the courts.

Weidemann's side of the controversy is covered by a statement which he made in Sacramento today. It is as follows:

"I pommeled ex-Senator Grant because in various statements he had charged that I was a disloyal American, that I was in effect a sympathizer of the Kaiser's and that I was a traitor.

"To make such accusations against a man who is loyal to his country is crowning infamy. I could obtain redress in no other fashion than to chastise Grant physically.

DISMANTLING PLANT.

"As to the liquor business, I am done. We are dismantling our brewery at Vallejo and will engage in other activities. We are suffering a heavy pecuniary loss, but have faith in our ability to achieve like success in new lines.

"What hurt me to the quick, what was cruel injustice to me and my family, was the widespread effort to fasten the stigma upon me that I was an agent of the Kaiser's and a traitor to my country. My parents came from Germany. I was born in Vallejo. I grew up under American institutions and was taught to respect my country and my flag, as my children are being taught to do.

"I am an American through and through. I am most heartily in sympathy with the cause of the country of my birth, and I dare any man to question my loyalty to my country."

A DIFFERENT STORY.

Grant's story of the assault does not tally with that of Wiedemann, but it is equally emphatic. He says:

"The attack was the outcome of almost a year's campaign to close Vallejo's grog shops. The assault in itself was particularly cowardly. Weidemann jumped on the running board of the machine in which I was sitting with the Rev. Porter, and before I could leap to the ground to defend myself I was struck fully eight times."

Rev. Herman G. Porter, the minister who was with Grant at the time of the alleged assault and who declares he was restrained from doing his "bit" in the affair by Adolph Weidemann, who kept getting in his way, preached yesterday from the pulpit of the First Methodist Church on "Booze and Brutality vs. Law and Order." He characterized the alleged assault by the Weidemanns as "dastardly."

MAYOR RONEY'S STORY.

Mayor James Roney, charged in a telegram sent to Secretary Daniels by members of the Law Enforcement League with having been an interested spectator of the fight, which he is said to have refused to stop, denied today that he had the pleasure of witnessing the fray. He said he was at the city hall when it took place.

In the meantime two complaints have been sworn out against the Weidemanns—one charging Henry J. Wiedemann with assault and battery on Edwin E. Grant and the other charging Adolph Weidemann with a similar offense on Rev. Herman G. Porter.

MANY RALLY TO WAR STAMP CALL

War savings stamps, what they are and why you should buy them, will be fully explained at the big mass meeting to be held in the Macdonough theater tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

This meeting is open to all. Originally called by the women's committee, Council National and State Defense, for the benefit of the women of Oakland, it has since been determined to open the doors to all. Crane Wilbur has donated the theater.

John S. Drum, state director of war savings for California (northern), and Mrs. Edward Dexter Knight, chairman of the organization of war savings societies for northern California, will be the speakers. Miss Ethel Moore, chairman of the Oakland women's committee, Council National and State Defense, will preside.

BOY SCOUTS IN W. S. S. DRIVE

The Boy Scouts are now engaged in a war savings stamp drive. They are making a house-to-house canvass of the city, taking orders on red post cards for war savings stamps. The movement is nation-wide. The government has called to service Young America as represented in Scout uniform.

The local Scouts are striving to be "Aces," just as the birmden of France aspire to this honor awarded by the French government. The French aviator who brings down five enemy planes is known as an "Ace" and for every additional airplane captured or destroyed by him he is awarded a palm medal. The Boy Scout who takes orders for war savings stamps to the amount of $250 becomes an "Ace" and for every $100 additional orders he receives a palm.

WAR SAVINGS SOCIETIES

The first war savings society to be organized in the Native Sons organization is the Athens Parlor War Savings Society, headed by Roy E. Crossman, with E. F. Garrison secretary. Every member has signed a pledge to save and buy war savings stamps, to conserve labor and materials to the government by avoiding unnecessary expenditures and extravagance.

The Foothill Boulevard Improvement Club War Savings Society is also added to Oakland's list of mobilized war savers. Mrs. E. M. Jones is president and W. J. O'Neill secretary.

State headquarters for war savings in San Francisco is now sending out charters to the various organized war savings societies. These charters are issued by the national war savings committee in Washington.

Orpheum Has Real Girl Show
'The Silent Witness' Draws Crowd
Offerings at Local Playhouses

It has been some weeks since Manager Harry Cornell has given the Orpheum patrons such a sparkling, genuinely pleasing, all-vaudeville bill as opened at the Orpheum yesterday afternoon. Sometimes vaudeville gets heavy in spots and makes us weep, or makes us think; but this week is not one of those times. There isn't a thought or a tear in the entire bill; all just merry-go-round fun, or sweet sentiment or song.

Likewise it has been some time since he has given us a real girl show; and so he makes up to us by giving us a good one. For "Vanity Fair of 1918" is a good one, with all the lilt of a real musical comedy. There are as many girls in it as can dance in a row across the stage and they are pretty and graceful and dance well.

Jack Trainor and Olga De Baugh carry through the piece a sort of June-and-September romance. Olga De Baugh sings like a nightingale, and there is another girl that is entitled to be raved about for her bluegrass beauty: Esther Walker, who does a number of songs before the chorus. It is a real music show, thoroughly enjoyable.

But if you are not a musical comedy fan, you can't help admitting that Harry Holman's "A Dam Killjoy" act is a misnomer. It is as funny as the automobile business can get. He is an automobile broker and he has a son who is broke and a stenographer never broke him, but who could, no doubt. There is not a thing to the piece except what Holman does, using the other two to do it.

One of the best recruiting travesties so far invented entertains us this week with Nick Basil and Dick Allen. One is the recruiter and the other is recruited. One is a six-foot stalwart and the other has to stand on his toes to be tall enough for the trenches.

No doubt the premier of the animal actors, Alfred Latell, proves that animal acting is a real art. He looks like a dog, barks like a dog, acts like a pup that has everything to learn and no mother to tell him. He just sits and looks, and you laugh.

One of the smartest song and dance acts in any vaudeville bill is offered by Donald Kerr and Effie Weston, who do some most original as well as graceful ....

The fastest cycling act in the business, done by the Cycling Brunettes, puts on all the tricks invented in six minutes. Bill Riley does a characteristic black face act that gets over well and a Christie comedy and the Pathe news fill out a bill that gives full measure.—J. D.

"CHEATING CHEATERS" AT HIPPODROME

Max Marcin's celebrated New York success "Cheating Cheaters," was presented for the first time at low prices at the Hippodrome Play house yesterday and despite the inclemency of the weather there was a capacity house on hand to witness the initial performance. Those who were fortunate enough to secure seats witnessed a delightful performance of the new play.

Del S. Lawrence was at his best in the leading male role of "Tom Palmer" and Audell Higgins had unusual opportunities to display her ability as an actress in the main role of the leader of the crooks. Miss Higgins' performance was finished and clever and she showed herself at all times mistress of the difficult role. Roscoe Karns took the comedy honors as the two-gun man.

"Cheating Cheaters" was presented in a lavish manner and the stage settings attracted the attention of the audience as well as the work of the players. Rupert Drum gave a careful reading to his role and Howard Nugent played the crafty lawyer in a brilliant fashion. Others who scored were Margaret Nugent, Barbara Lee, Chet Stevens and Florence Printy, the new ingenue.

The play is a mystery melodramatic crook comedy. It is full of surprises and the audience is in the dark as to the final outcome of the affair until the last scene of the production. The story concerns the adventures of two bands of experienced crooks, posing as society people and attempting to rob each other.

"Cheating Cheaters" will play for the rest of the week.

FASHION SHOW T. & D. ATTRACTION

Despite the fact that Spring Fashion Show at the T. and D. theater is monopolizing much of the limelight on this week's program, George Beban in "One More American" is holding his own again in a portrayal of the Italian character that has endeared him to American audiences. And to give further dispute to the fashion show's ascendency as the big headliner at the T. & D., there are a wealth of other attractions that will surfeit spectators with entertainment. These additional features include symphony concerts by Tickner's unrivaled symphony orchestra, organ recitals by Allen Lane, the master organist; operatic selections by the famous Remi duo, and a Pathe News picture and a comedy. That, in a word, is the attractive bill at the T. & D.

"One More American" is typical of Beban's ability to typify the Italian-American. He is at times ludicrous and pathetic. He can give a touch of pathos or comedy to his delineations that brings an alternate tear and laugh. Beban has made a study of the Italian characters he portrays for the screen and is unrivaled in the field.

The fashion show, while not a theatrical attraction in the strictest sense of the word, drew thousands to the T. & D. theater yesterday. It furnishes an enticing array of girls and gowns and could be aptly termed a pantomime in dress "from beach to boudoir."

KINEMA HAS INTERESTING BILL

Today and tomorrow Sessue Hayakawa gives us an inkling into the differences between the east and the west, between our ethics, morals and standards, and theirs, in his "Hidden Pearls" which is at the Kinema.

In this play an American girl plays with him causing him to commit the gravest crime known to his island home, and then throws him down, with the result that he is obliged to return and face his native subjects and there we have another of those tense climaxes for which he is justly famous.

On today's program we are given a most unusual treat in being able to visit and inspect the French front with General Pershing, just as he did on his first arrival, from the arsenal to the big guns, from the hospital to the front line and even up into the air, where we are permitted to fight and finally down a German airplane—one of the most thrilling scenes the human eye has ever witnessed.

"The Silent Witness," this week's offering of the Crane Wilbur players at the Macdonough theater is one of the most interesting dramas produced here. Packed with thrills and alive with stirring incident, this drama from the pen of Otto Hauerbach is one of those plays one wonders are not produced in this part of the country earlier. "The Silent Witness" had a long and successful run at the Longacre theater in New York last season. It is enough that Crane Wilbur has secured it for Oakland playgoers for its first production in California. Full houses greeted the opening performances yesterday.

If "The Silent Witness" is a drama of unusual gripping power, it owes much of its striking appeal to the strong and sympathetic interpretation by the Crane Wilbur players. The cast is well balanced.

"The Silent Witness" opens with a love tragedy. A young girl, whose love has overcome her discretion, learns that her lover has been killed. Terror stricken lest scandal overtake her, she flies from the village. She goes west where her son grows up and is sent by his mother to the very university that his mother's fiance is believed to have met his death in a fire. Here the boy defends his mother's name against stories spread by the caddish son of a rich man. In a fight between the two the cad is killed. An ambitious district attorney intent on conviction of the young student for murder weaves a mesh of evidence around him. Then the strange thing happens and a happy ending follows. The state attorney turns out to be the boy's father, who was thought to have been burned to death but who escaped, and who at the last moment brings forward startling new evidence resulting in his son's acquittal.

Robert Williams, who created the original role of Bud Morgan in "The Silent Witness" is again at his best in that role of a manly college chap.

An effective character portrayal is that of Hugh Knox as the district attorney. As the gardener Bigsby, Orral Humphreys was a study in simple, dignified acting and his carrying of the role was applauded as one of the most finished bits of acting in the play.

Jane O'Rourke takes full advantage of the opportunities for emotional acting in the part of Helen Hastings. As the matter-of-fact, you-can't-fool-me aunt, Sarah Blakely, Emilie Melville makes one of the big hits. Julia Chippendale makes her first appearance with the company and makes a sweet Ruth Pelham.

PANTAGES HAS MIND READER

All the fascination and lure of the unknown is presented at Pantages this week in the act furnished by Frescott and his assistant, Hope Eden. Wandering through the house Frescott gets in touch with the audience while Miss Eden on the stage proceeds with a remarkable exhibition of mind reading. She calls articles which Frescott holds in his hand and even goes so far as to identify persons in the audience and announce what they are thinking about.

Frescott and Miss Eden without doubt are two of the best mystery workers yet seen in vaudeville.

"The Bachelor Dinner" is the title of a spectacular girl act which headlines the bill with Frescott and Miss Eden. The act is strong on pretty girls, tinkly music, good comedy and pretty scenery.

JIGGS PAYS VISIT TO CONEY ISLAND

Dr. Killum's sanitarium at Coney Island provided more than a little fun and entertainment for the patrons of the theater yesterday afternoon when Jim Post and his musical comedy family stepped in to the robes of "Jiggs at Coney Island," a rollicking farce comedy with musical trimmings.

The new effusion is one of the most comical in which Post has yet appeared and he received excellent assistance from Lew White and Art Penney, who had the comedy roles; Reece Gardner, who appeared in the leading part; Bessie Hill, the leading woman; Alice Lewis, Frank Budd and George Archer.

"The Dixie Volunteers," a patriotic number featuring the chorus in a military drill under the direction of Mary Logan, was one of the big hits of the show. Reece Gardner sang the number and his efforts were well received. "Gootman is a Hootman," a novelty number featuring Lew White, and chorus was another hit.

Miss Hill and Gardner scored a tremendous hit with their duet; "I'll Build You a Bungalow in Flower Time," one of the prettiest numbers they have offered together for some time. Other song hits were "By the Sea," with the Post Ponies; "Naughty Little Red Cross Nurse," by Miss Hill and Ponies; and "Sweet Little Buttercup," by Miss Lewis.

The Post Trio, comprising Archer, Penney and Budd, had their customary success with their special program. They offered "Au Revoir, But Not Goodbye, Little Soldier Boy," a new war number, and "Love's Old Sweet Song," a requested number, using a popular song for an encore. The play as a whole was one of the best of the season and will continue for the entire week with matinees each day but Friday.

"THE BELGIAN" IS FRANKLIN FEATURE

Today and tomorrow the Franklin theater presents the great super-feature, "The Belgian," produced by Sidney Olcott, an O. Henry story entitled "Schools and Schools," and a scenic picture.

"The Belgian" is one of the biggest, awe-inspiring dramatic spectacles of the year, and conveys a message of loyalty and patriotism that warms the hearts of all who witness it. The scenes of this story are laid in Belgium and France, and are woven around the lives of two simple fisherfolk, through whose veins, however runs the red blood of patriotism. The action takes place prior to the outbreak of the war and extends through the period which followed the kaiser's path into martyred Belgium, exposing to the world the mysteries of the German secret service and intrigue. Vividly portrayed against these actual happenings there is a tender and intensely human love story.

A carefully selected cast of true types and successful artists visualize the climaxes with convincing force and power. Walker Whiteside and Valentine Grant, both famed for their accomplishments on the screen and stage, portray the leading roles.

COURTROOM TURNED INTO ENGINE SHOP

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—The lofty courtroom of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals was transformed today into a busy engine room, with whirling motors, gears and various mining processes with machinery, heavy with the odor of oil, following the submission of the $60,000,000 infringement suit brought by the Minerals Separation Company, Ltd., against the Butte and Superior Mining Company.

Justices W. H. Hunt, W. W. Morrow and W. B. Gilbert announced that they did not intend to be talked to death and cut short the arguments of former Secretary of War Lindley M. Garrison, who is appearing for the Minerals Separation Company, whereupon both sides submitted the case and the actual demonstration of the oil flotation process used by both companies began, miniature machines having been set up yesterday. The judges passed from one machine to the other in listening to the statements of the mineralogists demonstrating for the two companies.

The miniature machines are replicas of those installed at both plants and are capable of handling 1500 tons of ore a day. The outcome is based largely upon the question of whether or not the Butte and Superior Company can successfully claim that its machine produces the result of separation by the use of oil in a greater quantity than 1 per cent rather than by the use of oil in a quantity less than 1 per cent.

The Minerals Separation Company contends that the flower of their process is a mineral froth containing a large metal recovery and that no oil is suited to the use of that process except an oil which will create a froth. They contend, in addition, that the added oils of the Butte and Superior machine do not produce a froth and they should not be permitted to infringe upon their patent merely because the oil is used in a greater proportion in the defendant company's machine.

NEW BISHOP PLAY ALSO FASHION SHOW

"A Pair of Silk Stockings" would be interesting as a fashion show, if it were not still more interesting as a play. Any who doubt this need only see anyone of the two big audiences that crowded the Bishop Playhouse yesterday to witness Evelyn Vaughan in the first performance of the famous international dramatic success in Oakland. Or, better still, see the play itself.

Gorgeous gowns were merely implied when the author wrote the remarkable satire on modern life, but the Bishop presentation went further than the author ever dared dream. Miss Vaughan spent days ransacking Oakland's smart shops for the latest and most beautiful novelties to gown the remarkable play of high life, and her own exquisite taste is reflected in every color, and every feature of the brilliant production.

The brilliance of the play matches the brilliance of its setting, and the famous star as what is, for her, an ideal role; a role that far better shows her unique talents than even her premiers in this city. Wherefore the play is without a doubt one of the greatest successes the Bishop has ever offered, and one of the greatest productions of this noted play ever witnessed anywhere.

The full strength of the Bishop players, of course, is with Miss Vaughan in the offering. J. Anthony Smythe, in the role of an aristocratic Britisher, has a part that he enacts with consummate skill; in fact his work during the Vaughan season is a veritable revelation even to his thousands of Oakland admirers. George P. Webster offers another clever bit of acting, and Georgie Knowlton's character skill was never better shown than in this week's play. Eleanor Parker, Ben Erway, Hugh Metcalfe, Harry Garrity, John Sheehan, and the rest of the Associate Players are perfectly cast. "A Pair of Green Stockings" will run all week.

AMERICAN HAS DOUBLE BILL

The usual double bill at the American includes the eminent Harold Lockwood in "Broadway Bill" and the distinguished Russian actress, Sonia Markova, in "A Heart's Revenge." John Wharry Lewis and his orchestra, and an animated weekly containing illustrations of the essential current news events of the globe complete the bill.

Happy, cheerful, carefree smiles, the attributes which cause popularity with one's fellows, and masculine good looks, which compel favorite attention among the smart society sets, cost Harold Lockwood his successful New York career. Invitations which meant participation in all sorts of fetes, gay Broadway social events and entertainments, precluded attention to serious business, and prompted him to seek Dame Fortune's favor in the great northwest. The scenes of New York are exquisitely elaborate, especially those showing a private night festival of delightful revelry. Those of the romantic conclusion, among the undulating hills and picturesque valleys and dells, are of equal beauty, and the contrast is refreshingly unique. Harold Lockwood is at his best, and his acting is such that he is impressively natural.

Sonia Markova's interpretation of the part of Vera Sabouroff, daughter of Count Sabouroff of the Russian court, whose devotion to an American naval officer caused her to renounce a countryman whose intrigue had cast despair and shame upon the officer, and to sacrifice her future and fortune, is remarkable for its completeness and dramatic qualities. The Fox star has repeated her former European successes in the production.

LEGAL NOTICES.

In the matter of the application of PACIFIC GAS AND ELECTRIC COMPANY, a corporation, for an order of the Railroad Commission of the State of California authorizing applicant to increase its rates and charges for electric energy. Application No. 3459.

Notice of Hearing.

Notice is hereby given that Pacific Gas and Electric Company did on the 16th day of January, 1918, make application to the Railroad Commission of the State of California for authority to immediately add a surcharge of twenty (20%) per cent to its rates and charges for electricity sold by it to its customers, except railroads, other public utilities, the United States and its governmental departments and institutions, municipalities, charitable institutions and those using electricity for domestic purposes, basing said application for authority to make such surcharge on alleged increased operating expenses caused principally by the increased cost of oil, materials, supplies and labor; that at a hearing on said application held on the 4th day of March, 1918, said applicant, on request of certain consumers affected by said proposed surcharge, did amend its said application, enlarging its scope, to empower the Railroad Commission to fix a surcharge on the rates paid by any or all of its consumers of electricity, and to make such other charge to any or all of said consumers as the Railroad Commission shall deem just and proper and said application was, on said date, further amended to give authority to the Railroad Commission to fix just and reasonable rates for electricity sold to all of its consumers. Notice is therefore given that said application as amended, including within its scope the surcharge applied for, or such other charges as the Commission may deem just and proper and the final adjudication of all rates for electricity furnished by applicant affects all consumers furnished by applicant with electricity.

Notice is further given that the Railroad Commission has set a hearing in the above entitled matter, and on said application as amended, before Commissioners Devlin and Edgerton on Friday, March 15th, 1918, at 10 A. M., in the office of the Commission, 833 Market street, San Francisco, California, at which time and place all interested parties may appear and be heard.

By order of the Railroad Commission.

(SEAL) CHARLES R. DETRICK,
Secretary, Railroad Commission of the State of California.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEES' SALE.

In accordance with the terms and under the authority of a certain deed of trust duly executed by BYRON RUTLEY, Inc., a corporation, having its principal place of business at the City of Oakland, County of Alameda, State of California, grantor, and party of the first part, to EDWIN W. OWEN and HATTIE B. OWEN, grantees and trustees, the parties of the second part, dated March 29th, 1913, and recorded in the office of the County Recorder of the County of Alameda, on April 15th, 1913, in Volume 2162 of Deeds, page 238 et seq., and

Whereas, said trustee, Hattie B. Owen, is absent from the State of California and is now in the State of New York, United States of America, and unable to act as such trustee, and in pursuance of a written demand made upon the undersigned trustee by Genevieve L. Owen, beneficiary under said deed of trust, said Genevieve L. Owen now being the owner and holder of the note, to secure the payment of which the aforesaid deed of trust was executed, declaring that default had been made in the payment of the principal and interest, taxes and of other sums due under said note and deed of trust and by reason of such default, declaring that the whole of the principal sum of said promissory note together with interest due thereon was due, matured, owing and unpaid, and requiring and directing the said Edwin W. Owen, one of the grantees and trustees named in said deed of trust and sole trustee in the State of California, to sell the real estate described therein to satisfy said indebtedness;

Now, I, the undersigned, as sole trustee in the State of California, do hereby give notice that on Tuesday, the 26th day of March, 1918, at 10 o'clock A. M. of that day, on the front steps of the Alameda County Court House situated in the City of Oakland, County of Alameda, State of California, on the west side of Broadway street, between Fourth and Fifth streets, I will sell at public auction to the highest bidder for cash in gold coin of the United States, the piece or parcel of land situate in the City of Oakland, County of Alameda, State of California, and which is particularly described as follows, to-wit:

Commencing at a point on the western line of San Pablo avenue, distant therefrom fifty (50) feet northerly from the point of intersection thereof with the northern line of Santa Fe avenue; and running thence northerly along said line of San Pablo avenue fifty-six and 66-100 (56.66) feet to the northern boundary line of Lot No. 1, as per map hereinafter referred to; thence westerly along said line parallel with Santa Fe avenue ninety-seven and 55-100 (97.55) feet; thence at right angles southerly fifty-six and 62-100 (56.62) feet to a point distant 99 feet westerly from the point of commencement on a line drawn parallel with Santa Fe avenue; and thence easterly along (said parallel line ninety-nine (99) feet to the point of commencement.

Being portion of Lots Nos. 1, 2 and 3 as laid down and delineated on a certain map entitled "Map of the Wm. M. Butters Tract," etc., filed November 10th, 1902, in the office of the County Recorder of said Alameda County.

Terms of sale: Cash, in gold coin of the United States on fall of hammer, and title at purchaser's risk.

Said sale will be made subject, however, to all delinquent and current taxes now a lien against said property.

The said Genevieve L. Owen named in said deed of trust and her successors, assigns, heirs and representatives, or any other person, may purchase at the said sale.

Dated: March 2nd, 1918.

In the matter of the application of GREAT WESTERN POWER SYSTEM for an order of the Railroad Commission of the State of California, authorizing applicant to increase its rates and charges for electric energy. Application No. 3460.

Notice of Hearing.

Notice is hereby given that Great Western Power System did on the 16th day of January, 1918, make application to the Railroad Commission of the State of California for authority to immediately add a surcharge of twenty (20%) per cent to its rates and charges for electricity sold by it to its customers, except railroads, other public utilities, the United States and its governmental departments and institution, municipalities, charitable institutions and those using electricity for domestic purposes basing said application for authority to make such surcharge on alleged increased operating expenses caused principally by the increased cost of oil, materials, supplies and labor; that at a hearing on said application held on the 4th day of March, 1918, said applicant, on request of certain consumers affected by said proposed surcharge, did amend its said application, enlarging its scope, to empower the Railroad Commission to fix a surcharge on the rates paid by any or all of its consumers of electricity, and to make such other charge to any or all of said consumers as the Railroad Commission shall deem just and proper and said application was, on said date, further amended to give authority to the Railroad Commission to fix just and reasonable rates for electricity sold to all of its consumers. Notice is therefore given that said application as amended, including within its scope the surcharge applied for, or such other charges as the Commission may deem just and proper and the final adjudication of all rates for electricity furnished by applicant affects all consumers furnished by applicant with electricity.

Notice is further given that the Railroad Commission has set a hearing in the above entitled matter, and on said application as amended, before Commissioners Devlin and Edgerton on Friday, March 15, 1918, at 10 A. M., in the office of the Commission, 833 Market street, San Francisco, California, at which time and place all interested parties may appear and be heard.

By order of the Railroad Commission.

Dated at San Francisco, California, this 5th day of March, 1918.

CHARLES R. DETRICK,

Stock Trading Is Again Dull — Some Securities Have Advanced

NEW YORK, March 11.—Coppers furnished the basis of strength at the first but dull opening of today's stock market, Anaconda and Inspiration gaining a point each. Mexican Petroleum and Southern Railway preferred scored similar advances and coal shares indicated further accumulation under lead of Reading, Lehigh Valley and Chespeake and Ohio. United States Steel reacted a fraction, but immedialty recovered. Further general improvement was made in the first half hour. Liberty Bonds were steady.

Rails and oils were foremost in the further advance of the first hour and American Smelting was added to the stronger metals. United States Steel was listless, moving within narrow limits, and Motors were under pressure with Tobaccos, reacting one to two points. Trading halted at midday after Reading and other coalers as well as prominent equipments developed some irregularity. The following will show the trend of trading during the day:

OPENING—Extreme dullness featured trading at the opening. Copper stocks were prominent, Anaconda advancing one point to 65, while Inspiration rose one point to 45⅝. The railroad issues were in fairly good demand, Reading advancing one point to 82½. Union Pacific rose one point to 121⅝. Steel common sold off 91¼ at the opening and then rallied to 91¾. Bethlehem "B" was up 3-4 to 80¼ and fractional advances were made in Crucible and Baldwin.

FORENOON—By the end of the first hour many stocks developed a heavy tone with some issues showing net losses of one point or more. Trading was almost wholly professional. Railroad stocks, including Union Pacific and Reading, lost the best part of their advance and the copper shares also showed a reactionary tendency, with Anaconda yielding from 65 to 64¼. General Motors, after advancing 1⅛ to 126, reacted to 124½, and Studebaker dropped to 45⅝. United Cigar Stores was one of the weakest features, declining 1⅞ to 87⅛.

AFTERNOON—There was vigorous buying of the railroad issues during the afternoon, Reading moving up two points to 83⅜, while Union Pacific moved up from 120⅝ to 122¼. Gains of over two two points were made in Lehigh Valley and Chesapeake & Ohio and upturns of around one point were scored in St. Paul preferred, B. & O. and New York Central. Steel common held steady around 92.

CLOSING—Rails, steels and specialties sought higher levels in the final hour, the general list also improving. The closing was strong. Liberty 3½s sold at 97.48 to 97.66, first 4s at 96.36 to 96.60, and second 4s at 96.22 to 96.42. Sales approximated 350,000 shares.

N. Y. Sun Review

NEW YORK, March 11.—The New York Evening Sun financial review today said:

Save for consistent strength in the railroad department, netting gains of 1 to 2 points, today's session of the stock market pursued extremely dull trading. At the opening, industrials were firm along the rails, followed by new gains in the afternoon. The oil stocks were strong and the tobacco group was weak.

There was relatively good demand for coppers and associated in this demand was Butte & Superior, which moved forward more than two points. Anaconda and Inspiration made a favorable showing, although transactions were restricted. American Can, Pittsburg Coal, Crucible Steel, were among the features which stood out against the rest of the list by advances of a point. The leaders among the rails were Union Pacific, Reading, Lehigh Valley, Chesapeake & Ohio, and of all others, New Haven.

Considerable strength developed throughout the list during the afternoon.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, March 11.—Liberal receipts today eased the corn market. Opening prices, which stood unchanged with May $1.27¾, were followed by a slight down turn and then by some-[illegible]

Barley, $1.80@2.43. Timothy, $5.00@8.00. Clover, $28.00@31.00.

Futures closed steady at the same as Saturday's finish to ⅛c lower, with March $1.28 and May $1.27¼.

Closing:

Corn—March, $1.28; May, $1.27¼.

Oats—March, 91⅝c; May, 89⅞c.

Pork—May, $48.55.

Lard—May, $26.00; July, $26.22.

Ribs—May, $25.00; July, $25.40.

Oats showed relative firmness. After opening ⅛c off to a like advance, with May 89⅝c to 89⅞c, the market steadied at the top of the initial opening.

Lower quotations on hogs weakened provisions. Trade was very dull.

TRACK CHANGES

ALAMEDA, March 10. — Among the changes to be necessitated by the building of the bascule bridge will be a changing of tracks by the Southern Pacific at Webster street junction on the Alameda side of the harbor, where the Alameda and the Oakland tracks meet and join the track leading to the Alameda pier. There is a veritable network of tracks at this point. Moving of the bridge site will probably force the railroad to relay all these tracks for short distances.

It is likely that the railroad will also apply to the Alameda city council for a new franchise to cover new strips of ground to be occupied by the moved tracks. The franchise application, however, will be a routine procedure and will have no special significance. The changes will not be made till after the new bridge is constructed and ready for traffic.

BROTHERS ACCUSE

ALAMEDA, March 10. — What is reported to be a family squabble over money matters caused the arrest yesterday of Charles Baender of 523 Clay street, Oakland, on complaint of Clarence Baender of 2528 Noble avenue, Alameda. The two men are brothers. The Alameda brother claims that the Oakland man stole a $400 violin from the Alameda brother's home.

The arrested brother says that the arrest grew out of a family quarrel over money and that the Alameda brother defrauded the wife of the Oakland brother out of a sum of money. The arrested man gained his liberty on $2000 bail. Police Judge L. R. Weinmann is to hear the case.

HEADS PAINT CO.

RICHMOND, March 11.—Joseph Moscrop has been appointed superintendent of the paint works at the Stauffer chemical plant in Richmond, succeeding E. B. Hulett, who has taken a position with the Boswell Paint Company in San Francisco. Moscrop has been with the company for many years and has a thorough training in the work of his new position.

SALARY RAISE

EL CERRITO, March 11.—A raise in salary from $30 to $70 per month for the city clerk is provided in the amendment to Ordinance No. 2, adopted by the Board of Trustees. The ordinance will become effective following the municipal election of April 8.

FINAL CHEVROLET TRANSFER BY MAY

The process by which control of the General Motors Corporation has passed into the hands of the du Ponts and W. C. Durant, brings to light an extraordinary development in the activities and financial operations of the Chevrolet Automobile Company, involving its plant in this city. The final step will be taken in about two months, when the Chevrolet Company will be reconverted into a purely operating concern, divested of its stock holdings in the General Motors.

At present the Chevrolet treasury owns control of General Motors through the possession of 450,000 shares of its stock. The physical assets of the Chevrolet Company are to be bought by General Motors, payment being in the form of 252,051 additional shares of the latter corporation.

In order to provide this stock the General Motors shareowners will be asked to authorize an increase of the common stock capital from $86,600,000 to $150,000,000. After payment is made to the Chevrolet this company will own 702,884 shares of General Motors, which will be divided among holders of Chevrolet stock on the basis of one and one-seventh shares for each Chevrolet share.

The du Ponts and Mr. Durant already have control of both companies, so the result of the transaction will be merely to make the Chevrolet organization one of the manufacturing units of General Motors and center the control in General Motors stock. The General Motors preferred stock is to be increased in authorized amount, from $20,000,000 to $50,000,000, making the total capital of the corporation $200,000,000.

Weather Report

WEATHER FORECAST.

The entire state—Tonight and Tuesday, rain; fresh southwesterly winds.

Nevada and Idaho—Rain or snow.

Oregon—Rain—Fresh easterly winds.

Washington—Rain; fresh northeasterly winds.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

The depression off the Oregon coast yesterday morning has moved rapidly eastward and is now central over the Rocky Mountain region, and another depression has appeared off the Washington coast moving east. These conditions have caused general rain over the Pacific States and rain or snow in the Plateau and Northern Rocky Mountain regions. East of the Rocky Mountains the weather is fair. There has been a general rise in temperature from the Pacific to the Mississippi river. Moderate southerly gales occurred during the night along the Northern California coast.

Conditions are favorable for rain in the Pacific States and rain or snow in the Plateau tonight and Tuesday.

G. H. WILLSON, Forecaster.

NEW COAL PRICE

Albert E. Schwabacher, federal fuel administrator for California, today announced that President Wilson had increased prices of "prepared sizes" of coal at western coal mines and made reductions in the run of mine coal and "screenings."

Colorado bituminous steam coal from Trinidad district—Run of mine, $2.80; prepared sizes, $3.70; screenings, $2.10; Colorado lignite coals, $2.70; prepared sizes, $3.70; screenings, $1.45.

FOR GOLD NOTES

SACRAMENTO, March 11.—California Oil Company has been permitted by Commissioner of Corporations H. L. Carnahan to issue to B. B. & E. R. Dudley Petroleum Company $500,000 of its gold notes in payment of an interim note issued several months ago.

It is provided that the notes shall be deposited with a trustee to be sold at 90 and accrued interest, one-third of the purchase price to be paid to the Dudley Company and two-thirds to be reinvested for it in preferred stock of the California Oil Company at 90c per share.

The proceeds of sale of such preferred shares are to be expended for the uses and purposes authorized by the commissioner, in the development of oil properties. The permit provides that no dividends shall be paid by the California Oil Company, while the notes are outstanding except with the consent of the commissioner.

RIVER BANKS FULL; FLOOD STAGE NEAR

With flood conditions already present in the south, and expected shortly in the Sacramento valley, predictions today were [illegible] the result of the general storm that has deluged the entire State in the last 48 hours. Stockton is facing a flood, the Calaveras river having overrun the diverting canal that carries surplus water away from the city, and the river is rising until a short time more will see streets under water if the rise continues. In Santa Monica the streets have been flooded in the Japanese section, and in Los Angeles some parts of the city were also under water. Telephone service was impaired.

The center of the present storm is over Wyoming, according to the weather bureau. The rain has deluged California's farming regions, where rain was the most needed, and showers are continuing generally. The rainfall in Oakland up to last night was .64 of an inch, and early this morning saw the start of another steady rain that came on the heels of a gale of wind. Ships and boats stayed close in harbor during the windstorm.

HOLDS RECORD.

Mount Wilson, in Southern California, holds the record for the past 24 hours with 2½ inches of rain, and Corona was flooded with over two inches. San Bernardino's rainfall was 2.14; Los Angeles, 1.88; Redlands, 1.64.

Sacramento's rainfall was 1.42 inches; San Jose, 1.33; Red Bluff, .82, and the bay region's figure was set by the weather bureau at .75, exclusive of this morning's showers.

Eureka's precipitation was .18, and Fresno's .13. Oroville's fall was 1.37.

While the cities of the south are suffering through the flood conditions following the night's rain, the farming regions will profit greatly, according to the local weather bureau. The distribution of the rain is declared by Forecaster Wilson to have made it one of the most valuable of the season to the entire State, and the flood conditions in the south have in no case entailed serious loss.

The rainfall in Alameda county comes in time to work great good in the coming fruit crop, and produce men say that it will greatly increase their output.

RIVER RISING.

The Calaveras river has begun to rise, according to word received at Stockton today, swelled by the heavy rains of the valley region, and it is expected that before nightfall it will be out of its bounds as it flows along the diverting canal east of that city.

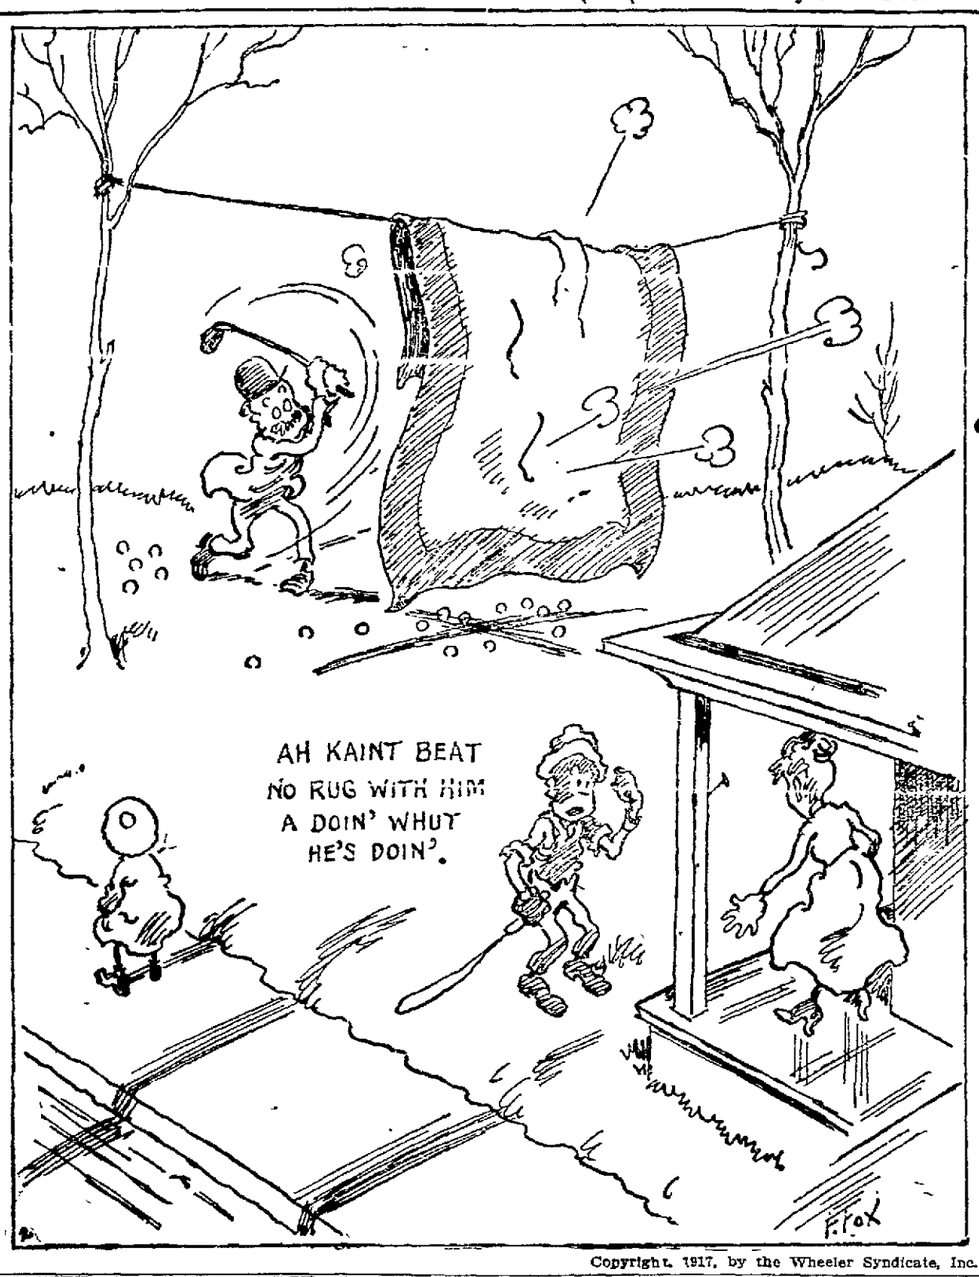

San Jose reports a fall of 1.29, making a total of 6.32 for the season, according to the University of Santa Clara rain gauges.

SAN JOSE, March 11.—The Santa Clara valley is being soaked thoroughly by what is declared to have already been the most beneficial storm of the season. The rainfall at 5 o'clock last evening measured 1.35 inches and the end is not in sight. The rain came in a steady downpour with a high temperature, and it is stated that the storm practically assures the success of all crops. Sing Kee, the Santa Clara weather prophet, announced today that there would be copious rains the remainder of this month and during April. He said there would be "plitty good" rains during May, but that the summer season would set in May 25.

ADMITS HIS GUILT

Norman La Fond, whom the police say is endeavoring to cover up his identity, today pleaded guilty in the police court to a charge of stealing clothing from an apartment house at 1461 Alice street, which he entered in the guise of a solicitor. He will be sentenced tomorrow. According to Inspectors Charles McCarthy and William Quigley, La Fonds' true name is Bundy Cohn and a member of a prominent family.

Detectives Seek Here For Lost Ring

Wife of Chicago's Mayor Loses $5000 Circlet on Train

Detectives of the Southern Pacific Company and the police of Sacramento, Oakland and San Francisco are bending every effort today to locate a $5000 ring belonging to Mrs. William Hale Thompson, wife of Chicago's mayor, who was robbed while en route here on a visit.

The theft occurred shortly before the train arrived at Sacramento. Mrs Thompson sent a telegram to her husband from there and he got busy at once notifying the bay cities officers. The hue and cry raised in the Pullman in which Mrs Thompson was traveling has led to the belief that the thief might have become frightened and thrown the ring out of a window, fearing a search of the passengers

"I was very proud of this collection of diamonds," she said today. "I had taken the ring off in the dressing room and when I turned round it was gone. There was some suggestion that I have the passengers searched, but I prefer to suffer the loss rather than humiliate innocent persons."

Honors Break Even in Marital Battles With Lard and Chair

Marital one-round honors broke even over Sunday, according to the records of the Central Emergency Hospital. For what John Sabo did to Hilda Sabo with a can of lard, Mrs. M. MacDonald did to Pete MacDonald with the back of a chair. Better than that, even the late John L. Sullivan never expected.

Just what started the Sabo trouble nobody seems to know. Hilda Sabo is Finnish. John Sabo is ditto. Echoes of the war trickled into their peaceful home at 3610 East Twelfth street, and the place became a battleground.

Shortly after noon, according to Mrs. Sabo, the male member of the Sabo household "swung" on her countenance with a large sized can of lard—a true battle-club of Finland. Mrs. Sabo docked at the hospital for repairs, while the police registered Sabo at the central station for battery.

An hour later, Pete MacDonald, 714 Union street, who under normal conditions peddles fruit, went home filled with enthusiasm—and other things—and undertook the task of eliminating Mrs. MacDonald. This, according to his own tale.

In something less than one second a heavy chair, wielded by Mrs. MacDonald, flew through the atmosphere and smote MacDonald on the forehead.

He collapsed in action and was removed to the hospital, where between court-plaster and arnica he told attaches that he "had it coming," and returned home to his affectionate spouse.

Mrs. Baldwin To Be Colonel Of Regiment

Former Spouse of Hull McClaughrey Gets High Military Honor.

Mrs. Anita M. Baldwin, former wife of Hull McClaughry of Berkeley, millionairess head of the American Red Star and a leader in various other branches of war work, is in San Diego to receive the highest military honor that has been conferred on an American woman since this country entered the war on the side of the entente allies.

She is to be made honorary colonel of the fighting 160th infantry, formerly the Seventh regiment of California National Guard of this city. This honor, voted unanimously by the officers and men of the organization, is the first of its kind ever extended to a woman, according to those familiar with army records.

In Europe the custom of having women as honorary heads of military units is followed, but the title is usually reserved for members of the royal family or as a compliment to visiting monarchs and royalty.

One of the most impressive parts of the ceremony of investure, which will be held at Camp Kearny, will be a review of the regiment especially arranged for the new officer. Mrs. Baldwin will stand at the saluting point with Colonel Charles Hutchins, commander of the regiment.

The decision of the regiment to make her its social commander was transmitted to Mrs. Baldwin several days ago. The rank is being conferred in appreciation of the personal interest that Mrs. Baldwin has taken in the organization.

When the troops were being mobilized following the outbreak of the war, Mrs. Baldwin's offer to the Government of the use of her Arcadia ranch as a camp site was accepted.

In the several months the regiment was stationed at Arcadia, every man, whether an officer or a private, grew to love Mrs. Baldwin for the many thoughtful ways in which she aided them to relieve the tedium of camp and army life.

She has given more than a score of horses to officers. To the Seventh's commander, Colonel Hutchins, she presented a valuable Arabian, one of the most beautiful horses in her stables. She has arranged shows and concerts for the entertainment of her "boys," as she affectionately calls them; has arranged lectures to aid them in becoming more efficient while fighting under Uncle Sam's banner, and has given gifts to every man in the regiment.

SEEKS JUDGESHIP

REDDING, March 11.—Superior Judge J. E. Barber announced today his withdrawal as a candidate for Judge N. P. Chipman's place in the third district appellate court. Judge Barber will seek re-election to the superior bench now that the death of Judge James G. Estep makes a vacancy there.

TO ENFORCE ORDER

VALLEJO, March 11.—A telegram was received from Washington today by Captain George, commandant of the Mare Island navy yard, informing him that the five-mile dry zone order will be enforced by the local authorities instead of the United States attorney, as was the opinion here.

TO HAVE HEARING

Simplicio Reyes, who was brought back to Oakland from Portland recently on a charge of robbing a Fourteenth street confectionery store of $500, will appear for preliminary hearing before Police Judge Samuels next Thursday.

ISSUE WARRANT.

Upon complaint of representatives of the State Board of Medical Examiners a warrant was issued today in the police court for Mrs. J. Militsky of 481 Eleventh street, who is accused of attending Mrs. E. Osterman without a license.

IST HUSBAND WOULD HOLD BRIDE OF 3

Dan Cupid, most whimsical of all vagarists, has again played one of his unexpected pranks with the tangled skeins of human life, with the result that Edna Metcalf thrice-wed maid of 17 years, who within a period of six months married three of Uncle Sam's fighting men, is again involved in complications which will take the courts for settlement. For Edward Reese, navy yeoman, her "first" husband has announced that he loves the girl who married him on a dare, and will fight the annulment proceedings brought by her mother in the San Francisco courts.

The interjection of young Reese and his affection into the court action has caused an unexpected denouement. The girl has openly declared that she wished annulment to clear the way for a repeated marriage with Louis Linkwisky, naval radio operator, whom she declares is the real man of her choice. Linkwisky has announced his readiness to go through the formality of a ceremony the second time and take his bride away to the north, where he has been detailed at one of the government's big radio stations. Everything was paved for a happy ending to the affair when Reese upset calculations.

PSYCHOLOGICAL PUZZLE.

The girl, who is a psychological puzzle to alienists and probation officers, was married last August to Reese because a girl chum dared her to do it. Then she ran away to the St. Regis hotel, where she became "lonesome" and married Jack Overstreet, Mare Island marine, "for company," as she says. And then, one night, at a dance, she met Louis Linkwisky, fell in love with him and married him—all within a period of six short months.

It was while waiting for Linkwisky at Seattle, where he had been assigned for duty, that the girl was found by a policewoman who had been searching for her at the instigation of the mother in this city. The girl was brought back to San Francisco in custody on February 1 and examined by the probation court. She created a scene by becoming hysterical when suggestion was made that she be remanded to the care of probation officers for examination, and she was finally committed to her mother's care. The latter immediately filed three actions for annulment in the San Francisco courts which are still pending. It is the action brought against young Reese which the latter declares he will fight.

The Metcalf girl is declared to be talented along artistic and musical lines. She has demonstrated since her arrest in the north little or no realization of the gravity of her situation. Probation officials branded her as a case of "excessive temperament misdirected."

PREPARE TO ACT

CHICAGO, March 11.—Anticipating that the election committee will declare the dry petition invalid within 48 hours, temperance forces today were prepared to bring mandamus proceedings to force an election April 2 on the question of ousting Chicago's 6000 saloons.

The commission today started rechecking the 50,354 signatures which the wets claimed were not of registered voters. The first count showed only 6075 of these properly registered, leaving the drys an insufficient number of proper signatures to force an election by petition.

REDMOND BURIED

KINGSTOWN, Ireland, March 11.—The body of John Redmond arrived here and was conveyed by a special train to Wexford, where it was buried in the family vault.

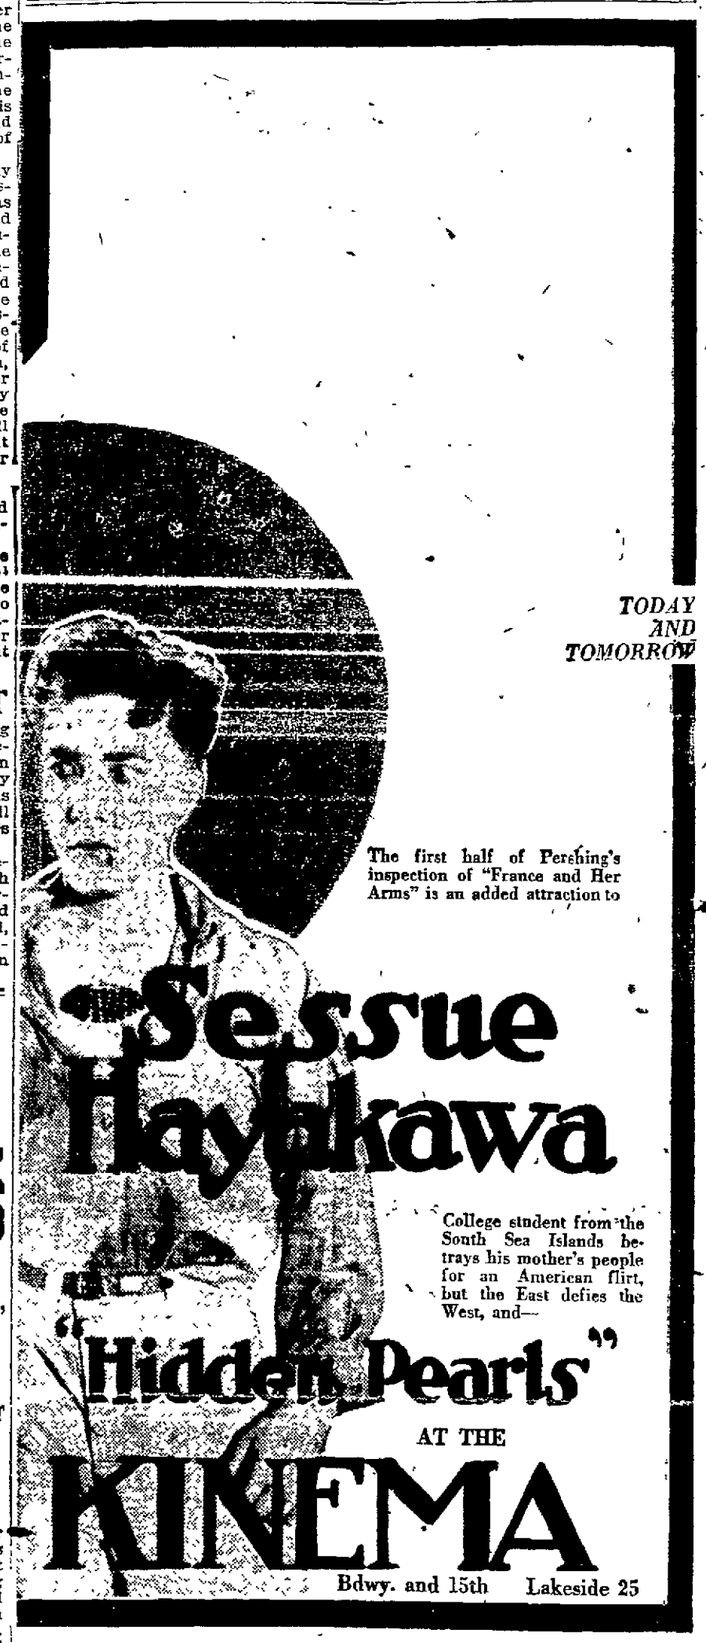

Fully 30,000 people, who had come from all parts of Ireland, followed the coffin from the station to the Church of the Immaculate Conception, where the requiem service was held. Among those present were officers of the British and American naval forces.

LOCAL "Y" MEN RUSHED TO FRANCE

Huber Burr, Oakland boy, and George A. Cahrnock, Berkeley lad, have been selected by the War Department to go to France immediately in response to the cabled appeal from the American expeditionary commander for more Y M C A to aid in the war work in the battle zone. Word of their selection reached Camp Kearney today, through official channels.

Twelve members, in all, have been selected to go to France from Camp Kearney. Of this number, five are to leave immediately, and the rest at a later date. In addition to those named, the contingent will comprise Josiah Poeton, National City; S. G. Wilson, Santa Rosa, and W. H. Ralph, San Diego. The men will go immediately to the trench zone upon their arrival in France, according to the present plans.

CAMP KEARNY, San Diego, March 11.—Keith Spaulding of Chicago, inspector of military relief work in the United States for the Red Cross, and George Filmer of San Francisco, who occupies a similar position in this division, are inspecting Red Cross activities and conferring with officials of that organization at Camp Kearny today. One of the most spectacular events scheduled at Camp Kearny for some time past, the entry of the officers' training school battalion into the trenches, has been postponed from today until Wednesday.

"Eight years ago when we first moved to Mattoon, I was a great sufferer from indigestion and constipation," writes Mrs Robert Allison, Matoon, Ill. "I had frequent headaches and dizzy spells, and there was a feeling like a heavy weight pressing on my stomach and chest all the time. I felt miserable. Every morsel of food distressed me. I could not rest at night and felt tired and worn out all the time. One bottle of Chamberlain's Tablets cured me and I have since felt like a different person." For sale by Osgood Bros.
